Order Death for 5 Russian Plotters

THREE OTHERS GET TEN YEAR PRISON TERMS

Prof. Ramzin, Chief, to Be Executed.

MOSCOW, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Eight once prominent engineers, on trial under charges that they conspired with foreign interests to overthrow the soviet regime, heard with stoicism today a verdict that condemned five of them to death and the other three to ten years' imprisonment, with confiscation of all their property.

Loud and prolonged cheering and handclapping greeted the verdict, and even all this cheering in the old ballroom where once Russian nobility promenaded, failed to shake the eight men who previously had confessed fully into a microphone and before grinding movie cameras.

All have 48 hours to petition the central executive committee for clemency, and after that time those condemned to death may be shot at the convenience of the authorities.

Five to Be Executed.

The men sentenced to death are:

Leonid Ramzin, 48, former professor in the Moscow technical institute and director of the heat and power institute.

Victor Larichev, second in command to Ramzin, 43, and former head of the fuel department of the state planning commission.

Nikolai Charnovsky, 62, professor in various technical institutes and president of the scientific and technical council of the supreme economic council.

Ivan Kalinikov, 56, former official of the state planning commission and professor in the military aerial academy.

Alexander Fedotov, 67, and oldest of the conspirators, professor in various institutes and chairman of the scientific research textile institute.

Prison Terms for Three.

Those sentenced to ten years' imprisonment are:

Vladimir Ochkin, 30 and the youngest of the group; secretary to Ramzin in the heat and power institute and manager of the research section of the supreme economic council.

Sergei Kuprianov, 59, director of the technical section of the supreme economic council.

Xenophon Sitnin, 52, engineer of the all union textile syndicate.

The three men whose lives were spared smiled somewhat happily as they heard the verdict say imprisonment instead of death.

Crowds began gathering around the House of Columns at 4 o'clock this afternoon to hear the verdict, and squads of mounted police finally found it necessary to surround the block in order to keep the entrances to the building clear.

A Holiday Affair.

The doors opened at 6 o'clock, and in a few minutes the galleries and main floor of the courtroom were jammed. For an hour or more the spectators kept their seats, and then gradually oozed out to the lobbies. There stood laughing and chatting with, resembling persons attending an opera rather than awaiting a decision that might mean death for eight men. Their accents were gay, too, and the whole thing was considerable of a holiday affair.

By 11 p. m. every one looked weary, but persistent, and the four judges, who had been locked in their chambers since around noon yesterday, also appeared tired as they took their seats.

The verdict required about 45 minutes to read and it reviewed in brief practically all evidence that had been submitted during the two-week trial.

"Plot Backed by French."

It found that military intervention had been sponsored by the eight defendants by "capitalists and military circles of France and the Torgprom [Russian émigré organization in Paris] and the industrial party of Russia."

Supporting charges from abroad that the trial was a frameup, the verdict asserted that the mysterious French agents, "K" and "R," named by the defendants as passing on information from Moscow to general staff officers in Paris, were actual persons.

Regarding this same thing, the verdict said the court would "make special application to the government on the matter," which was proved at a closed session after an order had been issued against mentioning foreign governments in open court. While the verdict previously had confessed to [illegible] foreign intervention and [illegible] soviet industry through

W. E. Barton, Noted Lincoln Author, Dead

Dr. William E. Barton, noted authority on the life of Abraham Lincoln, died in New York yesterday. Dr. Barton was pastor of the First Congregational Church of Oak Park for twenty-five years. He retired from the ministry in 1924. In August he suffered a heart attack which was followed by bronchial pneumonia, and on Oct. 12 he was taken to the Long Island College hospital, where his death occurred.

Dr. Barton was famed in three fields, the ministry, as an author, and as a lecturer. His best known works were on the life of Lincoln. He was the friend of former President Coolidge and President Hoover.

Lincoln Researches Praised.

His researches on Lincoln brought to light much material on the martyred President. 'Of his book, "The Paternity of Abraham Lincoln," Carl Sandburg wrote:

"It provides a bulwark of facts that is a resource to anybody who prefers to have what is known rather than what is guessed at, and wagged lazily on careless tongues."

Dr. Barton was born in Sublette, Ill., 69 years ago, the son of a country physician. He was determined to have a college education and he worked in the wheat fields and saved his earnings and in 1881 he was enrolled in Berea college, Kentucky. Immediately after his graduation with the degree of bachelor of science he was ordained in the Congregational ministry and soon thereafter he married Esther Treat Bushnell of Johnsonville, O., a teacher at Berea.

Becomes Oak Park Pastor.

His first pastorate was at Robbins, Tenn., after which he returned to school at Oberlin, O., theological seminary, where he won the degree of bachelor of divinity in 1890. Next he was pastor at Wellington, O., and after three years went to Boston as pastor of the Shawmut Congregational church for six years and in 1899 he accepted a call to Oak Park.

Dr. Barton's work in Oak Park lasted a quarter of a century and established him as one of the denomination's leading ministers and pulpit orators and gained him wide recognition when he was named one of the American delegates to the world conference on faith and order at Lausanne, Switzerland, in 1927. He was moderator of the national council of Congregational churches in 1923-'25.

Dr. Barton retired from his pastorate at Oak Park and from the ministry in August, 1924. He and Mrs. Barton then made a trip around the world. Shortly thereafter Mrs. Barton died at their summer home at Foxboro, Mass. Dr. Barton had continued to live in the east since that time.

Besides five separate works on Lincoln, he wrote "Safed the Sage," "The Life of Clara Barton," "My Faith in Immortality," and many other works.

Five children were born to Dr. and Mrs. Barton—Bruce, the editor and author; Charles W., publisher of Sheridan, Wyo.; Fred B., Robert S., and Mrs. Clyde S. Stilwell.

Funeral services will be held in New York at 3 o'clock tomorrow and at the same time [2 o'clock Chicago time] the Rev. Albert B. Coe, pastor of the Oak Park church, will hold memorial services.

Boy with Diphtheria Flees Hospital; Free on Streets

A 10 year old boy in the first stages of diphtheria is running around somewhere in Chicago. He is Joseph Materko, 3831 South Wood street. He had been an inmate of the juvenile home until yesterday afternoon, when physicians discovered symptoms of the disease and notified the city health department. An ambulance conveyed him to the examination room of the county hospital, and then left. The boy slipped out while waiting for a physician. His parents said he had not come home.

Radio Rescues 2 in Hands of Kidnap Gang

Three robbers who had kidnaped a lawyer and a young girl in the lawyer's car were thwarted last night by the police radio and two of them captured.

Carl V. Wisner, an attorney, planning to take his family for a motor ride, had driven his sedan around in front of the apartment building where he lives at 1319 East 50th street. With him was Miss Janice Conrad, 4942 Blackstone avenue, a sorority sister of his daughter, Catherine.

The latter, peering out a window, saw her father alight from the car. Three men with revolvers surrounded him and forced him back into it, then drove away to the east. She screamed to her mother, who was putting on her wraps, that her father had been kidnaped.

Police Flash Out Message.

It was 8:13 when Mrs. Wisner telephoned the Hyde Park station, giving them the license number and a description of the car. It was 8:14 when the message went out over the police broadcast:

"A man and a girl have been kidnaped in a 1927 Buick sedan; license number, Illinois 121-950. All squads be on the lookout."

The message was picked up by three squad cars—one commanded by Sergt. Frank Krueger, at 67th and State streets; one by Sergt. Otto Katelhut, at 49th street and Calumet, and one by Sergt. Jack Sheehy, at Calumet avenue and 50th street. Each started racing for the district.

It was 8:19 when Sheehy's squad sighted the Buick at South Park way and 48th street, headed south, and gave chase. The robbers, one of them drunk at the wheel, crashed into the rear of another car at 49th street, and all three jumped out.

Two Bandits Captured.

One of the bandits escaped. Two were captured, after they had emptied their revolvers at the police without scoring a hit. William Boyd, colored, disarmed one and held him for the police. At the Wabash avenue station they said they were Ralph Nelson, 20 years old, 949 West 60th street, and Arthur Pechtel, 21 years old, 6325 South Sangamon street.

Mr. Wisner congratulated the police. Miss Conrad suffered a wrenched back in the collision, but the injury was not serious. The robbers had taken $4 from Mr. Wisner and $5 from Miss Conrad.

SIXTY MILLIONS FOR PUBLIC JOBS IN CHICAGO AREA

City-County Plans Surpass U. S.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

More cash will be available for public construction in Chicago and Cook county during 1931 than ever before in one calendar year. The proceeds of bond issues, special tax levies and license fees will total at least $60,960,000.

The money will be in hand when the bonds are sold after Jan. 1, when tax warrants are sold anticipating the tax levies, and when the fees are collected. More than 90 per cent of the $60,960,000 can be in the public treasuries within six months.

Compared with U. S. Program.

As a remedy for the depression and a relief for unemployment, the $60,960,000 for Cook county is more substantial, it was pointed out yesterday, than the $650,000,000 program for federal public works of the nation, which President Hoover believes will be sufficient to revive business and employment. The federal government's spending $650,000,000 on public works would be an average of a little more than $5 per capita, while $60,960,000 in Cook county is more than $15 a person.

And that is not all of the public construction in prospect locally. The sanitary district will seek approval of $20,00,000 in bonds at the February election. This is money required to supply the sewage disposal facilities which have been ordered by the United States Supreme court. If the bonds fail of popular approval the trustees will probably appeal to the state legislature for authority to issue them without a referendum.

South Parks Plan Bonds.

The south park commission also is likely to submit a bond issue to the voters next February, but the amount of it has not been decided.

It therefore seems possible that more than $80,000,000 will be obtained for local public construction, which would be $20 per capita, or four times what the federal government proposes for the nation.

Of the $60,960,000 total now in sight the county board will spend $21,190,000; the school trustees, $16,100,000; the city government, $20,670,000, and the Lincoln park commissioners, $3,000,000.

Source of County's Cash.

The county's cash for construction comes from various sources. At the November election the voters approved $4,850,000 in bonds. Of this, $2,350,000 is for the construction of a nurses' home at the county hospital, and $2,500,000 is for comfort stations, shelter houses and other improvements in the forest preserves.

The remaining $16,340,000 of the county's money is for road building and repairs. For these purposes the official estimates show $9,013,765 will be obtained from the county highway tax, $500,000 in road bonds remains in the treasury unused; the county has $1,799,277 coming from the state in the form of refunds on roads already built, and the county's share of the state gasoline tax for two years is placed at $5,027,546.

The School Board's Money.

The school board's $16,100,000 is obtained by a direct tax for new school buildings. The $3,000,000 for Lincoln park is a bond issue approved last month for extension of the filled in land on the lake shore north of Montrose avenue.

The city's $20,670,000 bond issues were approved by the voters on Nov. 4. For the new State street bridge a bond issue of $3,500,000 was obtained; for

'Millionaire Newsie' Dead; His Son Hurt

Tony May, known to thousands of Chicagoans during the last thirty years as the "millionaire newsboy," died at 1 o'clock this morning of injuries caused by a black powder bomb delivered by mail in a box so arranged that it exploded when he lifted the cover.

May and his 16 year old son, Eugene, who was seriously injured, opened the box yesterday in May's office on the fourth floor of his building at 2109 Lincoln avenue.

A "Birthday Present."

May thought the package contained a birthday present. Tomorrow he would have been 64 years old. The box was wrapped in heavy brown paper and bore the label of a mail order house. It was 13 inches long and 3 inches square.

Last Thursday the package was taken to the May building by the mail man, who called upstairs to Mrs. Loretta May, divorced wife of Tony, who lives on the third floor. Mrs. May told him to leave it at the door and a little later Frances, the 3 year old daughter of the couple, took it upstairs and put it in her father's room. May decided not to open it until his birthday, but yesterday Eugene's curiosity prevailed upon the father.

Bomb Bursts in Hands.

Eugene unwrapped the package and took out the wooden box. As he put his finger in a groove to slide off the cover, smoke issued from it and he dropped it, saying, "Pa, look out!" Eugene ran for the door. May, however, picked up the box. Just at that moment it exploded. The blast was heard for blocks.

Supervising Nurse Peterson at the Augustana hospital, nearby, said she saw papers, smoke and dust coming from the window of May's home. The fire department was called and firemen found May and his son unconscious on the floor.

No trace of the box or its wrapping could be found by Capt. Thomas Condon and Lieut. Albert Mikas of the detective bureau. They found only a stamp that had been on the package. Mrs. May and the housekeeper, Anna Reinhardt, remembered that the package bore six 2 cent stamps and they recalled the mail order house label.

The police said it was the first time in many years that a bomb or infernal machine had seen sent through the mails in Chicago. Several years ago, it was recalled, a similar device was sent through the mail to the home of a girl near Muskegon, Mich., on the day before she was to have been married. Three persons were killed.

U. S. Called Into Inquiry.

Postal Inspector B. E. Alberti was summoned and an investigation begun. May, in moments of consciousness, said he had no idea who sent the deadly package to him and that he had been threatened by only one person in recent years. That was over a small civil suit.

The police sought a motive for the bombing in May's news stand business. He has the stand in the city hall at the LaSalle street doors, another at Chicago avenue and Clark street, and a third at Chicago avenue and State street. The stand at Chicago avenue and Clark street was formerly owned by John "Peno" Donohue, who went to the Joliet penitentiary on Oct. 31, 1922, when found guilty of robbery

Ask Prison About Donohue.

At the bureau of identification the records show Donohue is still in prison but there were reports that he was recently paroled. A message was sent to the penitentiary asking for information about Donohue. Capt. Condon gave orders for his arrest in case he is found to be at liberty.

Several years ago May was rated as a millionaire, but the estimates on his fortune dwindled after he signed bonds for Jack Johnson, colored, former

LINDSEY SAVED FROM MANNING CHURCH'S ANGER

Tried to Reply to Bishop's Attack.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Ben Lindsey, exponent of companionate marriage, was mauled and pommeled by angry church people in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine at the conclusion of this morning's services when he attempted to reply to a vitriolic attack from the pulpit by Bishop William T. Manning.

Men and women participated in the assault and order was not restored until six plain clothes policemen stationed in the congregation of 3,500 worshipers literally carried the Denver jurist down the wide carpeted aisle amid cries of "Lynch him!" and "Throw him out!"

Taken to Police Station.

After being rescued from the militant churchmen of America's largest cathedral, Lindsey was taken to Harlem police station, where he was charged with disturbing public worship and ordered to appear in Harlem court tomorrow.

The Denver man was joined at the police station by Arthur Garfield Hays, attorney, who, with Clarence Darrow, will defend him. Mr. Lindsey said tonight at his hotel that he would seek legal redress, intimating a slander action.

The disturbance in the cathedral is likely to result in a wide split in the Episcopal diocese, as Bishop Manning in his sermon scathingly denounced "that little group of clergymen who are doing all within their power to embarrass their bishop."

He was referring to those in his diocese who had overruled and denounced his edict forbidding them to listen to Judge Lindsey's address last Monday before the Churchman's association, an organization within the diocese over which the bishop has no official power.

Event Well Advertised.

The cathedral, built by contributions from America's wealthiest families and dollar gifts from every section of the land, stands high on a bluff overlooking Harlem and facing the Columbia university section of Manhattan. It was crowded this morning with a representative New York congregation. Men and women stood six deep in the rear of the auditorium, the choir stalls not occupied by singers were filled with worshipers, and some were on balconies in the nave just under the roof where the angel Gabriel stands with his trumpet, and reporters occupied a press table near the altar rail, for the bishop had announced he would speak on "companionate marriage and other issues," and the judge had made public his intention of attending and possibly replying.

Bishop Manning had advised the congregation that "this is a time for speaking out," and, continuing his sermon, had attacked Judge Lindsey by name for his teachings on what the bishop called "free love." The minister recalled from his pulpit that Judge Lindsey had been disbarred and forbidden to practice law in Colorado.

Lindsey Interrupts Service.

"As to his last book," shouted the bishop, "it is, in my regard, one of the most filthy, insidious and cleverly written pieces of propaganda ever published in behalf of lewdness, promiscuity, adultery, and unwarranted sexual gratification."

At the conclusion of the sermon Bishop Manning turned to face the altar for the benediction. Judge Lindsey, seated in a chair at the press table, climbed to its top and, with one hand clutching the iron grillwork guarding the pulpit, looked up at the bishop several feet above. His face flushed with anger, the Denver man shouted:

"Bishop Manning, you have lied about me. If this is not a house of justice, it is not a house of God. I ask for five minutes to answer your attack."

The bishop wheeled about and shouted: "We will now sing, 'Fight the good fight, with all your might; God is thy strength and God is thy might.'"

Congregation Assails Lindsey.

There was no response from the organist, but there was action in the front pew and throughout the congregation. Cries were heard of "Get him out!" "Take him out!" and a woman's voice shouted, "Lynch him!" Some one cried, "Good for you, bishop!" and an elderly man near the front called, "Bishop Manning, God bless you."

As if by common impulse, those nearest rushed at Lindsey and pulled him down from his clutch on the iron railing. Several worshipers clutched

Normal Buying Is the Best Way to Aid the Jobless

Looking back over the past century, you will find that the country has enjoyed prosperity in a far greater number of years than it has suffered depression. Some years have been extraordinarily good. In a few years things slumped and business limped along at a subnormal rate.

This year has been one of those undersized years. Compared to what it has been, business this year is down. Unemployment has resulted. The lessened demand for goods has decreased the demand for the labor of those who make the goods.

Everybody realizes that people out of work can't very well maintain the same living standards they would hold to if the pay check was arriving regularly. This deprives business of a certain amount of buying power that should normally be coming into the market.

But this actually appears to be only a minor consideration in the present condition. What seems to be holding business back is the curtailed buying activity of those whose incomes have been reduced little, if any. This is the buying power that should be brought back. Its return into the market will soon put the jobless back to work and help everybody again to experience prosperity.

at the disturber's legs, others pounded him in the middle, and one struck him on the head. The cathedral ushers and policemen in the congregation fought their way through the crowd and, grabbing Judge Lindsey by his arms and legs, made for the nearest exit, to the right of the pulpit.

Organist Loses Music.

Throughout the long length of the cathedral several hundred worshipers—men and women—followed muttering threats. Meanwhile Bishop Manning remained in his pulpit calling vainly for the hymn "Fight the Good Fight." The organist was so excited he could not find the music. Finally one of the assistants shouted "Hymn 113," whereupon there followed a peal of organ music and a burst of spontaneous applause, for the music and Judge Lindsey's disappearance through the door had arrived simultaneously.

After this the customary celebration of the holy communion took place. Bishop Manning assisting in the service. A short prayer followed and the congregation filed out buzzing its amazement at what had occurred.

Calls It "Free Love."

Bishop Manning in his sermon declared that those who had arranged for "a man of ex-Judge Lindsey's character" to speak to the churchman's association have "a lot to explain to the fathers and mothers of the diocese." He said the clergy of the Episcopal church had no right "to give the indorsement of their invitation to a man who stands publicly for legalized free love under cover of the term 'companionate marriage.'"

Continuing his attack, the bishop said: "To those in the church the seventh commandment is no more debatable than the sixth or the eighth This man's teachings are contrary to the precepts of Christianity. What I fear, is that he will use our voiced objections to obtain lecture engagements in boys' and girls' colleges and put before them by clever suggestion teachings tending to break down the moral defenses of our young."

Entrance Not Noted.

Just how Lindsey entered the church unrecognized was not explained, for cathedral authorities had requested police attendance and four uniformed policemen were stationed outside the doors and six detectives within. Nevertheless once inside, Lindsey and Simon Gould, director of the League for Public Discussion, walked up the aisle and took two chairs in the front row. In front of them was a reporters' table. The reporters recognized Lindsey and watched him as he took notes throughout the sermon. It was not until at the close of the sermon, when Bishop Manning launched his attack on the latest Lindsey book, that the ex-judge made any move to interrupt. Then followed the scene at the foot of the pulpit.

Once outside the cathedral, police on duty at the doors rushed toward the Denver ex-judge and the crowd followed. Finally those carrying him bundled him into an automobile and whirled him away to a police cell.

Bishop Files No Charges.

The police telephoned Bishop Manning and asked him to file charges against Mr. Lindsey, but the bishop replied: "I will file no charges." Consequently, instead of booking the former judge and setting the usual bail of $500, he was given a summons for disorderly conduct and instructed to appear for pleading Monday morning.

Later in the afternoon ex-Judge Lindsey departed for Albany, where he was scheduled to speak on companionate marriage tonight. In a statement before he left ex-Judge Lindsey said:

"I have a right to practice law in every state except Colorado. If I had been allowed to continue I would have said to Bishop Manning that I had every right to accept the legal fees for which I was disbarred and then I would have endeavored to answer the bishop's attack on my name and my teachings."

All Acquainted with Publicity.

Judge Lindsey has appeared much in the public print without great protest from himself; Bishop Manning also has been known to permit himself to be quoted for publication quite often Clarence Darrow will, if pressed, permit the use of his name in the newspapers and Arthur Garfield Hays is not known, among the press men of New York, as a person hard to interview.

DEAN INGE SAYS SCIENCE SPREADS GLOOMY NOTIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 7.—New ideas of heaven and hell and of a likely future for mankind were broadcast tonight by London's "gloomy dean"—Dean Inge of St. Paul's cathedral.

Declaring that the educated Christian today accepted Copernicus, Galileo, Newton, Darwin, Jeans, and Eddington, the dean added, "and he is prepared to accept Einstein if he could understand him. He has surrendered the geographical heaven and hell, and perhaps without fully realizing all that surrender implies."

The dean, continuing, said, "According to the second law of thermodynamics, from which our astronomers and physicists reluctantly confess they see no escape, the whole universe is slowly but surely running down like a clock. According to the newest theory the stars are stoked by the destruction of their own substance.

"I know of no stronger instance of the power of men to shut their eyes to unwelcome conclusions. This law ought to have killed the belief of an unending automatic progress, but it did not.

"It ought also to have been plain that there is a flat contradiction between the belief that the universe is running down like a clock and the dogmatic denial of the creation of time.

"For the clock that is running down must have been wound up, and presumably by an intelligent person who would probably have made the clock himself. But we have long enough lease to try every experiment and it is quite possible that in future mankind may be far more brilliant than in the past. Our future perhaps for millions of years is not in our own hands."

Fire Destroys 31 Pleasure Boats and Two Cottages

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Thirty-one pleasure boats, stored in the boathouse of the Minnesota Marine corporation, and two cottages at Orono, Lake Minnetonka, near here, were destroyed by fire late today. The loss was estimated at $250,000 by owners of the boathouse, who expressed belief a faulty stove pipe may have started the blaze. Twenty-six of the boats were owned by prominent members of Minneapolis society.

NEW YORK SAYS CAPONE IS HIDING THERE FROM U. S.

His Bodyguard, Volpe, to Face Lyle Today.

$55,725 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,725 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle. Of the $25,000 reward offered by The Tribune $10,000 will be paid any person who will give confidential information identifying the slayer of Lingle. All information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in room 503 Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

With Tony [Mops] Volpe, his henchman and bodyguard for years, facing trial today as a vagrant before Municipal Judge John H. Lyle in Felony court, Al Capone, Chicago's No. 1 public enemy, whose whereabouts have been a mystery since the campaign against gangsters started last June, was reported yesterday to be in New York City.

Officials of Dutchess county were informed by railroad detectives acquainted with Capone that he had detrained from a New York Central flyer at Poughkeepsie, accompanied by three Italians.

Believed Going Into Hiding.

They were met at the station by a large sedan, which whisked them away toward Manhattan. Officials here believe Capone will hide in Brooklyn, where his friend, Johnny Torrio, has been established for four years. He is believed to have gone into hiding because of the determined campaign of the federal authorities on income tax evasions.

Volpe, listed as public enemy No. 2 on the Chicago crime commission list, is expected to present the usual gangster plea for a change of venue when arraigned this morning before Judge Lyle.

Ponders Police Grand Jury.

Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court is considering a proposal that a special grand jury be summoned next month to investigate every police department in the county and continue its work from term to term until its task is completed.

Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the crime commission, has given Judge McGoorty a report which includes an extensive legal argument that the life of the special jury could be legally prolonged in this manner.

Ask $20,000 for Police Radio.

The efficiency of the radio division of the police department was shown in figures compiled yesterday for presentation to the finance committee of the city council in behalf of a request for a $20,000 appropriation for the installation of a third broadcasting unit, to be placed on the north side.

The police department now has 96 detective bureau squad cars and station flivvers equipped with radio receiving sets, the report showed. In October the daily average of calls broadcast was 170, with more than 30 arrests a day.

The average time of response was 3.16 minutes, with the average distance traveled by the squad cars to the scenes of crimes being 1.21 miles.

SURVIVORS TELL OF BEING SHIPWRECKED ON DESOLATE ISLAND

San Diego, Cal., Dec. 7.—(AP)—The story of how eight persons escaped in a skiff during a gale which hurled their 55 foot yacht onto the pinnacle rocks of Guadalupe islands was related late today when the U. S. S. Aaron Ward returned with nine survivors of the Eola.

The yacht dragged anchor while off the southern islands, Nov. 30, and was pounded to pieces by the surf. Rescue of the party from the barren island, 220 miles south of here, was affected Saturday by the aircraft carrier Langley and the destroyer Aaron Ward, engaged in a search for the missing San Pedro fishing boat Fidelity.

Those rescued are: L. Sayers, master of the ill fated yacht, Los Angeles; J. F. Frisbee; Lucille Frisbee, 19 Hazel Frisbee, 10; Mrs. Mary Johnson, daughter of Frisbee; Verlee Johnson, 3½ years old; and Mrs. Anna Frisbee, all of Los Angeles.

heavyweight champion, who was charged with a violation of the Mann act. The bond was for $75,000 and was forfeited when Johnson fled the country. Then May went back to his old occupation as a news vender.

For thirty years May was a figure on the north side. He signed many bonds in the Chicago avenue station and later in the federal courts and he was a money lender.

In his early days he sold flowers in the cabarets and after losing his money on bond forfeitures and real estate transactions and being forced into bankruptcy, he again was seen in the night clubs with his bouquets. The newsstands by day and the flower business by night brought him back to a comfortable financial situation. It was said, and at the time of his death he owned four apartment buildings, one of which has thirty flats.

May came to America from Italy when he was 10 years old. The police say they do not believe he received any Black Hand threats before the bomb was sent to his home.

Bomb at Sears-Roebuck Plant.

Another bombing of early yesterday morning on the loading platform of the shipping building at the main plant of Sears, Roebuck & Co., Arthington street and Homan avenue, was under investigation yesterday. That was a dynamite explosion, the police said, and the damage was estimated at $1,500.

No motive for it was discovered. Some remodeling had been done recently, the police said, but the contracting concern employed union labor and there was no trouble. The Employers' association, which specializes in investigating crimes directed against business concerns, and the "secret six" committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce joined in the investigation yesterday.

EDGEWATER BOMB

More than 100 windows were shattered last night by a bomb which was exploded in a blind alley in the rear of the Uptown garage, 6009-15 Broadway, and only a short distance from the rear of the Fleetwood apartment hotel, 6026 Winthrop avenue. The blast aroused the Edgewater district over an area of more than a square mile, and a score of guests in the hotel were panic stricken.

The garage is owned by Fred Richman, 832 Argyle street, who built and sold it and then was forced to repossess it. He told police he knew of no reason for the attack.

DRUG STORES CLOSED, GAS STATIONS ALSO, IN BLUE LAW VILLAGE

Bellows Falls, Vt., Dec. 7.—(AP)—This village of 5,000 inhabitants was tied up today with a puritan-patterned blue law ribbon of its own design Even the sick without medicine could buy none.

Every drug store, garage, bakery, filling station, tobacco shop, and news stand was closed. All stores posted a sign: "Closed Sunday; blue laws in effect." Restaurants and hotels were the only places open.

Last Sunday 28 business men were haled to court charged with doing prohibited business on the Sabbath. Their trial is set for Dec. 16.

HAVE SCIENTISTS AT LAST CREATED SYNTHETIC LIFE?

Dr. G. W. Crile May Hold Secret in Test Tube.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—The secret of life, for which science has been searching for years, may lie in a test tube in the biological laboratory of the Cleveland Clinic Foundation, over which the noted scientist, Dr. G. W. Crile, is the guiding genius.

DR. G. W. CRILE. [A. P. Photo.]

Penetrating to a slight degree the wall of secrecy that has been erected about what may be one of the most startling of scientific discoveries, a reporter today was able to catch a glimpse of the unnamed thing that may verify certain radical scientific theories concerning the nature of the force called life.

This promise might be fulfilled if the creature that is said to live and breathe in the biologist's test tube be a thing without parents and reputedly born in defiance of all accepted and recognized processes of procreation, does not disappoint its human creators.

Life Allied to Electricity?

It may unlock the door behind which is hidden the long sought proof or disproof there is—that life is nothing more or less than a combination of material elements motivated by a force that is closely allied to electricity, if indeed it is not electricity as man knows it.

No one directly connected with the experiment would make the statement that life actually had been created in a test tube. But from one person who has assisted in the experiment from its inception there came the reluctant statement that "Something approximating life" has been produced by mechanical means and that something amazing and revolutionary has taken place here.

Dr. Crile was not in the city today and the reporter was assured that there is small probability that he could be induced to speak of the discovery. Dr. William E. Lower, Dr. Crile's partner in the laboratory, declared that the matter is not yet ready for the public.

Scientists May Hear Facts.

Dr. Lower, however, expressed the opinion that Dr. Crile would be prepared to lay his facts before the American Society for the Advancement of Science, which meets here during Christmas week, but could give no assurance that he would permit the purport of his report to that body to reach the public.

It was said that at that time Dr. Crile would ask this gathering of learned men to help him interpret the meaning of what he has discovered and that he will not be surprised if they pronounce it synthetic life.

From sources outside the clinic, certain facts concerning the discovery were obtained. Neither confirmation nor denial was forthcoming when this information was laid before Dr. Crile's assistants.

Treated Electrically.

This is what is said to have taken place in Dr. Crile's laboratory:

Brain tissues taken from a freshly killed animal were reduced to ashes by electrical heat. From the resulting substance certain salts and other elements were obtained. To this substance was added protein and perhaps some other elements and chemicals. The whole then was treated electrically.

Before the eyes of the astonished scientists there appeared a "thing" with characteristics of a living cell or protozoa.

This "thing" possessed the power of procreation. It also possessed and utilized the power of procreation by fission, or cell division. It fed upon the protein in the test tube, consuming it as other unicellular animals do their nourishment.

Susceptible to Narcotics.

In addition to this it was found that the "thing" was susceptible to narcotics, becoming dormant when subjected to certain drugs and later recovering.

It was declared that, owing to the care taken in the experiment, no living thing could possibly have entered the ingredients of the concoction.

Also it is understood that the experiment has been made repeatedly for the benefit of other scientists who are sworn to secrecy.

One hundred and fifty nurses representing nearly 50 hospitals today will be selling Christmas seals, which support the year round anti-tuberculosis program of the Chicago Tuberculosis institute. The seals cost a penny apiece. Officials of the institute have asked redoubled efforts this year in the sale of the "Good Health to All" stickers.

TOWN PRESIDENT MAKES HIS OWN OAK PARK ARREST

Charles H. Crysler, president of the village board of Oak Park, yesterday personally arrested an allegedly intoxicated gateman at the Scoville avenue crossing of the Lake street branch of the Rapid Transit company.

The gateman, James Corbett, 60 years old, 5019 South La Salle street, was held at the police station, and ordered arraigned Tuesday on charges of intoxication before Justice of the Peace Paul R. Wick. President Crysler will appear as complainant. The arrest followed Corbett's alleged oral abuse of the president's wife a few minutes earlier. Corbett denied he had been drinking, but police found a whisky bottle, almost empty, in his coat.

According to President Crysler, the Scoville avenue crossing is one of the most dangerous in Oak Park, and adequate protection is necessary.

STUDENTS BURN BILBO'S EFFIGY ON THE CAMPUS

University, Miss., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Chancellor J. N. Powers of the University of Mississippi expressed regret tonight over the reported burning of an effigy bearing the placard "Down with Bilbo" on the university campus last night.

"I have not yet had time to make an investigation," the chancellor said. "Of course, I am indeed sorry. The regrettable incident occurred in my absence."

Gov. Bilbo was at his Poplarville plantation tonight and no statement was obtained from him.

The effigy was hoisted in flames to the top of a flagpole, in view of hundreds of students.

The university and several other state operated colleges in Mississippi were recently dropped by the Southern Association of Colleges from its accredited lists of schools because of what the association described as political interference by Gov. Bilbo.

The egg, similar to those discovered by Roy Chapman Andrews, noted explorer, is displayed by W. B. Jernigan of the Colloidal Phosphate corporation, the newspaper said.

Nine Deaths Raise County Toll to 1,044.

One woman was fatally injured, and four other persons, including her husband and daughter, were hurt, when their automobile was overturned last night in a collision with another machine at California and Touhy avenues. The dead victim was Mrs. Rose Morrissey, 34 years old, 636 South Euclid avenue, Oak Park, wife of John A. Morrissey, president of the Chicago Rivet and Machine company, Cicero.

The injured beside the husband and daughter, Rose Marie, 9 years old, were Mrs. Morrissey's sister, Miss Helen McGrath, 32 years old, 708 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park, and Mr. Morrissey's mother, Mrs. Mary H. Morrissey, who suffered a fracture of the shoulder.

Woman Dies at Hospital.

Clarence A. Hemphill, 2944 Grant street, Evanston, driver of the second car, reported the accident to the police. At the time none of the five persons in the overturned car was believed critically hurt. All went to St. Francis hospital in Evanston, however. Shortly afterward, Mrs. Morrissey died.

This death and eight others in Cook county increased the motor toll for the year to 1,044. The victims:

Richard De Groot, 70 years old, caretaker at the Casa Del Mar cafe, 7411 South Shore drive. Killed at 51st and State streets when struck by an automobile driven by Matthew Dyarer, 25 years old, 10900 South Troy street. De Groot was attempting to board a street car. Dyarer was held.

Died at the county hospital of a fractured skull, received when struck Friday at Racine avenue and Washington boulevard by an automobile driven by Robert McSweeney, 36 years old, 165 West Erie street. McSweeney was released by the Desplaines street police on his own recognizance.

Mrs. Fanny Pierce, 50 years old, 5807 Dorchester avenue. Died at the Illinois Central hospital of injuries received on Oct. 31 when the car in which she was riding with her husband was in a head on collision with an automobile driven by Harvey Christenson, 5419 Harper avenue, at the outer drive and 38th street. Christenson was charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

Edward Ward, 65 years old, 209 West North avenue. Died at his home of injuries received on Nov. 16 when struck by an automobile driven by William Bolle of 844 East 40th street. Ward was crossing Madison street at Bishop street when hit.

John B. Grant, 60 years old, an inmate of the Oak Forest infirmary. Killed when he stumbled and fell in the path of an automobile at Cicero avenue and 161st street, Oak Forest. The automobile was driven by Charles Hajek, 2225 South 58th court, Cicero.

Unidentified man, about 65 years old, right eye missing. Killed when struck by the automobile of Conrad Maas, 4335 North Narragansett avenue, at Merrimac and Belmont avenues.

John Kopedzy, 31 years old, 5804 South Kenneth avenue, was captured in a five block chase last night after his automobile had struck and seriously injured Frank Peters, 48 years old, 9705 South Seeley avenue, who was waiting for a street car at 81st street and Ashland avenue. Jack Gronner, 5000 Drexel boulevard, riding on the front platform of a street car, commandeered a passing car which forced Kopedzy to the curb at 76th street and Ashland avenue.

Mrs. Charles Peters of Westmont in Du Page county, was struck by a hit and run driven yesterday while returning to her home from a neighbor's two blocks away. Mrs. Peters was the mother of a 15 year old boy.

BOY OF 15, OVER 6 FEET TALL, HAS A CONSCIENCE

A 15 year old school boy, six feet two inches tall and weighing 165 pounds, walked into the Rogers Park police station last night and asked that he be arrested for holding up a man "because his conscience wouldn't let him go home."

The boy identified himself as Norman Critchfield, 1240 Glenlake avenue, a pupil in the Hayt school, Granville and Greenview avenues, and said that he held up a pedestrian at Rosemont and Whipple street at 6:30 p. m. with a wooden pistol and had taken the man's watch and chain. He gave the toy gun and watch to Sergt. William Behan.

Behan recalled that Matt Schlocker, 5031 North Harding avenue, had reported being held up at the address the boy gave and he was called to the station, where he identified the boy, the watch, and the wooden pistol.

BELGIAN QUEEN VISITS VICTIMS IN 'FOG DEATH' BELT

3 More Die; Rescinds Ban on Autopsies.

BY ANN SOMERS HOUSE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Dec. 7.—Queen Elizabeth of Belgium went into the Meuse valley region this morning to visit the villagers, who are panic stricken by the grim horror of the mysterious asphyxiations which have spread fear and desolation in the Liege region.

Three more "fog deaths"—bringing the total to 67—were reported this morning in the village of Jameppe near Liege, and hundreds are reported to be gravely ill.

The queen, who is a medical expert, having served as a nurse during the world war, held a long conference with the province governor and three officials appointed by the government for an official inquiry, upon her arrival at Liege.

Will Perform Autopsies.

After visiting several villages and spending the afternoon at the bedside of a number of victims, the queen returned to Brussels tonight and the government officially announced that it has decided to perform autopsies on several victims. Orders for autopsies had been rescinded yesterday by local health officials, who declared the victims were nearly all old or middle aged and the deaths were due to the effects of the fog. Burial permits had been issued before the new order for autopsies was sent from Brussels.

It is believed that the decision has been taken under pressure of public opinion, and it is understood that the queen's intervention had much to do with it. The officials and doctors are still mystified by the mysterious malady and declare they are unable to explain the cause of the catastrophe. The autopsies will be performed tomorrow.

Authorities today visited a number of plants within a radius of 20 miles to investigate the possibility of poisonous fumes escaping and spreading throughout the district.

Europa Is Fogbound.

CHERBOURG, France, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Fog today delayed the steamship Europa, German greyhound of the seas, which for 24 hours has been at a standstill somewhere in the North sea.

The Europa was scheduled to leave Cherbourg Roads at 7 o'clock this evening. It now is expected to reach port at 3 p. m. tomorrow, leaving again for New York at 7 p. m.

The Cunard liner Aurania also was delayed 24 hours, while the eastbound America wirelessed she will not reach Cherbourg until late tomorrow. She was due here yesterday.

LOS ANGELES TO GET 15 MILLIONS IN FEDERAL WORK

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Los Angeles and a few other cities in southern California can expect to tap the federal treasury for $15,000,000 to be expended in erecting federal buildings in the next few years, according to William Arthur Newman, engineer for the treasury department on the Pacific coast.

Funds for a new Los Angeles postoffice and federal court building to cost about $10,000,000 are expected to be obtained from the current congress. Other postoffices netted by California's two senators and southern California congressmen include a $1,000,000 postoffice building for Long Beach; buildings of $250,000 each for San Bernardino, Santa Ana, and Pomona; one of $200,000 for El Centro and others of similar cost for Glendale, Burbank, Sawtelle, and Pasadena. Most of the erection work should take place in 1931, Newman forecast.

SIXTY MILLIONS FOR PUBLIC JOBS IN CHICAGO AREA

City and County Program Surpasses U. S.

the Ogden avenue link, $5,460,000; South Halsted street bridge, $2,700,000; new floors on eight bridges, $1,000,000; added street lights, $2,000,000; traffic signal lights, $500,000; 47th street subway, $300,000; extension of Indianapolis avenue, $400,000; new playgrounds, $500,000, and public benefits on major street improvements, $4,310,000.

The sources of the funds indicate that the public officials will have the cash not only to provide the improvements but also to relieve unemployment.

Hope for Start in Spring.

Comparatively little construction can be begun until early spring. Even then, it was pointed out, a start on construction would depend on whether the preliminaries, such as plans, specifications, advertising and award of contracts, have been taken care of in the meantime.

The voters approved the bond issues on Nov. 4. On Dec. 4 Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe asked the city council finance committee for an appropriation of the $3,500,000 in bonds for the State street bridge, the $2,700,000 for the South Halsted street bridge and the $1,000,000 for the floor repairs on eight bridges.

At that same meeting Chapman & Cutler, lawyers specializing in bond approvals, sent a letter to the committee saying that the bond ordinance for the State street and South Halsted street bridges, as submitted to the electorate, was defective. The lawyers suggested that these bond ordinances be amended to provide specifically for tax levies to pay the interest and principal on the bonds.

Question of Appropriation.

Before the meeting Ald. John S. Clark, chairman of the finance committee, asked an opinion of the corporate counsel on whether the city council has the power to "appropriate at any time of the year proceeds of bond issues approved at the referendum."

Instead of a direct reply to the inquiry the corporation counsel submitted an opinion he had previously presented to President Faherty of the board of local improvements. This did not answer the question, according to aldermen present, and Assistant Corporation Counsels Leonard Ettelson and Edward C. Higgins, who were at the meeting, declined to given an oral opinion that the council can legally appropriate the bond money before Jan. 1.

Harris S. Keeler of the bureau of public efficiency, however, told the aldermen that such an appropriation would be illegal and contracts awarded under it would be invalid.

Committee to Meet Today.

Mr. Keeler cautioned against action which might tie up the bond funds for many months. A subcommittee was appointed to consider the matter, and the finance committee is to decide what it will do in a session at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The county has not made much more progress with the $21,190,000 of construction money. Estimates of revenue available for appropriation next year have been prepared. These are to be considered next Wednesday. The fiscal year of the county started on Dec. 1, while the city's fiscal year begins Jan. 1. The county, lawyers say, is now at a period when there could be no question about its power to make an appropriation, but the new county board was installed only last Monday.

Besides, there is a new county treasurer in Joseph McDonough, who was also sworn in last Monday. The treasurer's office has not yet been able to tell the county officials what cash balances it has in various funds.

The school board budget, which contains $16,100,000 for new schools, is to be formally presented to the trustees at their next session on Wednesday.

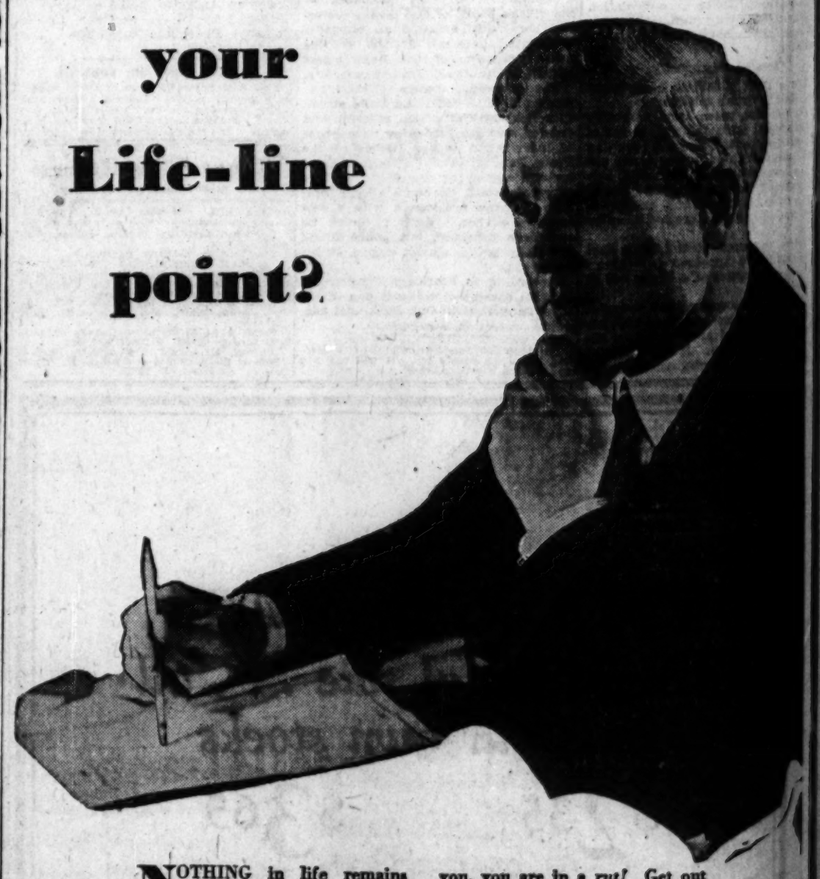
WHICH WAY does your Life-line point?



NOTHING in life remains stationary—either you go ahead or fall back. Will you be glad for the crumbs from the successful man's table or will you be the successful man?

Specialized training is often the deciding factor. No worker is too old or too young to learn to do his job better. Few are the jobs that study cannot improve. If your present job is unsatisfactory, training can at least prepare you for a better one.

If your present salary satisfies you, you are in a rut! Get out of it! Ask yourself, "Will my salary increase to care for the increasing cost of living as years go by? Am I sure that some smarter young person will not come along and by sheer merit and knowledge take my job from me?" If you cannot honestly give a satisfactory answer, turn today to the Tribune Want Ad Section, where schools, teaching subjects of all kinds, offer you the solution to this all-important problem.

GOOD FELLOWS URGED TO MAKE VISITS IN PERSON

Veterans Give Advice to Recruits in Service.

The recruits in the Good Fellow Christmas work who will make their first visits to the homes of the poor week after next might listen to a few words of advice from veterans in the organization. The Good Fellows have been operating since 1909, and there are thousands who have learned this Santa Claus business from years of experience.

The Good Fellow headquarters in THE TRIBUNE offices at Dearborn and Madison streets yesterday, issued the following bulletin, somewhat of an annual message to those who deliver baskets to impoverished homes on Christmas Eve:

"By all means, make the Christmas visit personally. Give yourself the chance to enjoy the smile on the face of a child whom some one has remembered. Don't discharge your responsibility with a greenback. And don't send money, food, or clothing to THE TRIBUNE for Christmas delivery. The occasion demands toys, nuts, candies, food—and you, in person.

Condition of Home No Issue.

"If you find the home clean and respectable, do not conclude that there is not real need. Such cases are often the most pitiful. If you find dirty shiftlessness, do not let your antagonism to it cause you to penalize still more the helpless children who are its victims.

"Give toys by all means, but not of the expensive variety nor excessive in amount. After buying a reasonable amount of simple, durable toys, if you feel able to spend more, use the surplus for food or children's warm clothing.

"If for any reason you find that you cannot visit the children assigned to your care, please notify the Good Fellow headquarters promptly, so that they may not be overlooked."

Give Cash for Necessities.

Cash donations are being received at the Good Fellow headquarters, not for Christmas baskets, but for necessities for destitute families through the winter or until they become self-supporting. These contributions, without any deductions for overhead, reach families whose needs and worthiness have been investigated by social welfare workers. The expenses of administrating the fund are paid by THE TRIBUNE.

Lump sum cash donations, ranging from $1 to hundreds of dollars, now total $14,596. In addition, $20,628 has been paid in pledges for a total of $59,796. Individuals and groups have adopted 171 families as their wards for the period of the unemployment emergency.

$350 from Goodman Benefit.

From the Art institute of Chicago yesterday came a check for $350.75, the proceeds of a benefit performance in the Goodman theater on Sunday night, Dec. 3. There are many such benefits planned for the holiday season by various groups.

The employés of the National Inspection company, 176 West Adams street, are raising $40 a month to aid a woman and her three small children in maintaining a home while her husband is confined in a hospital. This is but one instance of scores of fellow workers who are helping families of those who are without work.

If you want to help, either by delivering a basket to the poor on Christmas eve or by contribution to the fund for rescuing families, there is a coupon in a nearby column for your convenience.

Witnesses Identify Five in $60,000 Clearing Robbery

Six witnesses to the robbery of the State Bank of Clearing Saturday, in which five bandits armed with shotguns and submachine guns escaped with $59,600, yesterday identified photographs of five men in the police bureau of identification as the robbers and Chief of Detectives John Norton immediately sent orders to all police stations to "bring them in."

SALLY BELIEVES THIS PLEA WILL BRING JOB OFFER

Mother Tells Why She Needs Work.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Many Chicagoans start out this morning to get their Christmas shopping done in conscientious fashion, while many of their neighbors wish they had jobs to earn the bare necessities of life. Sally Joy Brown, who has read letters innumerable from the jobless since she began her task of finding jobs for them, believes that if some of those who are blithely going shopping knew about a letter she got yesterday, some of the Christmas spirit might be poured out on the young mother who wrote it.

"My husband, who has been in the hospital most all year, is home now and I have to care for him just like a baby," she wrote. "I also have a baby of three. You know I have all I can do to care for them, to be nurse, housekeeper, and doctor. But it is also up to me to get them food. I have sold most all my bed clothing and a lot of my furniture. I have sold until I haven't anything left to sell. I did that to keep from asking for help—now I have to do something at once.

Wants Work to Buy Food.

"What I am asking for is work that I can do and be home most of the time. If I can get housework three days in the week, that will buy food. I will be very thankful for anything you can do."

Others are in practically as desperate straits as this young mother, who explains that she is 31 years old. Another of approximately the same age writes:

"Please may my children be remembered by you for Christmas? My husband is out of work and has been most of this year. I am now behind in my rent and can't help myself. Have a half day job which helps us to exist somewhat. My children need clothes for school. There are six children, three of my own and three of my sister's. While scattering sunshine to the needy, please don't forget us."

Needs Job to Support Three.

S. P. G. is a young man of 25, with three dependents—a father sick in a hospital, a mother and a younger sister. He has had two years' experience in stock room and filing work, and one year as junior salesman for office equipment. His sister will have to quit school for lack of carfare and something to eat unless he lands a job quickly.

Mrs. G. is a young mother with a year old baby and another expected in March. She writes to Sally Joy Brown that "I am sickly, my husband has been out of work a long time and now our last cent is gone. We owe money to the loan company, and other bills. Our rent is due, no money for baby's milk, and we had to sell our furniture. My husband will take any kind of work and this is the first time we ever asked for help."

Young Father Wants "Heavy Work."

One young couple describing themselves as unusually well qualified write a joint plea for assistance but not charity—they want only work. The man is mechanically inclined and "can do any kind of work, especially heavy work." His wife has been a dictaphone operator and can handle all kinds of office jobs. They are the parents of one small child.

Another mother, Mrs. W. M., begs for a job for her husband so that she and her two children may be able to eat after their small store of food is completely gone. They are two months behind in their rent but neither she nor her husband has been able to secure employment.

From West 13th street the father of two children pens a plea for any kind of work to keep his little family even modestly supported. There has been little to eat of late, and the man himself is badly in need of clothing. One child is 3 year old, the other a year and a half.

Three Unable to Fnd Jobs.

Arthur R., 20 years old, writes to say that neither his father, his uncle, nor himself has been able to find work for the last year. The boy has experience selling shoes, in a print shop, and in shipping and packing.

Still another who insists he is not looking for charity—only work—is a bricklayer, father of a 5 year old boy, whose wife is helping support them on her stipend of $6 a week. The child is being supported by relatives, and his father is eager and anxious to get a job and take over the care of his family again.

All jobs reported to Sally Joy Brown are being distributed through the Illinois Free Employment service at 116 North Dearborn street. While in that Christmas shopping mood don't delay reporting to Sally, at Superior 0100, any job you know of, temporary or otherwise.

POLICEMAN'S SON HELD AS SUSPECT.

Maurice Whitfield, 26 years old, 5043 South Park way, and Jack Jackson, 24, of 4808 Forrestville avenue, both colored, were shown to robbery victims yesterday at the detective bureau. Whitfield is the son of an Indianapolis policeman who was killed by bandits.

RUSSIA'S STRIDES IN AGRICULTURE TOLD BY EXPERT

Finds Soviets Producing on Vast Scale.

BY PAUL POTTER.

A first hand picture of the steps Russia is taking in trying to industrialize the farming of its vast empire in five years to a point that Americans have required a century to reach has been brought to Chicago by Dr. J. G. Dickson of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

Commissioned to study from an economic viewpoint the soviet's wholesale entrance into production of cereal grains by the United States department of agriculture, Dr. Dickson has just returned from nine months in Europe. His report on the status of the "bread basket of Europe" is being studied by both Secretary of Agriculture Hyde and the federal farm board, for its possible evaluation of what lies ahead in the international competition faced by American grain growers.

Americans More Favored.

"I cannot help but comment upon the relatively more favorable position of the American farmer than that of any European ruralist whose economic condition I observed," said Dr. Dickson. "Agricultural depression here is nothing compared with conditions in such countries as Russia, Bulgaria, and Jugo-Slavia. There is no financial and industrial support in those countries as our farmers have, and their outlook is much less favorable."

Russia's immense new factories seemed like great shells, for the people are still too near the soil to be mechanically minded. I don't believe that, industrially, Russia will be a world competitor in the next century—but in agriculture, they are making almost incredible progress toward their goal."

Cereal Production Is Great.

This progress, he explained, is not without great mistakes. Having little live stock, their farming consists almost entirely of cereal production "in enormous quantities." Soy beans that are grown in southern Illinois and Indiana are being sown in great areas of Russia that correspond in climate to that in North Dakota. Cotton is being put out in climates like those in Illinois.

"These two crops, as well as wheat, are being planted in unheard of proportions," he declared. "Tremendous is their output of farm products this year, the first harvest of grain under the five year plan. The Russian wheat crop this year reached the pre-war level, with a production of 1,180,000,000 bushels—and only of four varieties. Of this but 55,000,000 bushels has been exported, and we can expect but little more to be shipped out the rest of the winter.

He explained that about 600,000,000 bushels of wheat was still in the hands of peasants, and since they preferred grain to the soviet currency, would probably remain in their possession.

Holds Back Food Supply.

Last year, he said, Russia flooded Europe with apples, but this year is holding back most of its food supply. He declares that the legislative walls being set up in European countries against importation of foodstuffs was caused by the "general overproduction of farm products and surplus farm labor throughout other European grain producing countries.

"Russia," he concludes, "is producing on a scale that will continue to be a world factor in agriculture and this fact must be taken into consideration in our own agricultural program."

Three Others Get Ten Years in Prison.

the organization of the industrial party, the court found this party was "not connected with the masses and had no support from the laboring population and peasants."

ENGLAND, FRANCE ACCUSED.

The amazing trial of the eight Russian engineers charged with one of the most comprehensive plots on record for overthrow of the soviet regime began Nov. 25.

From the first both prosecution and defense charged that France and England were prime movers in the plot to bring about armed intervention in Russia and the downfall of the soviet system of government. The names of former President Raymond Poincare of France, foreign Minister Aristide Briand, Henri Deterding, the British oil magnate; "Lord Churchill" (believed to have referred to Winston Churchill, and "Lawrence of Arabia" were brought prominently to the fore as active conspirators.

Charged Armed Invasion.

The defendants charged that French statesmen had planned to bring about a diplomatic "incident" on the Russo-Rumanian frontier that would lead to an excuse for war and the marching of an army of from 600,000 to 700,000 men into Russia. Poland, Rumania and Jugo-Slavia, it was charged, were to supply the bulk of the army, while soldiers from some of the Baltic states and white Russians in exile were to make up the rest.

From the first the prosecution sought to make the trial an "example" to the Russian people. Elaborate steps were taken to diffuse it to the uttermost parts of Russia.

Bert Lytell to Face Court Today for Tax Penalty

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Bert Lytell, actor, is slated to appear before Federal Judge William James tomorrow for punishment on a charge of evading income tax payments. Lytell recently entered a guilty plea in United States District court. The government charged he had paid only $1,381 of a $4,964 tax covering his $66,922 earnings in 1925. If precedent in cases of actors is followed Lytell will be fined and charged an excess of the unpaid sum.

Tire Valve Fixes Guilt of Killer of Taxicab Owner

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Dec. 7.—The owner of three taxicabs was found murdered in the underbrush near the suburbs of Sao Paulo yesterday, and the motive, it is declared, was that of robbery. One of the taxicabs belonging to the murdered man was found in a different part of the city today. The police arrested a suspect and found on his person a small box of needlevalves from which one was missing, and it was discovered that this missing needlevalve was in one of the tires of the abandoned taxi. This needle had been changed and showed finger prints of the suspect, and so clinched the case.

HASTY BURIAL OF SOVIET DIPLOMAT ADDS TO MYSTERY

Hint Cheka Ended Life of Red Traitor.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Dec. 7.—Less than 24 hours after his sudden demise at the embassy, the members of the soviet diplomatic mission to Rome yesterday quietly and with dispatch laid their first secretary, Eugene Levine, in his grave.

Their colleagues in the other embassies were mystified to read the brief obituary in a single Roman paper, "a dolorous announcement" on behalf of the bolshevik ambassador, and see no reference to the death of the diplomat in other papers.

They were more mystified when those among them who are on calling terms with their Red comrades learned that Levine was in the ground before they had a chance to leave cards of condolence. The proper procedure in Italy during cold weather, is to wait 24 hours, and in fact to get permission to bury before a lapse of 24 hours is extremely difficult.

Just at noon yesterday a plain motor hearse drove to the gates of the embassy and the coffin, covered with a red pall and red carnations, was quickly shoved in. Ambassador Kursky and his staff then climbed into a file of limousines, and in 20 minutes the Odyssey of the quiet little gentleman named Levine, who seemed pleasant and who spoke several languages, was ended.

Rome Police Powerless.

The earth over this coffin is no heavier than the secrecy which still surrounds the circumstances of his death. No official explanation whatever has been given, even the Tass telegraphic agency version Friday night of suicide over family difficulties has been forgotten. As the embassy enjoys complete extraterritoriality no declaration to the police was necessary, and the burial certificate was a matter of mere routine.

The funeral, although it might have seemed hurried to some, was in reality quite elaborate for a person, whom many in Rome whispered was a traitor, sentenced to death and executed by his fellow diplomats.

From a source to which the goings on in all but the very inner sanctums of the bolshevik embassy are known, I heard tonight three versions of the sudden taking off of Comrade Levine. These are the versions variously believed by the minor officials of the soviet mission.

Cheka Enters Picture.

For two hours early Friday afternoon they were aware of an important conference in Levine's office. Whether Ambassador Kursky was present there seems to be some argument, but it is certain that three attachés who are known to be agents of the cheka were at the conference.

A shot was heard and one chekist emerged stating that Levine had shot himself.

According to one version Levine was asked to explain his conduct and was then offered a revolver, like the officers of the former czarist army in the old days when they were found wanting.

The second version is that the secretary was told that he would have to return to Moscow, and as he turned to leave the room, was shot down by a chekist who was anxious to see no repetition of the Gregory Bessedowsky incident in Paris a year ago, when the soviet envoy to France jumped the embassy walls and talked freely about soviet activities in France, to the embarrassment of Moscow.

Drag in Moscow Trial.

The third version is that the chekist executioners used a wild argument about the trial of the eight engineers at Moscow as a pretense for a shooting affray in which Levine was the intended victim.

No questions were asked by the rest of Ambassador Kursky's little brood, apparently. But it is known that there has been a leak at the soviet embassy which has greatly inconvenienced some Italian Reds for whom the Fascists have been hunting despite the close trade relations they enjoy with the soviet embassy.

The three known chekist cars that followed the funeral hearse add irony to the situation if Levine really died a traitor's death by actual execution or "induced suicide." Other diplomats point out that if Levine really shot himself for love in the embassy, he played his government a dirty trick.

DROWN IN FOX RIVER

Clayton Wilkening (left), 7 years old, and Junior Daniels, 9 years old, both of Elgin, who were drowned after playing on the ice on the Fox river.

Dynamite Ice

A 25 pound charge of dynamite which cleared the Fox river of ice for 100 yards yesterday afternoon enabled Elgin police to recover the body of John F. Daniels Jr., 9 years old, who was drowned with Clayton Wilkening, 7½ year old, Saturday when they fell through a hole in the ice at the foot of Slade avenue. The Wilkening boy's body was recovered late Saturday night after police had followed their footprints to a four foot hole in the ice, but young Daniels' body had drifted 100 feet downstream. The water is 12 feet deep at this point.

URGE COUNTRY TO RECOGNIZE SOVIET RUSSIA

New York, Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Recognition of soviet Russia by this country as a sound business policy in the present condition of unemployment was approved unanimously in a resolution adopted by nearly 200 members of the conference for progressive labor action, which held its final session today. The resolution called for the defense of the labor movement against all attacks by capitalists and imperialists against the Russian experiment.

"In view of developments," the resolution read, "the labor men and women and their labor sympathizers in this eastern regional conference of the C. P. L. reaffirm their conviction that the experiment in a planned economy under workers' control being worked out in soviet Russia is of the utmost significance for the workers everywhere, their faith in the ultimate success of that experiment and their firm determination to oppose all efforts on the part of the militarists and imperialists to destroy or weaken it."

ITALIAN GENERAL "LOSES" FENCING MATCH TO DUCE

ROME, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini today showed himself to be an expert fencer.

At the conclusion of a ceremony of consigning a banner to the Fascist anti-aircraft corps, the premier before his Black Shirt officers took part in a sharp match with Gen. Vaccari.

Vaccari, who is a skilled fencer, was forced several times to admit himself "toccato"—touched.

The officers loudly cheered the fighting premier.

MEAT DEALER IS ROBBED.

Two bandits stole $140 yesterday when they held up Martin Obermaier, 1816 New England avenue, a wholesale meat dealer, at North and New England avenues.

ENVOY, LAST LINK OF WILSON STATE, KILLED IN PARIS

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 7.—The last vestige of the state of Georgia, created in 1918 under Woodrow Wilson's 14 points to enable the Caucasus to secede from the soviets and provide a buffer state against the embryonic nation of Armenia that was expected to be established, was obliterated this afternoon when a communist workman assassinated Louis Ramichvili, who still maintained the title of minister to Paris from the defunct Tiflis government. Georgia became merged with the system of Russian soviet republics in 1921.

M. Ramichvili was en route from his home in the suburbs of Paris to attend an anti-soviet political meeting of refugees near the Place d'Italie. As he alighted from a taxicab on the crowded street a man behind the kiosk at the Metro underground station stepped up and fired three bullets into the minister.

Gendarmes arrested the assassin, who stated that his name was Tchanouk Vantze Parmeny, a member of the Russian Communist party. He was born in Georgia.

"This is not a political crime, but revenge," the slayer told the police.

"I worked in an automobile factory at Audincourt with a number of other Georgians. We have a secret committee of employés headed by a worker named Bracavich. Ramichvili visited the factory a month ago and told Pracavich to fire me, which he did. I borrowed money for railway fare and to buy myself a gun and came here to get him."

Despite the statement of the assassin, the police said they believed the shooting was due to the bitterness between the Russian exiles in Paris and the soviet government. They said the slayer's hands were too well manicured to be those of a factory worker.

The minister plenipotentiary was unable to make a statement as he never regained consciousness before his death. Ramichvili was active among the revolutionists in Russia before the war and was a Socialist member in the second duma. He was named Georgian minister to Paris when the republic was established in 1918 and continued to hold the title and office ever since, being one of the chief leaders of Georgian activities here.

HOOVER STAKES POLITICAL LIFE ON PROSPERITY

Sees Re-election Should Good Times Return.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Republican organization leaders generally now are saying that President Hoover's political future depends upon the turn of economic events in the course of the next year.

If prosperity should be substantially restored within a year Mr. Hoover, they predict, will be renominated with virtually no opposition and will be re-elected.

If, however, hard times should continue without material improvement for another twelve months, Mr. Hoover, the leaders concede, will be seriously threatened with defeat in the 1932 election and might even fail of renomination.

Views of President.

There is a widespread belief in Republican circles that this is the view of the situation taken by Mr. Hoover himself. It is the understanding in such quarters that Mr. Hoover is staking his political future entirely on the return of prosperity. To bring back good times is his one big objective, the one public question compared with which prohibition and all other public questions pale into insignificance.

Republican leaders, including many of the wet persuasion, do not expect the President to espouse any material modification of national prohibition, despite the overwhelming evidence of a widespread reaction against the rigors of the Volstead régime.

Their reasoning is that Mr. Hoover could not advocate repeal of the 18th amendment without repudiating his acceptance speech and that he could not hope to win the wets without advocating repeal or to hold the drys without virtually standing pat on prohibition as is.

Satisfactory to Drys.

Hence the belief that Mr. Hoover will take a position on prohibition satisfactory to the drys, relying upon the restoration of prosperity before election time to insure him the support of the wets, notwithstanding his prohibition attitude.

That the restoration of prosperity would cover a multitude of shortcomings of the President on prohibition in the eyes of the wets is the firm conviction of most of the Hoover lieutenants, who were deeply impressed with the extent to which prosperity promises in 1928 caused the wets to stifle preference for Al Smith and vote for Mr. Hoover after all.

If hard times should continue, however, up to the year of the presidential election, it will not matter much, many of the Hooverites concede, whether the President is wet or dry, for his political doom would be sealed by economic causes.

Cloakroom Gossip.

Cloakroom gossip has it that Mr. Hoover sees this as clearly as any one and that he has dropped more than one hint that he will not seek another term unless prosperity can be restored. Republican leaders have been saying for some time that if prosperity returns by 1932 none but Mr. Hoover would be justly entitled to the nomination, but that if it should not return none but Mr. Hoover could possibly want the nomination. The President is understood, however, not to subscribe to the latter part of this apothegm, not relishing the notion of being offered up as a sacrifice because of a world-wide economic depression for which he is not responsible.

The Hoover partisans are entirely willing to rest their case on the prosperity issue. They are confident that the country will be on easy street once more and Hoover stock well in the ascendent months before the opening of the presidential election campaign. They have been inspired with new hope by Mr. Hoover's conviction broadly hinted at in his message to congress that hard times will be but little more than a memory by next summer.

Necessities of Hour.

These Hoover partisans believe that the occupation of the President's chair by one who has demonstrated his capacity to organize relief of distress is just another dispensation of that providence which invariably brings to the fore in American affairs the type of man required by the necessities of the hour.

Even politicians who are not sympathetically disposed toward Mr. Hoover are admitting that if hard work will restore prosperity Mr. Hoover will succeed. The universal testimony of those in touch with the executive office is that Mr. Hoover is working as has no other President within the memory of the oldest inhabitant. He toils at his desk night and day with scarcely time for meals or discharge of the social obligations of his office.

GARY GRAND JURY TO ACT TODAY ON GIN MURDER CASE

Crime Stirs Storm of Disputes Over Blame.

A special grand jury will be impaneled today at Crown Point, the seat of Lake county, Indiana, to hear the case against five young Gary men, accused of the death of a pretty girl graduate. Considering the atrocious nature of the crime, as set forth in signed confessions of the defendants, police and prosecutors predict the return of a murder indictment in short order.

John Underwood, the special prosecutor appointed by District Attorney Oliver Starr, has pledged himself to demand electrocution for all five, as provided by Indiana law in homicides resulting from ravishment. Attorneys for four of the defendants have indicated they will seek to make prohibition a paramount issue, contending their clients were intoxicated. Counsel for the fifth defendant is said to be considering an insanity plea.

Dispute Blame on Dry Law.

"Don't blame the boys, blame prohibition," has been the plaint of Robert Moore of the firm of Moore, Long, Chodom & Johnson, counsel for all but one defendant. The attorney's statement has drawn fire from Gary dry organizations, notably the W. C. T. U. and the Gary Ministerial association.

A recent graduate of Emerson High school, 18 year old Arlene Draves went to a Saturday night liquor party in a home in suburban Glen Park, became ill, and was attacked, first by her escort, Virgil Kirkland, and later by his four friends, suffering internal injuries which caused her death, according to the coroner's verdict. Gary was profoundly shocked and the case has been for the last week the principal topic in homes, club meetings and pulpits.

Excepting the statements of defense attorneys to the press, there has been no disposition to condone the crime. In letters to the Gary newspaper and in street gossip, however, a section of the public has exhibited a feeling that the prohibition law, having engendered the liquor habit among the young, is the underlying cause of the conditions surrounding Arlene Draves' death.

Many Sides Are Taken.

Clergymen, educators and police officials agree that there is unbridled drinking among the group just out of high school. The clergy assert that the need is for a strengthening of the religious influence and stricter law enforcement. Educators, while conceding the greater temptation to which students are exposed under prohibition, insist that by vigilance and rigorous discipline they have kept liquor out of the schools. The police, now facing an investigation of alleged protection accorded bootleggers, shrug and declare an army could not enforce prohibition.

Illustrating each of these views are the comments of William A. Wirt, superintendent of the Gary public schools; the Rev. Frederick W. Backemeyer, pastor of the First Presbyterian church and trustee of the Anti-Saloon league; and Police Lieut. Paul Thixtun, an ex-newspaper man and the officer in charge of investigating the Draves girl's death.

Mr. Wirt, a placid, quiet spoken man, has been an educator for 25 years. He is credited with having kept the Gary schools out of politics. He offered no views on prohibition, but produced from his files the scholastic records of the six defendants—Kirkland, David Thompson, Leon Stanford, Henry Shirk and Paul Barton.

Unfair to Public Schools.

"In cases of this sort there is invariably an attempt to curry sympathy for the culprit by depicting him as a bewildered youth, just out of school," said the superintendent. "In this case the lawyers have whittled down the ages of their clients from day to day and now have them pictured as graduates just out of high school. I do not blame the lawyers—it's their business to swing public opinion to those they are defending. But it's unfair to the public schools."

Mr. Wirt studied the five cards in his hand. Kirkland, a former football star, had been expelled from Horace Mann school for sexual delinquency, the record showed. Thompson had been a backward student and left school at the age of 16; Shirk, with irregular attendance, had been transferred to a military school, and Stanford also had been dropped before finishing. Barton was the only graduate among the five.

"There may be some isolated drinking among the students, but it has not become a serious problem," the superintendent declared. "A few weeks ago, for example, four football players decided to celebrate their final victory and break training by buying a pint of moonshine. The coach heard about it, questioned the boys and, when they admitted their guilt, dropped them from the team. The bootlegger was arrested.

Temptation in Own Homes.

"True, there is a great deal of drinking among the young people of Gary. The students are exposed to temptation in their own homes. But the vigilance of the teachers and prompt discipline for offenders have kept the matter in hand so far as the schools are concerned."

Dr. Backemeyer, found preparing a sermon in the study of his spacious home on a residential street, challenged Superintendent Wirt's claim regarding the schools. Asserting the moral laxity of the young in Gary has become a grave problem, he declared the remedy lies in sterner enforcement of the Volstead law and a strengthening of the appeal of the churches.

"I'm afraid that Wirt is too optimistic over the school situation," the minister remarked. "You know how it goes: Johnny calls on Sadie after school; they get another couple, jump in a car and are off to a road house for the night. Naturally Wirt can't smell liquor on their breaths the following morning.

Combination of Many Ills.

"There is only one explanation for the recent tragedy in Gary: It is not only a bad tendency, an unusual temptation, bad training, negligence in the schools or lack of law enforcement. It is all of these. For all of these, separately and unitedly, constitute sin."

For a remedy on law enforcement, Dr. Backemeyer longs for a "big stick" in Washington.

"I wish we had a Theodore Roosevelt in the White House now," he said. "Some one to bring the big stick to bear for law enforcement in Indiana, Illinois and Michigan. A man with enough backbone to stand up and fly his colors as a dry. It should be done. Isn't Herbert Hoover big enough and hasn't he enough power to do this?

"There's Al Capone. Isn't Herbert Hoover big enough and hasn't he enough power to crush that monster? There's the diabolical wet metropolitan press, misleading sincere people into the belief that the tide has turned against prohibition. They call us fanatics. I tell you, my dear fellow, it is the wets that are fanatic."

Can't Enforce Dry Law.

Until nine months ago Paul Thixtun was Gary's star reporter. His record as a crime reporter and knowledge of the town induced Police Chief Stanley Buckling to waive the promotional system and install Thixtun as head of the detective bureau last March.

"Enforce prohibition in Gary?" Thixtun smiled. "Bring in a troop of marines. They would enforce it—for a week, maybe. The population here is 100,000 and two-thirds of these are aliens. They do not respect, scarcely comprehend, our laws, but follow their own deep rooted national customs. The bootlegger has his room with a table, a bed, a chair, and a sink—always a sink.

"And the goose neck is always removed from the drain pipe of the sink. The police make a raid and where's the evidence? Down the drain pipe and into the sewer. The police of this town are making an honest effort to enforce the law. They've got to."

Mayor Insists on Law.

Lieut. Thixtun explained that the mayor, Roswell O. Johnson, having served six months in a federal penitentiary for violating the prohibition law and being reelected on a vindication platform after his release, demanded the strictest possible enforcement from the department lest he be exposed to the shafts of political enemies. The lieutenant was contemptuous of an investigation of the department demanded by Ald. Michael Yesh two weeks before the Draves girl's death and ordered pressed by the council immediately afterwards.

"Ald. Yesh claims there are 200 dives in his ward," the lieutenant reflected sarcastically. "One of those dives was his own poolroom. We raided it as a gambling resort a few days before he called for this investigation. A curious coincidence, what?

Can't Blame the Police

"Let them investigate the police. They can't lay the blame for cases like that of the Draves girl at our door. In scores of homes every Saturday night there are parties just like the one this girl attended. I know, because I've gone to them myself—before I joined the department. Now I don't dare take a drink, nor does any sensible man on the force. They've made conspiracy cases on less than that."

NAVY SECRETARY WARNS AGAINST PERSONNEL CUT

Opposes Present Policy of Minimum Crews.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Perils existing in the current administration policy of reducing navy enlisted personnel to a minimum were pointed out today by Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams in his annual report to President Hoover. The naval secretary stated that during the last year the number of enlisted men was not adequate to man fully all types of ships.

"It was necessary," Mr. Adams said, "to operate most types of ships with allowances which were considerably under the actual complements of ships. These allowances averaged 87.9 per cent of the actual complement of the ship. Such a system does not keep the navy fully prepared for war.

Favors More Trained Men.

"Upon the declaration of hostilities additional ships that are in reserve must be manned, and for this purpose nucleus crews must be provided which will further deplete the trained personnel on board ships actually in commission, so that these ships, in place of being fully manned with trained personnel, will at the very moment when they are most needed find themselves operating with even less trained personnel than they have in time of peace, their deficiencies in personnel being made up of naval reserves fresh from shore."

Discussing the recent cut of 4,800 men in enlisted strength, Secretary Adams said that by decommissioning vessels it would be possible to operate the navy with the 79,300 remaining men.

Would Push Building.

Secretary Adams recommended the taking of immediate steps to build up the officer personnel to meet the needs of a London treaty fleet. He also advocated pushing the construction of additional cruisers, aircraft carriers, submarines, and destroyers. He asked that the number of airplanes allotted the navy by the five year air expansion program be increased from 1,000 to 1,250.

Two other points stressed by Secretary Adams dealt with navy pay and surplus shore stations. The secretary asserted that "there are more navy yards on the Atlantic coast than can be economically maintained."

JURY IN WOMAN'S MURDER TRIAL IS UNABLE TO AGREE

The jurors in the trial of Mrs. Josephine Kujawa, who admits the slaying of Mrs. Mary Slomba, were still deliberating on their verdict last night. The trial itself was concluded at 6:30 o'clock Saturday evening and Judge George Fred Rush waited at the Criminal Court building all evening for a verdict, and yesterday morning he returned at 9 o'clock, but the jurors were still unable to agree.

Mrs. Kujawa's defense was temporary insanity. She shot Mrs. Slomba during a christening party at the home of a mutual friend and her statement at the time was that her husband had forsaken her for the charms of Mrs. Slomba. The state asked the jury to send her to prison for life.

Last night when the jurors were taken to a nearby restaurant their discussion indicated they were hopelessly deadlocked.

ROBERT ISHAM RANDOLPH.

Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, departed yesterday for Washington in advance of a delegation that will present a plea to congress for an appropriation sufficient to carry on work on the Lakes to the Gulf waterway during the winter.

The waterway construction appropriation bill now before congress contains $22,000,000 of proposed expenditures, of which sum about $2,500,000 would be available for the Illinois section of the link. The importance to Illinois of favorable action by congress is to be stressed at a luncheon in Washington tomorrow at which Senators Deneen and Glenn and the Illinois congressmen will be present.

Members of the Chicago delegation who will leave today are R. C. McManus, George W. Grimn, D. L. Arnold, G. A. Landry, Maj. R. W. Putnam and W. Y. Wildman. W. R. Dawes will join them in Washington, and a group of downstate business leaders is also to attend the luncheon.

SHIP FOUNDERS; 4 MEN, 2 WOMEN, AND CHILD DROWN

Watch Hill, R. I., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Seven persons lost their lives when the coal laden schooner Storm Petrel foundered in the chill windswept waters of Long Island sound seven miles off here late yesterday, the coast guard reported today.

The drowned were four men, including the captain, whose name was believed to be Dial; two women, one of whom was the captain's wife and ship's cook, and a child. The names of the others were undetermined. All were Negroes.

The tragedy occurred three hours after the Storm Petrel left the New London base in tow of the coast guard ship Nemaha.

The disaster which overtook the Storm Petrel threatened almost from the time it left New York bound for Nantucket, Mass., with 250 tons of coal.

On Thanksgiving eve the schooner was saved from destruction after a 24 hour battle with wind and gale which stripped it of its sails and sent it on the rocks of Hen and Chickens reef near Cornfield point at the mouth of the Connecticut river.

It was towed into New London, where the captain undertook to make repairs. Since then, until yesterday afternoon, he vainly sought a tow for the rest of the voyage.

GOVERNOR HERE TO MEET HEADS OF RELIEF DRIVE

Gov. Emmerson arrived in Chicago from Springfield yesterday and will attend a meeting this afternoon of committee heads of his commission on unemployment and relief, for which a $5,000,000 fund is being raised in Cook county under the direction of Philip R. Clarke.

Chairmen of the various divisions of the commission, meeting as a committee of the whole under the chairmanship of George F. Getz, will report their progress to the governor and make suggestions for further promotion of the relief campaign.

The Volunteers of America will open at 179 West Monroe street this morning a campaign for unemployed women, with food being furnished by the "Kickers' table," a group within the Hamilton club. The organization expects to open a dormitory in the same quarters later.

Leaders of the American Legion, who are sponsoring a street sale of apples by unemployed veterans, announced they have fruit on hand for an additional 500 men.

Dim Glow, Rubens Window Draw People to Church

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 7.—A novel plan was tried tonight to attract more worshipers to the services of St. Stephen's church, one of this city's oldest.

The sermon was preached in darkness. The only light in the church was one that came from a street lamp outside, through the magnificent stained glass window in which Rubens portrayed Christ's descent from the cross.

The novelty drew a largely increased congregation. The original church of St. Stephen's was destroyed in the great fire of London and was rebuilt by Christopher Wren in 1676.

20,000 SOLDIERS REPORTED SLAIN BY CHINESE REDS

Surprise Bandit Attack Occurs Near Hankow.

HANKOW, China, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Reports from northern Hupeh province today said 20,000 Reds surprised and virtually annihilated an almost equal number of provincial troops. The loss was regarded one of the most severe suffered by the military since the campaign against banditry and communism was inaugurated in the central provinces immediately after the close of the civil war. The attack occurred between Kwangshui and Hwangan, less than 100 miles north of Hankow.

The government suffered reverses elsewhere, principally along the Tangtze river, where a great outburst of activity by communist cannonaders severely handicapped domestic and foreign shipping.

Activity of Red batteries along the Tangtze during the last 48 hours was intense between Hankow and Ichang, 230 miles west. American, French, British and Japanese vessels suffered heavily, although only one fatality was reported.

Gunboat Silences Batteries.

The British gunboat Tern, convoying a group of commercial vessels, was among those attacked. The Tern raked the shorelines, silencing two Red batteries and enabling the cargo ships to escape unharmed. A Japanese cargo vessel, attacked 200 miles above Hankow, was heavily damaged. A Chinese seaman was killed.

An American commercial ship, arriving at Ichang, reported it encountered almost continuous attacks between Yochow and Ichang, the communists using field pieces, muzzle loading cannon, machine guns and rifles. Numerous solid shots landed near the American craft, but by expert navigation she escaped harm.

Two other American cargo vessels were attacked below Yochow. Another American ship was convoyed by a United States gunboat from Yochow to Hankow.

President Takes Command.

President Chiang Kai-shek today personally assumed command of the Nationalist government forces in the drive against the communists and bandits who have been carrying on a virtual reign of terror for months. He was expected here from Kiukiang soon to establish headquarters. He arrived today at Kiukiang from Nanking.

As the initial move in an effort to undermine the strength of the outlaws, Gen. Chiang broadcast a message throughout the stricken area saying the Nationalist government was launching its supreme effort against the Reds, but would grant pardons and security to all persons who joined the Reds "under compulsion and ignorance."

Price on Heads of Red Chiefs.

The generalissimo, as frequently on past occasions when his government has been threatened, brought Nanking's "silver bullets" into use, saying:

"Those who surrender, bringing with them arms and ammunition from the enemy, will receive a reward and pardon while those responsible for the capture, dead or alive, of any communist leader will be richly rewarded."

President Chiang said the Nationalist government plans, if necessary, to use 300,000 troops, twenty gun boats and thirty airplanes against the bandits in the Yangtze valley.

CANAL LAWYERS REPLY TO PLEA FOR DISBARMENT

All except three of the fifty-six sanitary district pay roll lawyers whose disbarment was sought by the Chicago Bar association have filed answers with the Supreme court, Attorney W. R. Matheney announced yesterday. Under the rules of procedure they were given until the end of the October term of court to reply to the petition of the Bar association asking that they be punished for "unprofessional and dishonorable conduct" in connection with the money they drew from the drainage board under the régime of T. J. Crowe as president.

"Their answers are practically all the same and to the effect that they entered into a contract in good faith with the district," said Mr. Matheney, who was designated by the Bar association to bring the charges against the lawyers. "They say the district had a right to contract for their services and they had a right to enter into the contract."

Today Mr. Matheney will forward to Springfield a motion to have the Supreme court appoint a commissioner to hear the evidence. He said he expected some Chicago master in chancery might be appointed. The lawyers who filed no answer are Joseph Paullasen, Harry Mantell, and Kleofas S. Jurgelonis, according to Mr. Matheney.

SPEED ACTION ON EMPLOYMENT AND DROUGHT BILLS

Both May Pass Congress Even This Week.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Completion of President Hoover's unemployment and drought relief legislative programs before the Christmas holidays is the goal of administration leaders in congress.

Passage of the emergency construction bill in the house on Tuesday is probable. Unless it encounters opposition it may be passed in the senate also by the end of the week. The drought relief loan fund bill will be reported to the two houses tomorrow from the respective committees on agriculture and also is likely to be passed in both branches this week. A prospective controversy in the conference stage may delay its enactment into law until some time in the following week.

As revised yesterday by a subcommittee of the house appropriations committee the emergency construction fund bill provides for the appropriation of 110 millions instead of 150 millions, as recommended by President Hoover.

Only Automatic Tax Boost.

While the prospective deficit in the present fiscal year already has aroused considerable discussion there appears no prospect whatever of any recommendation from President Hoover or the treasury for an increase in taxes beyond the automatic increase which follows the lapse of this year's reduced income tax rates.

Treasury officials already have made their plans to handle the deficit, which may reach as much as 350 millions, by reducing the cash balance in the general fund, which amounted to more than 300 millions at the beginning of the present fiscal year, and by increasing temporary borrowings. That the market is favorable for short term financing operations was indicated when the treasury today announced interest rates of 1¾ and 1¾ per cent, the lowest since the war on six and twelve months certificates of indebtedness, totaling about 400 millions.

Slow Up Debt Retirement.

The increased temporary borrowing would have the effect of drawing upon surpluses piled up in the previous years in the form of what, in many quarters have been regarded as excessive funded debt reductions.

The present situation is certain to slow up debt retirement, but on the basis of budget recommendations for appropriations there is no thought on the part of the officials in charge of the finances of the government that taxes should be increased.

President Hoover will continue to urge that appropriations be held within budget estimates.

The suggestion of Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] for a 2 per cent increase in all normal income rates is not likely, therefore, to get beyond the stage of talk. Senator Borah not only would be unable to introduce such a bill because revenue measures can originate only in the house, but he is not a member either of the finance committee, which handles tax bills, or the appropriations committee, which has to do with expenditures.

U. S. FINDS AVERAGE RETURN IN YEAR ON 270 ACRES IS $1,298

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—(AP)—The average return to farmers owning 270 acres with an investment of $15,242 was $1,298 during 1929.

An analysis outlined today in the annual report of the bureau of agricultural economics placed cash receipts from nearly 12,000 owner operated farms of that size at $2,669.

Cash outlay for current operating expenses amounted to $1,372, leaving a cash balance for the year amounting to $1,097.

However, there was an average increase of $261 in the inventory value of crops, live stock, machinery, and farm supplies, and the farms supplied the families with food valued at $262

The net return was slightly less in 1929 than that for 1928, largely because of lower prices for inventory items at the end of the year than at the beginning.

"Averages obtained in this inquiry addressed to owner operators," the report continued, "are considerably above the averages for farms of all sizes and tenure classes."

EX-KAISER'S ART TO BE AUCTIONED BY N. Y. GALLERY

New York, Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Secrecy surrounds the circumstances under which a collection of paintings, antique silver, and armor, formerly the property of ex-Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, is to be sold at auction here. A brief announcement that such a sale would take place has been issued by the American Art Association-Anderson Galleries, Inc. The galleries, however, refuse to add any details to the following statement:

"Old masters, fine examples of antique silver and suits of ancient armor, once in the personal possession of ex-Kaiser Wilhelm, will appear in the private collection of a Swiss nobleman to be sold in January at the American Art Association-Anderson Galleries, Inc.

"Among the paintings are important examples of the works of Vermeer, Franz Hals, Nicolas Maes, Gerard Terborch, Pieter de Hoogh, Hobbema, Breughel and Van Baalen, Wouverman, Van Dyck, Ruysdael, Joos van Cleve, Bartholomeus Bruyn, Tintoretto, Tiepolo, Murillo, Givanni Bellini, and Gerard Dow. There are also sketches by Peter Paul Rubens. All have been removed from various castles and palaces of the ex-kaiser."

Mexican Troops Kill 13 Bandits After Auto Holdup

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Dispatches from Aguascalientes say that 13 bandits belonging to a gang led by the notorious Jose Velasco were slain in a fight with agrarian troops near the frontier of the state of Jalisco. Velasco escaped. The bandits shortly before had held up an automobile load of tourists, killing two of the occupants.

1 Killed, 6 Are Injured as Auto Plunges 125 Feet

Mount Airy, N. C., Dec. 7.—(AP)—One person was killed and six injured when an automobile carrying a group of young persons from Mount Airy to Galax, Va., careened off a mountain curve on the Fancy Gap highway tonight and plunged 125 feet to a ledge midway down the cliff.

RICH FREEPORT MAN URGES CUT IN FARM TAXES

Asks States for Relief from Burden.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—Farm relief from a new angle, which is to be espoused by the farm bloc as a political issue, was broached today by W. T. Rawleigh of Freeport, Ill., in the first pronouncement of the Rawleigh Foundation, which he is financing. In a letter to the governors and governors-elect of the 48 states, the legislatures of 42 of which will meet next month, Mr. Rawleigh proposed the readjustment of what he calls "the billion dollar tax burden now resting on agriculture." Mr. Rawleigh contends that the tax burden should be shifted from agriculture by reducing taxes on lands and improvements and increasing tax revenue from incomes and intangible property.

Was La Follette Backer.

Mr. Rawleigh is a millionaire who made his fortune manufacturing patent medicine. As a member of the Illinois legislature 25 years ago he was one of the authors of legislation to regulate public utilities. He was a lifelong friend of Robert La Follette, the elder, whom he supported for President in 1924.

The Rawleigh Foundation, the Freeport manufacturer's latest propaganda agency, is under the direction of Basil Manly, for many years chief economic expert for the Norris-La Follette group in congress. Mr. Rawleigh's letter to the governors quotes the following findings of the Rawleigh Foundation:

"1. The total tax burden upon the farmers of the United States now amounts to more than a billion dollars a year.

Cites Tax Burden.

"2. Direct taxes imposed by the states and local subdivisions now equal about one-third [31 per cent] of the net rent of farms, on an average, and in some cases more than 50 per cent. In many states the farmers are now working two days a week to pay the cost of government, leaving only four for the support of themselves and their families.

"3. American farmers are now paying in taxes more than four times as much as they spend for seed, two and a half times as much as they spend for fertilizer, and one and a half times the cost of all farm improvements, and substantially more than their total expenditures for machinery and tools."

ARREST PEORIA MAN ON CHARGE OF KIDNAPING

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Alleging that he was kidnaped by a pair of motorists after they had collided with his car and he refused to pay damages, Albert Davenport today obtained warrants causing the arrest of Alfred Dempster, 33, on charges of kidnaping and holding for ransom.

Davenport's wife was with him at the time of the wreck, but was unmolested. Davenport said Dempster ran into his automobile and demanded an immediate settlement for damages. When he refused Dempster overpowered him, Davenport said, and hurled him into his car and drove away. He says he was held for 24 hours for ransom. Davenport said he argued and finally convinced his captor that he had no money and later was released.

Dempster's identity was traced through the automobile license, which Davenport's wife obtained as the car sped away. Dempster was arrested late tonight.

Woman Bombs Pool Hall; Six Men Are Injured

Alamogordo, N. M., Dec. 7.—(AP)—A bomb believed by Deputy Sheriff Lon Danley to have been discharged by a woman whose son or husband was inside today wrecked a pool hall here with injury to six men.

FARMER JAILED AS KIDNAPER OF A MISSING GIRL

Greeley, Colo., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Melvin G. McClanham, 40, a farmer, was held in the county jail here tonight on a warrant charging him with kidnaping Miss Enid Marriott, 18 year old Wiggins, Colo., school teacher, missing since Nov. 15. McClanham, who recently has lived near Mitchell, Neb., was arrested last night at Scotts Bluff, Neb.

Sheriff R. A. Johnston, Fort Morgan, Colo., who took McClanham into custody, will take the prisoner to Fort Morgan tomorrow.

Miss Marriott last was seen when she alighted from a Denver train at Wiggins. A parked automobile, beside which a man was standing, was noticed by trainmen on the station platform.

Poison in a Pie Kills One; Two in Same Family Ill

New York, Dec. 8.—[Special.]—Poisoned by apple pie into which his wife told police she believed insect powder had been placed by his 4 year old daughter, William McDonald, 37, died last night. Others of the family also partook of the pie. As a consequence they are seriously ill and the wife, Catherine, 34, and the 4 year old daughter, Kathleen, may die, it was said by their family physician.

MORALISTIC GOVERNMENT.

There would be nothing inequitable in basing representation in congress upon the voting population in each state, although it is not the basis contemplated in the constitution. The nonvoting population had weight in the representative scheme as agreed upon and the south obtained a specific property right of representation in the provision that three-fifths of the slaves could be counted and members of the house could be elected to speak and vote for this inert political mass.

It is characteristic of considerable moral reform in the United States that it seeks to manipulate the representative system to its own ends, to inflate the vote of one portion of citizenship and cut down the vote of another. Representative James M. Beck of Pennsylvania, former solicitor general, recently discussed the proposal of the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition and public morals to take resident aliens out of the represented population.

The alien population of the United States is largely urban and nearly all of it will be taken into the citizenship. The sumptuary lords regard this population as intractable and the urban communities generally as benighted. The moralists have no desires even in theory to improve the representative system. Their intent is to distort it for a fixed purpose.

Few of them are persons of sufficient thoughtfulness to be aware of the jovial political rascality which they advocate or of its really remarkable comedy. The revision of election laws which they proposed would squeeze the alien out of the represented population, but it would leave the southern Negro in, although the southern states treat him as the eternal alien. The northern urban vote, which it is proposed to diminish, is based upon constitutional provisions. The southern vote, which it is proposed to leave untouched, is, in effect, based upon nullification. The moralists have nothing in their instincts which makes such a proposal ironic or laughable to them. The eminent Dr. Wilson, secretary of the Methodist board, could concede that the facts are as stated and be puzzled to know what they had to do with the equities.

He and his associates want southern drys to be elected upon the unconstitutional basis of a nonvoting citizenship to which the law has solemnly but futilely extended the franchise, and they do not want northern cities to be represented by a constitutional ratio. The north could accept representation based on votes rather than population. That would apply the suffrage amendment in the south which is so addicted to the eighteenth and, with the approval of the moralists, so indifferent to the fourteenth.

MUSIC FOR INVALID SOLDIERS.

The urge for economy in national expenditure has for its most pusillanimous expression the abolition of the bands which provide music at soldiers' homes. Congress has just been invited to put a hundred to a hundred and fifty millions of dollars in the hands of the executive to provide work for the unemployed, while a few hundred men who have been providing a little pleasure for our invalid veterans are to be turned out of doors. These musicians will then be unemployed in a field of work already overstocked. Perhaps they can get jobs of common labor on some of the government's anti-depression projects and meanwhile the soldiers in the homes can go without such consolation as the bands have given them. Music is undoubtedly of great value in keeping up morale, an essential of recovery. It is not even economy to abolish it, but perhaps we are now in the pacifist way of preventing war by making all its consequences as costly as possible to citizens who have been so mistaken as to engage in it at the call of their country.

THE BIG SHOW.

Loyola university of Chicago has dropped intercollegiate football. The school will continue the game, but restrict it to its own school teams. Other intercollegiate sports will be continued. President Kelley said that intercollegiate football at Loyola and probably at other universities had ceased to serve the purpose for which sports were encouraged and did not foster the physical development of the student body, that it was overemphasized and was competing for public patronage with other great amusement enterprises. The students are protesting against the order.

Here and there the academic conscience was bound to take notice of the big show the schools produce in the fall. It has become so good that it is too good. It would be good for Flo Ziegfeld, Morris Gest, the Ringlings or Mr. Wrigley. The players may be amateurs, but the management is as professional as anything in the best show business. The patronage is one of peculiar loyalties and enthusiasms, derived from a constantly increasing graduate body in the country. Every year for the last generation and more each great school has been swelling the numbers of citizens with school attachments. Few ever outgrow entirely the devotions of their undergraduate days and their best opportunity to steam up again is found in a football game.

It is the greatest Roman holiday the country ever has produced, in color, action, mass effects, excitement and contagious ebullience. It has made an equivalent for scholastic attainment. It distinguishes one university above another. It has become a real profession with any number of successful players looking to football, either professional playing or coaching, for their postgraduate work. It distorts the graduate ideas of school worth and reputation. Universities whose teams gain the most acclaim are able to restrain their doubts. Others allow them freer play.

But why do anything about it? The hysterical period is short and the schools probably have the inherent restraints which will restore balances. Meanwhile it is a great phenomenon which only college life could produce. If wrong it's bound to work its own corrections.

THE TALES OF TWO CITIES.

The current statistics are not available and, in any event, police statistics are notoriously unreliable. We venture to say, however, that racketeering and the murder associated with it have been a far more serious matter in New York in recent months, and perhaps even in recent years, than in Chicago. Whatever the reason may be, the fact is that of late there have been relatively few gangster killings hereabouts. The last one of consequence was the doing in of Aiello and that was on Oct. 23. There is reason to believe that the activities of the police, the prosecutors, some of the judges and citizen organizations which have followed the killing of Lingle have brought about the change for the better.

However that may be, the fact is that New York's racketeers are continuing to go about their business of murder and coercion as usual. Their motives and methods are indistinguishable from those observable in Chicago. Yet newspapers throughout the country seldom give more than a few lines to the daily murders of New York. Of late considerable space has been given to the revelations of police corruption in New York, the sale of offices, and the blackmailing of women, but the emphasis is not on the crimes as such but on the effort—wholly unsuccessful as yet, it should be added—to clean up.

Chicago has the reputation of being crime-ridden as no city ever was before, when in fact Chicago is apparently on the mend. New York is not on the mend, but the impression is being created throughout the country that it is, and only a few newspaper readers are aware of the depths into which New York has sunk.

The truth of the matter is that racketeering is not and never was confined to Chicago, but Chicago was the first great city in the country to become aware of it and to seek to prevent it. Characteristically, Chicago made no secret of its discovery. Other cities, New York included, are profiting from the frank disclosures made here in diagnosing their own similar problems. As Chicago seems to be on the road toward developing a technique for dealing with the situation, it may be assumed that in due time other cities will pursue Chicago's methods in meeting the problem as it affects them. Under the circumstances it is curious, to say the least, that Chicago continues to enjoy the reputation of leading the world in iniquity when at the moment Chicago happens to be the white hope among the cities.

ASIA AND WORLD DEPRESSION.

Silas Strawn, who spent a year in China in 1925-'26 as American delegate on the international commission for treaty revision, calls attention to an important but little emphasized aspect of world depression. Speaking to the American Chamber of Commerce in Paris Mr. Strawn pointed to the collapse of the Chinese and India markets because of international turmoil. "As a result," said Mr. Strawn, "the people in these countries are starving. I think if these countries were stable they would be able to consume all we produce and thereby eliminate the economic crisis from which we are suffering."

Inasmuch as the people of China alone constitute about a fourth of the inhabitants of the globe, and are, moreover, a people of great consuming possibilities and in great need of the products of industrialized nations, their importance as a factor in world economy is plain. As The Tribune has repeatedly remarked, there is hardly anything in our external relations which could be more substantially profitable than the establishment of order in China. With assured peace in that country Chinese industry and intelligence would soon create funds necessary to internal development and trade on a huge scale, and industrial and commercial America is in the strongest position to take advantage of the increasing demands of this great market. We have the capital and the commodities which are required for China's progress. We are neighbors across the Pacific. And we have such advantage as may be derived from many years of friendly relations and our freedom from any suspicion of political exploitation. Our interests are, in fact, complementary to China's.

Unfortunately the problem of pacification and stabilization in China is complicated and not likely to be quickly solved. Recents events, so far as we can interpret them, seem to give promise of better days. It is to be hoped American policy can take practically helpful forms.

Editorial of the Day

RUNNING FROM OFFICE.

[New York Times.]

Politicians will rub their eyes over a dispatch from Hookset, N. H. It reports the effort, thus far unsuccessful, of a citizen of the Granite state to escape having public office forced upon him. The Rev. Napoleon J. Gilbert was nominated for the legislature over his own protest because everybody in the parish wrote in his name on the ballot. He was elected as Democratic candidate because his refusal to run reached the secretary of state too late. Now he intends to insist that the house unseat him!

The reason given by this remarkable man is that office holding and the clergy do not comport themselves well together, and that he can do greater public service through his priestly duties than in the legislature. This is not only the conclusion of a sensible, dignified man already engaged in a good work; it conforms to the excellent rules of the Catholic clergy. There are exceptions, of course, to the rule that ministers in public office rarely do well by themselves or their constituents, but the experience of many American communities supports the views of Father Gilbert. The best work done by him and his kind transcends the law made by man.

NEW TEMPERATURE PLAN.

INSTEAD of accepting the reading of an ordinary thermometer at its face value and trying to hypnotize ourselves into feeling hot, or cold, or comfortable, as the thermometer suggests, we may soon be accepting "effective temperatures" as our guidepost. The phrase "effective temperatures" is to be the substitute for the older "comfort zone."

The effective temperature is the temperature as a normal, about average person feels it. We speak of it as the temperature which warms or cools the human skin, which affects its comfort as comfort is registered by the nerve endings that register heat and cold. It is based on the temperature as measured by the ordinary thermometer, the moisture as measured by the hygrometer, and the rate and force of the movement of the air. It is the cooling or warming power of the air when these other qualities are also taken into consideration.

We have acquired instruments for measuring effective temperatures by stages. First, there was the ordinary thermometer. Then the hygrometer, of which the wet and dry bulb thermometer is one type. Then came the katathermometer, the short for which is kata. And now comes the domo frigometer which Calvin Frazer pronounces a handier and a more sensitive instrument than the kata. If it proves to be such, in all probability some Yankee inventor will devise an instrument in which the principle will be made use of but the device will be cheap and easily worked.

The theory of all of these instruments is that while atmospheric heat is important for comfort or discomfort, the factor of evaporation of water radically changes the effects of heat. If the air be very dry and the evaporation rate is very rapid, a high temperature may not cause heat stroke or even great bodily discomfort. There are many variations of this theme. Even if the temperature is right and the humidity is as it should be there may be discomfort because of drafts.

DROPSY.

Mrs. M. H. asks what may be the cause of dropsy in the following case: A woman, 60 years old, no heart nor kidney trouble, always tired, has dizzy spells. Her physician says she carries around 20 pounds of dropsy water.

REPLY.

You do not say where this water is. In cirrhosis of the liver most of the water is in the abdomen, some of it in the legs. In heart disease most of it is in the legs. A tumor of the abdomen or pelvis, causing pressure, causes some cases. Anemia causes some. So may great weakness from tuberculosis. Have your physician find the cause.

ECZEMA OF THE FEET.

B. C. K. writes:

I am about 62. I have had eczema on my feet for about 15 years.

REPLY.

Eczema of the feet is generally due to a fungus parasite. Dyes and other poisons cause some cases. A few are due to other causes. If you will find out what your foot trouble is, and what causes it, cure should be easy. Eczema is just a word and means so much that it means nothing.

IT IS NOT HARMFUL.

FAT writes: I have been trying to knock off a few pounds and heard that rolling was very good. Every night after supper I roll. It seems to work fine, and I have lost weight, but I wondered if it were a harmful exercise.

REPLY.

It is not.

OPERATION FOR AGED.

M. W. writes: Is it dangerous for a woman over 80 years old to have an operation for cataracts? She is in good condition for her age but has always been very nervous.

REPLY.

There is some danger in any operation. There is some danger of loss of the eye and loss of life. Operations are generally done because the danger and other disadvantages do not offset the advantages.

NOT A FAMILY EXPENSE.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A husband and wife are separated and the husband contracts a bill at a credit store for a dress for his ex-wife. She goes to the store to get the dress and signs her name for its receipt. Three weeks later he is sent to jail for two months and when he comes out and goes to work they garnishee his salary. Is this legal? N. F.

If you are not living together, then the dress would not constitute a family expense and the dealer would not be entitled to collect from you on the facts stated.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LIGHTS TURNED ON.

Chicago, Dec. 1. — [Friend of the People.]—For the last month or more there have been no lights under the railway tracks at Lavergne and Avondale avenues although they were turned on regularly during the summer months. This needs looking into. A. H. L.

An investigation of this complaint reveals the fact that the railroad is responsible for the lighting in this particular subway. However, I have taken the matter up with the railroad and have been given authority to make necessary repairs and bill the railroad company for the expense involved.

The lights in question will be in operating condition tonight.

MICHAEL J. KENNEDY,
Commissioner of Gas and Electricity.

LOCOMOTIVE WHISTLES.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Is there a city ordinance prohibiting locomotives from whistling within the city limits? The trains approaching the crossing in question start their whistling a half mile before reaching the crossing and continue until they have passed it. During the early hours of the morning this becomes very annoying. R. O. S.

We find no ordinance specifically on this point. If the condition amounts to a nuisance, it can be enjoined.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

COLLECTING FROM NONRESIDENTS

Chicago, Nov. 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Can a son residing in South Dakota be compelled to pay a certain amount each month toward the support of his parents? If so, how would I go about it? B. K.

Ordinarily it is difficult, if not impossible, to enforce contribution as against nonresidents. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

I ASK YOU!

The colleges are talking about dropping football from the curriculum next year. We can't visualize a college without big public football games. We can't imagine it. We can't even harbor the thought. Why, what are colleges for? How could they get along without football? What would the public do? What would become of the cheer leaders and the coaches and the players and the hot dog and pop concessionnaires? What would become of the ticket scalpers? And how would the colleges get any publicity? How is the home town boy going to make good if he can't bust through interference and leg it seventy-five yards down the field for a goal? What will the old grads do? And where are they going to do their drinking if dear old Alma Mater doesn't clout the head off the ancient rival once a year? And what are the students going to do? Seems as though there wouldn't be much left for them to do but go to class and recite Greek verbs, and veni, vidi, vici, and names of the English kings and the dates of battles, discoveries, and things. What kind of college would that be? Nothing to do but logarithms and algebra and how to know the wild flowers, and which came first, the egg or the hen? No football! All right, then higher education is shot to hellengone!

BOY.

Striding in the wind's way,
Arrogant, unwise,
Harboring a frail dream
Set behind his eyes—
With a strength so gentle
He is on his way,
Laughing and believing
He will win some day.
When his tender skin is Roughly rubbed and torn,
Will he keep on holding
Hopes that must be born?
If he only knew that
Each defeat and strain—
Every grief that bruises
Is a growing pain!

Miss Muskrat probably wouldn't like to be in the Academy with Otto Trap lurking around.

WE'RE FUNNY THAT WAY.

R. H. L.: He arose at 4 o'clock and, having dressed himself hurriedly, sat down at his desk. For three hours he worked over his books in an effort to straighten out his personal accounts. Then, after eating a hasty breakfast, he drove to his office. Upon arriving there he immediately buried himself in work. He talked with his salesmen, conferred with police officers, sat in for an interview with a news reporter, and cleared away whatever other important business remained. That afternoon he visited his several distilleries in the suburbs, giving instructions to his superintendents, and looking over the personnel to make sure that it was functioning properly. Afterwards he returned to his office and had a lengthy conference with his attorneys. In the evening he outlined plans with his lieutenants for preventing competitors from making inroads on his business. Late that night he went to bed, tired and worn out. And the next morning he was sentenced to jail on a vagrancy charge. SNEEM.

NULLA DIES SINE LINEA.

And everybody knows that's as true today as it was when Marc Antony, Pliny the Elder, Nero, Aurelius, Brutus, Cassius, and the rest of the boys couldn't live through a single day without the Line. And today how they would cheer and dig down in their togas for a dime to buy

AND NOW that Janet Fairbank's book is out we can speak quite freely about "Daniel in the Lions' Den." We've read it and, just as we feared, the lions' den is Washington. There's certainly lions down there, to say nothing of the sons of wild jackasses Sen. Moses told us about. Doc Butcher says that those who know their Washington well enough can identify the characters in the book. That lets us out, because we only know old Art Henning, who sits around listening to his radio all the evening instead of stepping out, and we know an undersecretary of legation who has a key to the embassy cellar, and we know a dry congressman who can find a speakeasy in every block. But Janet's hero mixed with the smart set in Washington and we wouldn't know about that.

We Don't Know When, but We Do Know Where.

R. H. L.: I know! The Linebook cover's a contest. My guesses are (reading up and around):

1. Sec. Andrew Mellon when quite young.
2. The Face on the Barroom Floor.
3. Lion on left at Art Institute.
4. Lydia Pinkham.
5. The other lion at the Art Institute.
6. Composite Picture of the 26 Public Enemies.

Oh, when do I get the prize? LIV. R. WURST.

PROHIBITION

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 8, 1914.

BERLIN.—The German official statement says that the Germans in northern Poland gained important successes in prolonged fighting around Lodz by defeating strong Russian forces stationed to the northwest and southwest of that city.

LONDON.—The allied French, Belgian, and British forces have begun an offensive movement in West Flanders. They are now virtually in possession of the east bank of the Yser canal, and in northern France, particularly near La Bassee, where the Germans hold a strong position, the allies are beginning with a heavy cannonade to feel their way eastward. The same process is being followed along the whole front, and the Germans have been driven from many positions along the canal.

PARIS.—A dispatch to the Havas agency from Cettinje says the Austrians delivered a series of violent attacks in the region of Grahevo, Montenegro, during the last few days, but were repulsed with heavy casualties.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 8, 1900.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The government, through Secretary Long, is about to let the biggest contract for warships in the history of this or any other nation. Bids for the new vessels which will cost $50,000,000 were opened today at the navy department. There will be five battleships and six cruisers, comprising in tonnage more than the tonnage of the entire navy ten years ago. The battleships are the Pennsylvania, the New Jersey, the Georgia, the Virginia, and the Rhode Island.

CHICAGO. — The "carnival of crime" experienced a revival with many holdups and housebreakings reported. During the day Mayor Harrison issued a second sweeping order closing downtown resorts, as a part of his "anti-vice" crusade. Four hotels of the Karg & Harter syndicate were closed. They are the Brunswick, 9 Adams street; the Sir William, 70 Randolph street; the Glenn, 10 Madison street; and the Newport, 73 Monroe street. Others closed were the Columbia, 173 Clark street; the Oriental, 155 Randolph street, and the Maze, 292 Wabash avenue.

SAN FRANCISCO.—Robert Lomax, one of the leaders in the famous raid against the Mormons at Nauvoo, Ill., in 1844, died at Petaluma, Cal., at the age of 75. He made no secret of his part in the movement which drove the Mormons out of Illinois and resulted in the death of Joseph Smith.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 8, 1880.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Adj. Gen. Drum received a dispatch from Gen. Terry at St. Paul, Minn., stating that he had received information from the camp on Poplar creek and from Fort Buford, which indicated that Sitting Bull probably would come in soon and surrender at Buford.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Gen. W. B. Hazen was nominated by the President to be chief signal officer with the rank of brigadier general, and Gen. Nelson A. Miles to be brigadier general, vice Gen. Ard, retired. It is thought that Gen. Schofield will be sent to San Francisco.

EDITORIAL.—The Inter Ocean is guilty of an impudent lie when it says that The Tribune secured an early copy of that sheet of Monday morning and copied therefrom a synopsis of the President's message. The New York Times and the New York Herald of Monday morning printed the identical synopsis that appeared in The Chicago Tribune and the Chicago Times, which the Inter Ocean coolly claims was a special belonging exclusively to itself.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—The recommendation in President Hayes' message that congress adopt measures for the speedy abolition of polygamy in Utah gave great satisfaction to the Gentiles here. The Mormons affect to regard them with contempt. The Deseret News [Mormon] says: "So far as the recommendations concerning Utah are concerned, they need give no Latter Day Saint any uneasiness. They are too impractical and un-American for serious consideration by the statesman."

CIVIL LIBERTIES.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—In fairness to your readers who may have read the statement by Mr. Arthur Fisher, president, Chicago Civil Liberties committee, I ask that you give space to the following comment:

In generalizing on the personnel of his committee Mr. Fisher failed to make plain the fact that his organization does not include members of nor affiliate with any of the established patriotic societies, nor does the Civil Liberties committee cooperate in movements initiated by veterans' organizations for the maintenance and security of civil liberties and rights.

Mr. Fisher is unable to name a single instance of legal aid for individuals provided by his committee in defense of civil liberties except to communists or communist sympathizers. The writer in person challenged Mr. Fisher on this point following one of the meetings he referred to. Mr. Fisher will admit that he was unable to mention a single case of legal or other assistance given by his organization other than to admitted radical revolutionists. In his letter he fails also to state that his committee has not been concerned with cases of infringement of civil liberties unless the alleged victims were identified with revolutionary communist disturbances to the peace of this and other cities.

Mr. Fisher likewise omits reference to the fact that the American Civil Liberties union, of which his group is an offshoot, traces its origin to an organization active during the war to protect draft evaders. He did not tell your readers in his statement that the Civil Liberties union has a consistent record of opposition to every legal endeavor by responsible authority to provide for the common welfare and defense.

Mr. Fisher referred to the "civil rights of communists," but he did not explain to your readers that communists his committee protects swear allegiance to a foreign power—an international enemy of orderly society—by the act of becoming members of the Communist party. Mr. Fisher's communist clients claim civil rights under our national constitution only when they have deliberately and with contempt disregarded laws we have enacted for the peace and security of all our citizens.

Mr. Fisher's committee seems to have a very passionate concern for the liberties of only lawbreaking elements of our population. It might be suggested to Mr. Fisher that his committee, once in a while, at least, demonstrate some interest in the civil liberty and civil rights of the law abiding citizens of Chicago. W. J. PATTERSON,

HIGH SCHOOL MANNERS.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—In answer to Miss Mary I. Elton's just criticism of the students of the Lindblom High school, may I ask her not to judge the student body of Lindblom by the discourteous conduct of a few?

The students who leave the school at 4:40 p. m. (when the last classes end) are almost entirely first year students. Being human, they want to let the whole world know that they are now high school students and in doing this they sometimes act rather unruly on street cars when going home. Within the school walls, however, they are, almost without exception, as orderly a group of boys and girls as one could expect to find anywhere. ALUMNUS.

A DEFENSE OF PROHIBITION.

Naperville, Ill., Dec. 3.—Your writeup in today's issue of how "Gary Mourns Girl Victim of Rum Tragedy" quite surpasses most of the wet propaganda even you have published for a long time, and that is sayin, a good deal, in the way of anti-prohibition fanaticism. According to your correspondent's representations, which you publish with evident relish and approval, Volsteadism is to blame for this Gary liquor party and all its sordid and tragic consequences. According to your paper the party would never have been held, or if it had been held would have been harmless and all right. The law of the land is to blame that the liquor they drank was poisonous and made them "crazy." If it were not for the law the bootlegger would not have sold the stuff to them that fatal night, and if he h...d it would have been all right anyway. If it were not for prohibition, according to your story, this awful tragedy would have been all right and not bad at all. Volsteadism killed this Draves girl and made rapers and murderers of those five youths. So it isn't the lawbreaker but the law itself that makes them criminals. If the commandment did not say "Thou shalt not kill" it would be all right to commit murder; in fact, according to the logic of your paper, repeated over and over again, if the law did not forbid it, folks would not want to kill at all, and if they did it wouldn't be wrong. It's the law that makes it wrong, not the act. And then you scold about "dry fanatics." Who are the "fanatics" anyway? If The Tribune is not a wet fanatic some of us would like to know what fanaticism is.

S. P. STARNS.

JOB WONDERED, TOO.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—I happen to be one of the unfortunate persons affected by the present hard times, so what I have are surely appreciated. While attending services at church recently I left my practically new overcoat and hat in the basement of the church and while I was enjoying the word of God a certain individual who has no respect for God or his church came in and lifted my coat and hat; also helped himself to another's equipment. The other party who lost his coat was a boy 16 years of age whose mother is a widow. She bought her son this coat a week before, so any one can imagine the surprise she got when her son arrived home coatless.

If this long fingered individual would have come in a proper manner and asked for a little help we would have given him a complete outfit from his shoes to his hat. I am one of the hard workers of the church who is trying in every way possible to help the poor. Why is it that a person trying to help others should be treated this way? E. F. J.

SERVICE WITH A GRIMACE.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—Only a kindred spirit can fully appreciate J. M.'s tirade on bus transportation in today's Voice of the People. Them's certainly my sentiments, especially the danger and discomfort of the gas fumes and ventilation in the buses. Of all the evils, this is the greatest.

The fumes invade the entire coach, even getting into one's eyes, causing them to smart and burn. I usually get off with tears in my eyes, choking and gasping for a breath of pure air—and wondering what inspired that beautiful motto of the Chicago Motor Coach company—"Service with a Smile." E. M. GOLD PILE HIDES WAY FRENCH ARE FEELING SLUMP

Decline Gathers Speed in Last Three Months.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 7.—Sitting on top of the second biggest pile of gold in the world, with only a small number of unemployed and with business slackened but steady, France is looking at America today the way we used to look at Europe in the boom days.

In face of a worldwide economic depression, France is the only country that has not yet been swept away by the current. In a sense it is the most prosperous country in the world. Certainly it can produce enough outward signs of prosperity, that gold reserve, for instance, the largest per capita in the world, which has been steadily increasing and now tops the staggering sum of 51,000,000,000 francs, about $1,994,100,000. The poor French franc, which hilarious Americans used to light cigarets with, now has more gold to back the paper bill than the American dollar has.

French Take Up Travel.

The casual visitor is apt to get a particularly strong impression of French prosperity. He sees furs, gowns, automobiles, jewels, luxurious apartments, restaurants and theaters full—of Frenchmen. For the first time in history Frenchmen are traveling, traveling and spending money, not like drunken sailors, very much like thrifty Frenchmen, but still spending it.

If one reads the papers one sees news of grandiose projects for public improvements, colonial development, loans to poorer nations. And the premier, Andre Tardieu, until he was overthrown Thursday, like Mr. Hoover, had been running a "prosperity administration."

Slump Is Setting In.

Actually, French prosperity does not stand up so well. While official reports minimize the seriousness of the situation, impartial surveys show there has been a steady decline for the last three months and that during the month of October it became very pronounced. All basic industries have slowed up production—notably the automobile industry—department stores are feeling a sharp decline in trade and are cutting down their employés, a number of small shops in the big cities are going in the red and the Paris bourse broke months of stagnation by a sharp drop which carried down 14 important brokerage firms and several large banks.

Unemployment Increases.

Salaries are stationary but living costs have mounted a few points over last year. Unemployment although very low is rapidly increasing. Official figures now show more than 4,000 against 400 last year, but the official figures are generally recognized to be incomplete and the best estimates place the number of unemployed close to 50,000. It is significant that unemployment is confined mostly to the white collar classes.

In spite of these symptoms of growing depression it can still be said that France is relatively a prosperous country. This is a peculiar French brand of prosperity; it would not be recognized in America. It can best be explained by the report made recently on the French steel industry by an official American survey here.

This survey showed the French steel industry in spite of greatly curtailed production was holding its own remarkably. A number of contributing causes for this good showing were cited—prominent among them the low cost of labor—but in the opinion of the investigators the dominant factor was the antiquated machinery used.

Keep Production Curtailed.

The French mine and mill owners had not bought any new equipment for years. That is, none of their earnings had been sunk in improvements, they had a fat reserve on hand to meet hard times. The old machinery functioned all right, although it looked to an American engineer as if it would fall to pieces any minute. There was no strain of reorganization to meet curtailed production because the machinery had never been jazzed up to meet increased production.

The same thing prevails to a greater or lesser degrees in nearly all branches of French business. Antiquated machines with no mortgages or bond issues out against them, cheap hand labor, a multitude of petty jobs—these things keep an employer who has never made big money from losing big money and they provide plenty of jobs for people that want light work and light pay checks.

OLSON WILL FILE PLEA FOR RECOUNT IN COURT TODAY

A petition for a recount of the votes cast for chief justice of the Municipal court in the Nov. 4 elections is to be filed in County court today in behalf of Harry Olson, Republican nominee for reelection, who was defeated by John J. Sonsteby, the Democratic candidate.

Attorney John F. Tyrrell, representing the former chief justice, said the petition would allege that votes in 17 Democratic wards were weighed instead of counted, and that in seven Democratic wards there had been illegal registration and subsequent illegal voting.

Attorney Tyrrell said the illegal voting took place in the 1st, 13th, 14th, 21st, 22d, 23d, and 42d wards, and asserted that Mr. Olson had much evidence affecting particularly the 1st ward.

Judge Sonsteby was elected by a majority of approximately 15,000, and Attorney Tyrrell said a change of slightly more than 7,500 votes, or less than 2½ in each of the city's 3,000 precincts, in favor of Mr. Olson would reverse the outcome of the election.

BARTHOU FAILS IN EFFORT TO FORM FRENCH CABINET

PARIS, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Senator Louis Barthou tonight abandoned his effort to form a cabinet succeeding the government of André Tardieu, which was overthrown in the senate last week.

This announcement came shortly after the senator had gone to Elysee palace this evening to acquaint President Doumerque with the state of negotiations for forming a ministry of concentration.

M. Barthou's failure apparently was due to the radical party's objection to the inclusion of Louis Marin, head of the extreme right group, in his proposed ministry. It was regarded as significant that M. Tardieu had insisted that at least one member of the radicals should be in the projected Barthou ministry. M. Barthou had expected to form a ministry of concentration which would have included himself, Aristide Briand and M. Tardieu in key positions.

McKendree Football Player Recovers from Amnesia

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Joseph Spudich, 25, a student at McKendree college, Lebanon, Ill., was discharged from city hospital here today, after recovering from an attack of amnesia. Spudich, a member of the McKendree football team, was found dazed on the streets here Friday night, unable to identify himself. Friends called for him today and took him to Lebanon. His home is in Sawyerville, Ill.

YOUTH OF ITALY HONOR NATION'S NOTED URCHIN

GENOA, Italy, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The youth of today celebrated the festival of the greatest urchin in Italian history, Balilla, who on Dec. 5, 1746, led his fellow citizens in driving the invading Austrians out of the port of Genoa. The festival, which normally falls on a weekday, was celebrated today so that no time would be lost from work or school.

The Fascist Boy Scout organization, the National Order of Balilla, has taken its name from this street boy of Genoa, Giovanni Battista Perasso, who has gone down to fame by his nickname of Balilla.

Through the streets of Genoa, passed a procession of children, young Balilla Black Shirts, "Piccole Italiane," the girl's branch of the order, a procession such as had not been seen here since the days of the crusaders when Peter the Hermit organized his pathetic band of children to embark at Genoa for the Holy Land. Today, a sturdier race, disciplined and orderly, stepped out alertly. Some bore upon their youthful breasts lines of medals awarded for various feats of bravery.

L. R. CAPES AND EVANSTON WOMAN MARRIED AT 5 A. M.

Lawrence R. Capes and Mrs. Alice Syme, 32 years old, of the Georgian hotel, Evanston, were married at 5 o'clock yesterday morning by Justice of the Peace Wallenwein in Waukegan. Mr. Capes is treasurer of Charles H. Besly & Co., manufacturers. Magistrate Wallenwein said that Capes called him at midnight Saturday and asked him to stay up to perform the ceremony. The couple told him they had been at the opera and that Capes was forced to leave for New York on business at noon today so that they were pressed for time in which to have the marriage performed.

Mr. Capes and Mrs. Syme were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Payne of Winnetka and Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Spencer of Evanston. Mr. Capes gave his age as 38 years. His first wife, who was Miss Edith Besly, daughter of Mrs. Charles H. Besly of Hinsdale, before her marriage, was killed in an automobile crash in October, 1929, when a Burlington passenger train struck her car in Hinsdale.

THREE MANIACS STILL HIDING IN NEW YORK CITY

Four of Seven Fugitives Are Captured.

New York, Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Four of the seven fugitives from the Matteawan state hospital for the criminal insane, who had been hunted throughout this vicinity since their cunning escape Thursday morning, were returned safely to Matteawan tonight after their capture in Brooklyn by a detective who averted probable death at their hands only by his own quick thinking.

The other three—one a killer and the other two pyromaniacs—are still at large in New York city, but the police say they can not avoid detection much longer.

The capture of the four men at 2 a. m. in a dismal Brooklyn basement apartment, brought to light the story of their flight to New York city after they scaled the wall of the Matteawan hospital, their clever division into groups to make detection more difficult, the holding up by one of them of his own brother and sister-in-law to get shoes, clothing and money, and, finally, of the narrow escape from death of Detective George E. Wober, who found himself at the mercy of the man he was seeking when they suddenly walked in on him heavily armed.

The capture also resulted in the arrest of Mrs. Marie Ockenfels, in whose apartment in Brooklyn the fugitives were found. She is alleged by the police to have been the brains behind the daring plan of escape. She was jailed in default of $5,000 bail on the charge of harboring escaped asylum inmates.

The four men captured were:

William H. Nelson, 22 year old burglary suspect of Edgewater, N. J., who escaped three weeks ago and broke back into the hospital on Thursday morning to rescue his friends.

Harry Gordon, 44, Rochester butcher who killed two other butchers he thought were persecuting him.

John Biggins, 30, of Brooklyn, an alleged robber.

Frank Gambill, 24, of Manhattan, accused of assault.

INVOKE DUCE AS AUSTRALIA BARS 62 IMMIGRANTS

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 7.—A direct appeal to Premier Mussolini has been made by 62 Italian immigrants, all in comfortable circumstances, whom the Australian government has prohibited from landing owing to the unemployment crisis.

The immigrants gained a point today in their battle with the authorities by insisting on being carried northward to Brisbane, which their steamer tickets entitled them to. The wife of one well to do Sydney resident was allowed to land, but her brother was held aboard though work ashore had been guaranteed.

The police today rounded up five of six immigrants who had escaped. The efforts of the Italian consul general to obtain lifting of the ban have failed and the public is awaiting Premier Mussolini's possible intervention with interest.

Holy Land Jails 300 Arabs for Illegal Immigration

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

JERUSALEM, Dec. 7.—The Palestine government has rounded up 300 Trans-Jordan citizens for entering Palestine illegally. They will be deported. The roundup follows recent protests that Arab immigration from Trans-Jordan has been unchecked, while Jewish immigration to Palestine is prohibited.

SIOUX CITY BANKS GET $2,000,000 IN CASE OF RUNS

Sioux City, Ia., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Large shipments of money, said by clearing house officials to total approximately $2,000,000, were received by Sioux City banks today as a precaution against possible heavy withdrawals following the closing of the First National and Sioux National banks late yesterday.

The closed banks were two of the oldest in Sioux City. The First National was capitalized at $1,000,000 and the Sioux National at $400,000. Officials of both institutions expressed confidence today that the banks would soon reopen following an examination of the records of an examiner.

CHINA EASIEST LAND IN WORLD TO GET DIVORCE

There's No Requirement; Mates Just Quit.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Dec. 7.—China is the easiest country in the world in which to obtain a divorce—providing one is a Chinese citizen or a citizen of some country such as Germany or Russia, which has relinquished its extraterritorial rights. The possibility that all foreigners residing in China may lose their extraterritorial rights upon the expiration of the American and British treaties in 1933-1934 has served to direct attention upon this question of laxity of Chinese laws concerning marriage and divorce.

Chinese marriage and divorce regulations are said to be less strict than those of soviet Russia, due to the fact that under Chinese law it is not even necessary to register marriages. And, as for divorce, if both parties are agreeable that's all there's to it! They simply cease living together and are free to go their separate ways and marry again at will.

Looms as National Scandal.

As there is no law requiring the registration of marriages and no legal formalities to comply with in case both parties desire a divorce, there are, in consequence, no statistics available showing the prevalence of divorces in relation to marriages. The situation is approaching a national scandal, according to Chinese newspapers, which demand such registrations.

Publication of figures showing divorces granted by Chinese courts in Peiping and Shanghai in the first six months of 1930 is largely responsible for the demand for more stringent laws. The figures showed that Peiping courts granted more than 800 divorces in the half year period, while Shanghai courts granted more than 500. As Peiping boasts a population of 1,000,000 and the Shanghai international settlement of about 800,000, these divorce figures would not be so serious but for the fact that they only represent contested cases. Nothing is known about the hundreds and possibly thousands of other cases where both parties were agreeable to separation and simply annulled the marriage contract by common consent.

Causes for Divorce.

Causes for divorce do not differ materially from those prevalent in western lands—incompatibility, infidelity, and nonsupport.

Chinese editors declare that it is a curious situation that the national government, while placing harsh restrictions upon political rights, freedom of speech, and assembly, has paid little or no attention to the vastly more important matter of marriage.

The trouble apparently is due to the political revolution which has resulted in extremist tendencies among the masses of the people.

A further source of trouble is said to be the "hang over" of the custom of parents arranging marriages without the consent of the children. These marriages in ancient times were arranged by a "go-between" for a financial consideration.

Concubinage Now Illegal.

It was this system that was largely responsible for the widespread Chinese system of concubinage. Husbands, finding themselves wedded to uncongenial wives, would find another woman. Since divorce was impossible, he would adopt the expediency of introducing the new wife into his household as a concubine. The concubine had legal status and children of concubines shared equally with the children of the legal wife in the estate.

This situation has now been changed and concubinage is illegal and provides the No. 1 wife with grounds for divorce. But China has now swung to the other extreme and, in effect, has abolished both marriage and divorce, the results being almost complete chaos in the matter of marriage relationships.

CHINA ENACTS 6,000 LAWS IN TWO YEARS; A WORLD'S RECORD?

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Dec. 7.—Although the Chinese national legislature, popularly known as the "legislative Yuan," has been in existence only two years it has probably won the world's record among legislative bodies for enacting laws.

According to a report made today in connection with the celebration of the legislative Yuan's second anniversary, Chairman Hu Hamm-ing announced that new laws comprising a total of more than 6,000 articles had been passed and promulgated, including a complete criminal code, a civil code, laws relating to matters pertaining to family relations and inheritance, and others.

President Wang Hung-ui of the judicial Yuan declared that the civil code on labor and land laws, while confirming Chinese traditional ideas, also confirmed the highest standards set up by any other country. The legislative Yuan is composed of only one house and is limited approximately to 50 members, all belonging to the Kuomintang party. The members were appointed and not elected. As the members' terms have expired, the legislature will take a two weeks' vacation pending the appointment of new members.

GIRL'S ALLEGED SLAYER SEEKS TO ADDRESS JURY

Denver, Colo., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Counsel for Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin said tonight he again would attempt to obtain permission for her to address a jury before it deliberates on her alleged guilt in connection with the slaying of her 10 year old stepdaughter, Leona. A similar request made Saturday was denied.

Final arguments in the case are scheduled to begin tomorrow morning. The state had announced it would seek the death penalty, but this move apparently has been nullified by exclusion of an alleged confession reputedly made to police.

Colorado law stipulates that the death sentence can be imposed only when a murder has been witnessed or the slayer has confessed. The maximum penalty in other cases is life imprisonment.

The case was expected to reach the jury some time tomorrow afternoon.

London Movies Packed; Defy Sunday "Blue Law"

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 7.—Ignoring Thursday's High court decision declaring the Sunday opening of cinemas illegal, most of the London movie theaters tonight sported "house full" placards. Extra electric signs also emphasized that business was going on as usual. Theaters opened in accordance with the decision of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' association.

BRITISH POLICE FLOG UNARMED GANDHI REBELS

Passive Men Suffer to Give India Liberty.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOMBAY, Nov. 17—[By Mail.]—It has been grim war in India the last seven months, and, it being war, there have been many casualties, brutalities, miscarriages of justice and all the other accoutrements of war.

The tales of horror which have even been allowed to appear in the Indian press have been sickening in their frightfulness. Stories of ruthless thrashing with the dreaded lathi of unarmed little men squatting on the pavement. Of floggings of young boys of 14 as punishment for political offenses and more floggings of political prisoners in the jails, guilty of minor breaches of prison rules; of unarmed men shot down in cold blood for no greater offense than gathering in public meetings to give vent to their new-born patriotism.

Horrors of Lathi Charge.

It is an unequal struggle so far as violence goes. For the law has disarmed the Indian, and unarmed citizenry against policemen with guns have not much chance. Even the lathi stick, which Indians yield with deadly skill, has been denied the revolutionaries by their leader, Mahatma Gandhi. And I defy any westerner, hardboiled and used to bloodshed, though he may be, to watch just an ordinary, routine lathi charge and not come away with the feeling that he had been to some sort of an execution.

It was a terrible sight. These little brown men, apparently so frail, squatting in the gutter while a policeman, usually a hefty European sergeant, whacks away at them with his bamboo stick. Huge welts spring up on those brown shoulders, the blood trickles down from the neck, yet the whack, whack, whack goes on and the little brown body keeps on taking them, never rising to hit back.

And finally he swoons away and lies prostrate on those shoulders now beaten into a reddish pulp. And the sergeant moves on to a new victim. Soon the ambulance volunteers arrive. They lay their comrade on a stretcher and rush him off to the Congress hospital.

Women Appear Stoical.

The young women volunteers in their orange colored saris glance at the figure in the stretcher as it is carried by them. They do not seem to be much affected, though. They glance away and continue their picketing. Their job is to keep the voters from getting into the polls. But soon they are carted away in police vans to jail. Others take their place. And this goes on all day.

At the Congress hospital a young doctor takes me through and explains. But you can't print all he explains. He goes into anatomical details. He explains certain wounds received by volunteers. The nature of a very few of them reminds you of the German atrocity stories you heard during the war. I suggest that they were accidental wounds, but he easily proves they are deliberate.

The hospital, supported entirely by the Congress movement, occupies two residences, donated on a day's notice by their respective occupants, Bombay merchants. Beds, furniture, sheets, electric fans, food—all donated by Bombay patriots. Medicine—all German—furnished free by local druggists. Nurses, doctors, attendants giving their services without charge

2,334 Hurt in 2 Months.

The doctor shows me a hospital chart over two months' time. Here it is:

Nature of injury.	In-Patients.	Out-Patients.
Bruises and abrasions	356	1,297
Lacerated wounds	89	82
Head injuries	59	35
Fractures	22	13
Horse marks	5	10
Bullet wounds	45	11
Medical cases	58	239
	644	1,690

And yet the European sergeants who do most of the lathi whacking do not seem particularly brutal fellows when you talk to them. Many of them are Irish, big and fat like a New York or Chicago policeman, and as genial. It baffles them how a man can take their blows sitting down and not either strike back or run. It is as unintelligible to them as the mysticism of Hindu religion.

Letter received by Miss Alice Guillemenot, 820 North Michigan avenue, Chicago.

"This letter was sent to me by my mother from Dijon, France," writes Miss Guillemenot. "I lived there until I came to this country five years ago.

"Dijon, with 80,000 people, is the capital of the State of Cote d'Or, which really means 'golden Hills.' It got this name because the city is surrounded for miles by hills covered with rich vineyards, whose leaves in the sunlight make it seem as though the whole countryside were covered with a sheet of gold.

"Dijon is also the capital of the province of Burgundy. The palace of the dukes of Burgundy is now the Hotel de Ville, or 'city hall.' The city became the capital of Burgundy in 1015 and from there went the great strong dukes who ruled France for 400 years.

"The city is now the seat of a university, an archbishop and the courts of appeal. It is full of wonderful public and private buildings, museums and monuments. Many of the foremost writers, composers and painters of ancient and modern times owned the cultured city as their birthplace.

"Commercially, the most valued products of Dijon are the famous wines of Burgundy and the 'Cassis de Dijon' commands a fancy price throughout France and other countries, excepting the United States.

"During the war, Dijon suffered many air raids and was a great center for the American army, many of the soldiers of which attended the university after the Armistice. There is also an American military cemetery."

DRYS PLAN WEEK OF MANEUVERS AT WASHINGTON

Several Organizations to Take a Part.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Setting up their scenery on the stage of the national capital the organized drys tomorrow will raise the curtain on a week of demonstrations intended to glorify the eighteenth amendment and the reign of Volsteadism.

Virtually every important dry leader as well as hundreds of lesser personages in the prohibition promotion business will participate in a series of conclaves starting with a two day session of the national temperance conference comprising local and state dry organizations, reaching a climax on Wednesday at the annual assemblage of the national conference of organizations supporting the 18th amendment.

That the time is propitious for a gathering of dry clans the leaders are certain, in view of the need to counteract the rising wet tide manifested in the November elections.

Wickersham Draft Being Written.

The drys also are counting upon the psychological effect of attracting notice during the opening days of congress. Coincident with the first meeting tomorrow, the Wickersham commission, after a ten day recess, will resume the drafting of its report which may recommend some form of modification as the policy of the Hoover administration.

What steps the dry groups will take during the week are problematical, but it is no secret that one of their chief motives is to keep President Hoover and the Republican party dry in 1932. The report of the Wickersham commission is bound to be an important factor in this situation.

The meeting Wednesday of the national conference of organizations supporting the eighteenth amendment will bring together thirty-three clerical and secular bodies, including the Anti-Saloon league, the W. C. T. U., and the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition and public morals, claiming an aggregate membership of twenty million.

The Methodist board will hold its annual meeting Dec. 9, at which time Dr. Clarence True Wilson, secretary, will make his report. On Dec. 10 the international reform bureau will hold a one day conference.

Oppose Referendum Plan.

Preliminary to the main sessions of the federated dry organizations the executive committee has met several times. It was reported to have voted heavily against any national prohibition referendum plan, but this proposal is expected to figure in the general discussions.

While the drys are holding the spotlight a counter demonstration will be staged in Washington by a section of the organized wets. The Federal Dispensary-Tax Reduction league will sponsor a convention starting tomorrow. Dr. F. W. Buck, secretary of the league, announced today that 150 or 200 delegates, from every large city, would be present.

REVEAL MOVE FOR CONVENTION ON BASIC LAW

Citizens' Assn. O. K.'s Downstate Proposal.

New prospects for the calling of a state constitutional convention to consider reapportionment, taxation, and the consolidation of local governments in Cook county were disclosed yesterday in a letter to the Citizens' association of Chicago from Representative Frederick W. Rennick of Buda, in the Thirty-seventh district, and in the association's reply.

Mr. Rennick sought the opinion of the Citizens' association on the advisability of urging the next session of the general assembly to consider calling another constitutional convention, and in its reply to the downstate legislator, the association expressed the hope that he would take the lead in offering the necessary joint resolution early in the coming session.

Downstate Offer Pleases.

Previous opposition to reapportionment and other matters of importance to Chicago and Cook county has been centered downstate, and in view of the new suggestion originating with a downstate legislator, proponents of reapportionment appeared much gratified.

In his letter Mr. Rennick said he had heard numerous suggestions for another constitutional convention, in view of the recent defeat of the proposed revenue amendment to the constitution. He said he believed it was agreed that other problems, including reapportionment, could only be settled by an amendment or revision of the constitution.

Favors Second Attempt.

"I know there is considerable discouragement about submitting a proposed new constitution after the defeat of the one voted on in 1922," Mr Rennick wrote. "However, both of our revisions of the constitution were the result of second attempts. . . Another constitutional convention could avoid the objections made on the one submitted in 1922, and, I believe, submit a proposal that would be ratified."

A. S. Peabody, president of the association, asserted in his reply to Mr. Rennick that he agreed that a constitutional convention offered the best, if not the only, feasible method of obtaining needed reforms that require changes in the present constitution, such as improvement of the state's system of taxation, shorter ballots, consolidation of local governing bodies, and reapportionment.

Mr. Peabody recalled that the association, led by the late George E. Cole, carried on the five year campaign for the passage of the joint resolution for a convention by the assembly in 1917. He said the organization had been following recent developments and believed that the acute tax situation, and other needed changes, which have met with failure by the piece-meal method of constitutional amendments, required the calling of another constitutional convention.

Believes Time Is Favorable.

"In my opinion," Mr. Peabody wrote, "the time is now favorable for renewing the campaign for a constitutional convention and I hope you will take the lead in offering the necessary joint resolution in the house early in the coming session.

"It is recognized that the last convention made a serious mistake in tying all of its proposals together, instead of submitting the most important ones separately. This caused each person who was opposed to any part of the proposed new constitution to vote against the entire document."

SEIZE MACHINE GUNS IN LISBON; FEAR REBEL PLOT

LISBON, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Continuing their investigation into an alleged revolutionary plot, disclosed in the discovery within the last few days of almost 200 bombs in various parts of the city, police today seized five machine guns and ammunition at the fertilizer factory of the Commercial Agricultural alliance.

The owner of the factory, Candido Alves Riberio, was arrested. The police charge the guns were obtained by Luis Mala Mónteiro, who at present is ill at the prison hospital.

Extending their investigation into the provinces, the police seized 43 sticks of dynamite at Oporto, together with cartridges and chlorate of potassium.

SHEPARD TRIAL ON DEATH CHARGE RESUMES TODAY

Kansas City, Kas., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Maj. Charles A. Shepard, elderly officer of the army medical corps, accused of fatally poisoning his wife, awaited today the government's preparation to resume tomorrow its efforts to convict him of murder.

Miss Grace Brandon, pretty San Antonio, Tex., stenographer, whom the government regards as its star witness, remained under the protection of federal officers.

S. M. Brewster, district attorney, was assembling witnesses, including several army officers, for presentation of medical testimony relative to the ailment which struck down Mrs. Zenana Shepard at Fort Riley, Kas., June 15, 1930. The opening statement of the prosecution charged Mrs. Shepard was the victim of slow poison. The motive, Brewster asserted, was Maj. Shepard's desire to marry Miss Brandon.

The defense asserted Mrs. Shepard was a liquor addict and had several times expressed a wish to end her life, in fear of a mental ailment suffered by her mother.

Four witnesses, including Gen. Ireland, had been examined at adjournment of federal court yesterday.

NEW EMPEROR STRIVES TO HALT SLAVE TRADING

Arabs Get "Black Ivory" in Negro Empire.

BY WILLIAM J. MAKIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ADDIS ABABA, Dec. 7.—It is an ugly word to use in Abyssinia today. Even the white men glance round nervously when the subject is introduced into conversation. They tell you that walls have ears and that the servant who is pouring out your drinks may carry those careless words to the palace. Much better not to discuss it.

Yet, the damning fact remains that slavery still exists in Abyssinia. "Black Ivory" still is bought and sold. The country may be a member of the league of nations and Ras Tafari, recently crowned emperor, undoubtedly is sincere in his efforts to stamp out the traffic, yet the dhows still slip across the Red sea at night and thread the reefs of the Arabian coast with their precious cargoes.

Negroes Also Own Slaves.

It has been asserted recently that there are two million slaves in Abyssinia. This is not an excessive estimate. It is true that by edict of Ras Tafari the children of slaves are born free and that in years to come the old tradition of slavery may disappear. But nowadays in Abyssinia "black ivory" is traded in the same subterranean fashion as bootleg liquor in America. Instead of the slaves being chained a dozen to one pole in the open market place awaiting purchasers, they are now hidden underground. The Arabs now haggle in the cellars.

Even within two miles of the palace of Ras Tafari, men have been known to disappear in mysterious fashion. It is still possible in those badly paved back streets of Addis Ababa to have your enemy knocked on the head and dragged into a cellar. Then a camel caravan starts for the coast and among those who follow the camel is a drugged and beaten man wrapped in a coarse native shamma.

Easy to Take Captive.

In the wilds of Abyssinia slaves are easily obtained. It must be admitted that many natives deliberately offer themselves for slavery. They believe they will be better treated, better fed and housed than they would be as freemen. Which, generally speaking, is true.

One high functionary in Addis Ababa whom I questioned about slavery asked me to go along and see his own slaves. He admitted frankly that he had some fifty at his home. 'I gave them all their freedom two years ago," he said with a smile, "but they refuse to leave the house. They say they would starve if they did. Now they are just a nuisance. They have to be fed, and I have to pay for the feeding."

Then there are the slaves of the priests in Ethiopia. As the priesthood is large and their lands extensive, so their slaves are numerous. Many of the slaves in the monasteries of the mountains are in the beginning runaway slaves from harsh masters.

Once a slave reaches the sanctuary of a monastery he is safe from his master. He cannot be claimed. And the priests readily give sanctuary to such runaway slaves. Very soon, however, the slave discovers that there is plenty of work to be done for the priests and that he has merely exchanged one form of slavery for another.

Good Market in Arabia.

The fact that there still is a ready market for slaves in Arabia is a great temptation to the wild tribesmen of the mountains. Even today they will not hesitate to raid neighboring territory in order to supply themselves with "black ivory."

There is a secret bureau established by Ras Tafari in Addis Ababa, the duties of which is to find out the extent of slave traffic and to aid in its abolition. If one could glance at its records some astonishing facts would be revealed. This bureau has been in existence since 1924 and, not unnaturally, is suspected of being open to graft.

The coast line of the Red sea is the world's blackest spot in the barbaric traffic. In betwen the coral reefs Arab dhows wait to rush the slaves from Africa to Asia. There are several British and French patrol boats on the Red sea which do not hesitate to search suspicious looking dhows.

Usually the slaves are huddled in the bottom of the dhow. When a patrol boat is seen bearing down upon them swift action follows. With fierce whispers th. Arab crew make the slaves lie flat. Then a huge tarpaulin is stretched over them. The next moment the Arabs are walking about on this tarpaulin as through it concealed nothing more suspicious than a cargo of dates or dried fish. In many cases the ruse is successful.

Not far from the coast is the Island of Slaves, a small barren expanse dotted with volcanic craters. Often this island is lost in the heat haze that smothers everything in these regions. A search party which eventually discovered the island was on the point of giving up their lonely and dangerous quest when they came across a swiftly moving Arab ship. Rifles were pointed at the search party who, however, managed to gain the confidence of the Arab crew, and were eventually allowed to board their ship.

FILIPINOS NAME BOARDS TO LIMIT INDUSTRY OUTPUT

Is an Experiment in State Control.

BY ROBERT SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, Dec. 7.—The third session of the eighth Philippine legislature, which recently adjourned, showed a definite trend toward paternalism in legislation. The creation of governmental boards of control affecting industry was the most important legislation passed.

Of this group of bills, that which caused most comment was the measure creating a sugar board with larger powers than any extragovernmental agency yet established in the Philippines. This board, to consist of 11 men named by the governor general, has been given the authority not only to conduct research, make recommendations, and establish market information service, but actually to limit crop production in the interest of higher prices for sugar.

Bill Is Rushed Through.

The measure came as a surprise near the close of the session. Its details had been worked out by Rafael Alunan, secretary of agriculture, and the governor general had indicated that he was favorably inclined to some regulatory legislation of this sort. In consequence the bill was fully drafted and understood to have administrative sanction before it ever appeared in the legislature.

A storm broke, once it was proposed. The Philippine Sugar association has an executive committee with many of the powers delegated to the new board. This body felt that the proposed legislation was unnecessary, in its favorable aspects, and dictatorial in the others. A hasty campaign was conducted by the association, but the surprise had been so great that before their forces could be mobilized the bill had passed both houses of the legislature. Senator Osmena announced that due to the shortness of time no public committee hearings would be conducted, and, indeed, little committee consideration was necessary to put the bill in its final form.

The sugar association conducted a brief newspaper campaign against the bill but was unable to bring any considerable degree of pressure on the legislature.

Establish Coconut Board.

When the measure finally came up it was accompanied by an identically similar bill establishing a coconut board to control the industry. The fiber standardization board already regulates the production and marketing of hemp, while a tobacco board has been created for the same purpose in the tobacco industry.

In each case the board is sustained by a small tax on the product so that funds are always available.

In spite of the bitterness of the attacks which have been leveled against the new policy, there are many persons in the Philippines who are watching with close interest the outcome of this political experiment. At the present time all of the major exports of the Philippines, except lumber, are controlled by these newly created boards. Their operation, therefore, is an experiment in a type of bureau control, hitherto unknown in the Philippines.

New York, Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Eleanor Hutton Sturges won't be shy of luxuries even if her high society parents, the E. F. Huttons, live up to threats of leaving her out of the family will.

The Park avenue debutante, who angered her parents recently by marrying a mere playwright, Preston Sturges, who made nearly a million with his smash hit, "Strictly Dishonorable"—is independent for life. Last week she became 21 and came into possession of nearly $1,500,000 left her by her grandparents, the Posts.

"MOTHER" JONES WILL BE BURIED THIS MORNING

Mt. Olive, Ill., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Mine workers throughout Illinois and from many other states gathered here today to pay last tribute to Mary [Mother] Jones, who will be buried in the miners' union cemetery here tomorrow.

The Odd Fellows' temple, where her body has been lying in state since the arrival here from Washington, D. C., proved far too small to house the 4,000 persons who sought admission to hear a panegyric service.

Loud speakers on the outside of the building carried the sermon of the Rev. J. W. R. McGuire of Kankakee, Ill., to those unable to gain entrance.

The Rev. Mr. McGuire described Mother Jones as a fearless woman with a great and indomitable spirit, a flaming tongue, and with the burning love of a mother.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Church of the Ascension, the Rev Mr. McGuire officiating.

BROADCAST SOUNDS FROM SUBMARINE FAR BELOW THE SURFACE

New York, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Sounds from a submarine far below the surface, the swish of the sea and a word picture of underwater craft in action gave a coast to coast radio audience a new thrill today.

As two submarines speeded along 10 miles off the coast of New London, Conn., two announcers of the National Broadcasting company and naval officers depicted for listeners what they saw as one submarine went below and the other stayed on the surface.

It was the first broadcast from a submersible as it sank below the waves. It was made through the cooperation of the United States navy with the O-8 going below and the O-4 staying on the surface.

SYNOPSIS.

Richard Chandos and his wife, Leonie, former grand duchess of Reichtenburg, are visited at their estate near Littal, in Austria, by George Hanbury. A telegram arrives from Marya Salm, countess of Dresden, an expected guest, stating that she dare not come. Prince Paul, ruler of Reichtenburg, had hoped to marry Leonie and was incensed at her marriage to Chandos. Fearing for Marya's safety because of her friendship for Leonie Chandos and Hanbury, with their servants, Bell and Rowley, depart for Vigil, capital city of Reichtenburg, where Marya resides. Because of the enmity of the prince they must enter the country in stealth. They drive to the frontier and leave Rowley with the car at a farm and proceed by foot. A peasant named Ramon, whom they befriend, leads them over the border by a secret path under a waterfall. They reach the home of Marya unseen, and learn from her that she sent no message and that she plans to drive to Austria that night. Realizing the telegram was a ruse to lure them within the prince's dominion, they are preparing to flee with Marya, when the prince arrives. The men hold the prince and his servants at point of gun and escape in the royal car. They find the border so closely guarded that hope of crossing is abandoned. Chandos remembers Ramon, who lives in the nearby town of Gola. They seek him for aid. He agrees to hide Marya and Carol, her trusted servant, in his house. Chandos and Hanbury accept an offer to join a traveling circus.

INSTALLMENT XIII.

THREATENED EXPOSURE.

Hurriedly we told Ramon our plan.

"We should be safe," said I, "for, as you heard, the police have been through his vans and I don't think it's very likely they'll trouble to do it again. When the countess awakes tell her and say that as soon as it's safe we'll come again. They can't guard the frontier forever. And once the stir has died down we'll cross by night. Till then will you keep her safe?"

"I will, my lord," said Ramon.

Against his will I gave him what money I had.

"That's for expenses. Carol must be clad as a peasant, and I think it would be as well if her ladyship changed her clothes."

Then we spoke to Carol and told him to serve his mistress as best he could and that as Ramon said he must do in every particular.

Thirty seconds later we were out of the house.

It was broad daylight before we reached the train, and I shall ever remember the feeling of thankfulness with which we stepped in among the horses and asked for Bach.

The latter seemed dazed—I imagine, for want of sleep—and I doubt if he heard the story we tried to tell; in any event, he was past caring who we were or whence we came, so we were to help him in a labor which Hercules might have shirked. He had but two stable boys that were fast asleep, and more than thirty horses were in his charge, all of them good to look at and most of them cross.

"We've given you no cause for suspicion."

We told him what Reubens had said—for that, we learned, was the circus master's name—and, hearing the song of a brook behind a hedge, asked him to give us buckets and fell to work.

By the time that Reubens was back all the horses had been properly watered and fed; five minutes later the circus was under way.

From then till the show was over no one, so far as I saw, either rested or ate; myself, I have never worked harder in all my life. That every one was too busy and, later, too much exhausted to trouble about new faces was very clear, and I think that half the circus were strangers to one another and that life was too hard for the members of that unhappy fellowship to take any interest in any affairs but their own.

Indeed, if only the police did not repeat their visit we seemed to be safe, for our time was spent in the horse lines, from which the public was barred, and Reubens did not suggest that we should enter the ring.

Before the evening performance we had a short rest and were able to eat some rations which Bach produced. Whilst we were eating Reubens came down the lines, tricked out in a ringmaster's dress, to say that the tents would be struck at 11 o'clock and that we should leave at midnight for Janes, twelve miles away.

There was nothing to be said, but Janes was twelve miles from Vigil, from which we were now twenty-four.

When the man was gone we sought to consider our plight.

We could not get out of the country, therefore we must lie hid. So long as we stayed with the circus we were comparatively safe. That the circus was moving westward was most unfortunate: for one thing, we were leaving the countess; for another, each step that we took would have to be later retraced.

We bitterly repented that we had not thought to tell Ramon where we had left the Rolls and bade him take out the countess the instant the troops were withdrawn. This would have been common sense, but the stress of the moment had played the deuce with our wits and now, like all the others, that chance was gone.

After a little we lay down and slept like the dead—for less than an hour.

At 11 o'clock that night we assisted to strike the tents, and shortly after midnight we shambled on to the road.

* * * *

From Janes we went to Vigil.

Our pitch lay west of the city, some two miles out.

Our feelings may be imagined, yet what could we do?

We saw no papers, heard nothing of what was happening, feared to inquire. We could not communicate with Mme. Dresden, still less with Leonie. Lest we be recognized, we dared not leave the horse lines, much less dared leave the circus, for without some means of transport we could not even reach Gola during the night.

But for the countess our way would have been plain enough. After five more days the circus would leave Reichtenburg, crossing the western frontier on Thursday night. Here the country was flat, and the river which made the border was, I knew, used by barges and could not, therefore, be dangerous to men that could swim. Even if the troops were still out—and this seemed unlikely—we ought to be able to evade them without any fuss. But that was a dream. The moment we dared we must return to Gola. Reason suggested that we should return very soon. What frightened me most of all was that Leonie, hearing no news, might act for herself.

One good thing we had of Vigil and that was a full night's rest. But when I awoke the next morning I then and there made up my mind to leave the circus that night.

When I told George he nodded.

"I wondered," he said, "how long you'd be able to stand it. I would have left at Vardar, but I thought that if you could stick it, why, so could I." He took a deep breath. "Marching the wrong way is bad for my heart. It is suspense. For all we know, Marya Dresden was taken two hours after we left."

"God forbid," said I.

"Amen," says George. "Never mind. Do we tell Reubens or no?"

"I think so," said I. "I'm not mad about his style, but we don't want to let the man down."

"I've no compunction," said George, "about walking out. The man hasn't helped us—he's used us. We've taken no money, and far more than earned our keep. No one would work as we have for his food and three guineas a day."

"I know," said I. "All the same, he's been very convenient."

"So've we," said George. "Very. Never mind. You're usually right."

Half an hour later Reubens came down the lines.

"This afternoon," he said, blinking, "I'll want one of you in the ring. Ada kicked up a fuss last night, and these —— boys are afraid. What's more, the more knows it. She'll play them up to glory, and so I must have one of you."

George shot me a glance. Then——

"I'm sorry," he said, "but we can't show up like that."

The man looked down his nose.

"The police won't be there," he said softly.

"Perhaps not," said George. "But, frankly, we mustn't be seen."

"This is damned awkward," Reubens said. "Strikes me I'm guilty of harboring."

"I don't see that," said George. "You were short handed and we came and asked for a job."

"And got it in one," said the other. "No questions asked. You know as well as I do, I'm taking a hell of a risk."

"I fail to see it," said George. "We've given you no cause for suspicion."

"That's true," he said. "No cause for suspicion—to date. At least, no more they can prove." He hesitated. "Well, don't give me one—that's all. If you do—well, I don't want to hurt you, but I've got to look after myself."

With that he was gone.

Good morning!

"Tol'able David" is like some folks—it grows on you.

From a tol'able start it gets better and better, and when it's over you feel that you have indeed witnessed a darlin' of a movie.

This melodrama, staged in the southern mountains, is a talking adaptation of Joseph Hergesheimer's story, done once as a "silent" with Richard Barthelmess in the title rôle. My recollection of the former picture is vague, but I'm pretty certain that Mr. Barthelmess acquitted himself no better as "Tol'able" than does young Cromwell, who is a newcomer to the screen.

The lad gives a touching and poised performance of the adolescent hill billy who yearned to be considered a man and to drive the mail "hack," and, through tragedy, quick, cruel and unexpected, had his dreams come true.

"You do fine foh a boy, Davey," say the folks, "but you ain't a man yet an' you can't do a man's work. You're just tol'able, David, just tol'able . . ." How David hates that word!

So David putters and yearns and chases about with his understanding dog and makes shy love to his girl, Esther Hatburn, until the horrible happens. Three jailbird relatives come to live with Esther and her father. One of the sons is utterly vicious. The other, though milder, carries a gun that he likes to shoot. . . .

You won't soon forget the scenes where the boy's dog is killed and his adored older brother, driver of the "hack," crippled for life; nor the episode where David protects the government mail bag against a sinister trio.

The acting is consistently good throughout. Noah Beery is hideously believable as the vicious half wit. Joan Peers, our little Chicago product, is an appealing Esther. Edmund Breese, Henry Walthall, Helen Ware, et al., absorbed and seem to exude the story's fatalistic, feudal atmosphere. Miss Ware plays David's mother and her exclamation "O, my Heavenly Father!" when her eldest son is brought home to her unconscious and at the point of death, is one of the most acutely affecting ejaculations that ever glanced off a talking screen.

Scenery, sets, and photography are splendid. Dialogue rings true. The director of this one knows his way about!

Take it from me a trip to the Palace this week will repay you. See you tomorrow.

Polacco Tells Story of Resignation from Chicago Civic Opera

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MILAN, Italy, Dec. 7.—Giorgio Polacco told tonight about his resignation as conductor of the Chicago Civic opera. He said he wrote to Samuel Insull on Nov. 19 to that effect, but waited until Mr. Insull had a chance to make the announcement.

At his apartment in Piazza Eleanora Duse, Signor Polacco added: "I was prevented from joining the Chicago Civic Opera through illness after planning to sail several times; and in order not to take advantage of the kindness of Mr. Insull, and to relieve him of the embarrassment of my several postponements, I wrote my resignation, knowing that I might be further, and even indefinitely delayed. Of course it is with deep sorrow and regret that I give up such an important position, my part in the great organization, and my many Chicago friends to whom I am devoted."

DANCERS ADD MOVIES TO STAGE EFFECTS; THE DAY'S CONCERTS

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Something new was introduced in the performance of Andreas Pavley and the Pavley-Oukrainsky dancers at the Eighth Street theater yesterday afternoon. It goes under the resounding name of videballeton, and while it is not yet perfect in action, it may easily develop into something of importance for the stage.

It is a combination of scenery, moving pictures, and music. A screen with an arched entrance cut in the middle occupies the stage. Through a projector pictures appear on the side, of dancers, of mere scenery, of oddities of angle and line, what not. The living dancers appear in the entrance, which also, by projected light, takes differences of color and design. Meanwhile a sound machine plays for all the dancers, living or screened, and thus all movements are synchronized.

Its weakness as far would seem to be matters of construction. The screened figures belong to an early era of movie photography part, though by no means all of the designs and colors are unattractive and there are still improvements due to be made in the sound machine. But even now it is unusually interesting and it has distinct possibilities.

The Pavley-Oukrainsky dancers are the best ensemble to have appeared since this organization was put into being a dozen years ago.

Of the pure music of the afternoon, the first to be heard was by Harry Melnikoff, violinist, at the Civic theater. He would seem to be in the constantly growing front rank of fine players, with a large, opulent tone, a set of fingers on his left hand that make light of what the composers intended to be difficult, and the approach of a sympathetic musician.

The Amy Neill String quartet, an excellent organization, was at Orchestra hall in the second concert of the Chicago Chamber Music series. The first number was Zoltan Kodaly's second quartet, a work with considerable Hungarian folk music as its basis developed with many waggish effects of harmony and rhythm, and extremely well played. Other numbers were H. Waldo Warner's Suite in the Olden Style and one of the Schumann quartets.

Vernon Williams, tenor, and stated to be the son of another famous tenor, Evan Williams, appeared in recital at the Playhouse. His voice is vigorous and open, and, if not altogether trained in the niceties of bel canto, able to find its way about a varied program of songs.

Some 800 singers, representing the United German Male choruses of Chicago, gathered at Medinah temple yesterday afternoon to sing under the baton of Karl Reckzeh in a program for the benefit of the German Aid society.

Robert Franks Club for Boys Recalls Tragedy

Others' Lives Brightened as Child's Memorial.

The Robert E. Franks Memorial of the American Boys' Commonwealth, a clubhouse for Jewish youngsters at 5515 West 13th place, was dedicated yesterday. Among the speakers were Probate Judge Henry Horner, Jane Addams, Mrs. Flora G. Franks, widow of the donor of the memorial; Joseph L. Block, president of the Young Men's Jewish Charities, and C. J. Atkinson, executive director of the Boys' Club Federation of America.

The memorial is an $80,000 clubhouse with gymnasium, assembly rooms and workshops. More than 1,100 boys are members of the commonwealth and will be eligible to participation in athletic games and social activities in the club, which is situated in a congested west side district.

The late Jacob Franks provided for the memorial in his will, bequeathing a $100,000 fund in honor of his son, Bobby Franks, who was murdered six years ago by Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, now serving life sentences in Joliet penitentiary. Mr. Franks died about three years ago.

The will asked that a type of memorial be chosen which would "be a fitting memorial to perpetuate the memory of my boy, who would desire that any memorial in his name be one that would give pleasure, help and encouragement to boys."

The American Boys' commonwealth is sponsored by the Young Men's Jewish Charities, which also sponsors a camp at Round Lake, Ill., which will also benefit from the Franks memorial fund.

At the ceremonies yesterday in the clubhouse A. J. Pfiaum spoke for the trustees of the Franks estate, who were Mrs. Franks, Abraham J. Franks, and Brig. Gen. Abel Davis. The manner in which the clubhouse has been outfitted was described by Jay Kraus, chairman of the committee on furnishings.

Preacher Urges Elders to See New Youth with Younger Eyes

Modern life presents more difficult problems than ever faced any other generation of youth in history. So declared the Rev. George A. Buttrick, D. D., pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian church of New York, speaking last night before the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall.

"The danger to youth," Dr. Buttrick declared, "lies in its crusading zeal and truth seeking mind, which lead it to challenge hoary lies disguised as precedents and to walk as if none before had tried the pitfalls of life or blazed a firm trail.

"Understanding, between the generations must come partly through the generosity of youth, but still is more dependent on the frankness and good sportsmanship of age."

THE THEATER

"SIMPLE SIMON."

An extravaganza, given at the Grand Opera house Dec. 7, 1930, with Ed Wynn as star. Libretto by Mr. Wynn and Guy Bolton; music by Richard Rodgers; lyrics by Lorenz Hart. Stage settings by Joseph Urban; stage direction by Florenz Ziegfeld and Seymour Felix.

THE COMPANY:

Ed Wynn	Harriet Hoctor
Gil Squires	Carter De Haven Jr.
Margaret Breen	William H. White
George Offerman	Jack Squires
Wini Shaw	Marjorie De Haven
Harry Shannon	Frieda Mierse

And others.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

ED WYNN must have decided that it was time to stage a musical show for the generation that cherishes fond memories of "Babes in Toyland," and for their children, and for every one who is weary of the modern pose of toughness. So he jotted down the libretto of "Simple Simon" on his cuff and persuaded the sophisticated Mr. Ziegfeld to whistle up all the old nursery rhyme characters that have been neglected since extravaganzas passed out of fashion—not forgetting a property horse.

Therefore the Sunday nighters at the Grand Opera house, assembled for a regulation Broadway carnival, found themselves confronted with an entertainment of the sort that used to appear at Christmas time in the first years of this century. They were invited to become as little children for a couple of hours; and perhaps, like a gang of Conrads in quest of their youth, they found the transition slightly difficult.

To the many theater-goers who have been vainly seeking for a musical frolic to which they can take their offspring, without losing their self-respect, I can at last say, "Here it is." This is another "Babes in Toyland." Not as good as its forerunner, because Victor Herbert is dead and because Mr. Wynn's sense of fairy-tale fantasy is self-conscious, but good enough to be compared with many another extravaganza of bygone Christmas seasons—a rich and handsome amusement in which the immortals of the tales of the Brothers Grimm and the jingles of Mother Goose have blithe and charming reincarnations.

Mr. Wynn has endeavored to give his fable an edge of topical satire by bringing the joys and the glooms of fairyland into conflict, but the puritans and reformers whom he probably had in mind will never feel the sting of his lash. He is too good-natured to be a satirist. However the plots and meanings of extravaganza were never of any importance; their function is to ramble through gorgeous dreams of a never-never land with Cinderellas and Prince Charmings and the rest to sing and dance and parade in elaborate costumes. This "Simple Simon" does, to your heart's content.

In the rôle of Simple Simon, a moonstruck news vender at Coney Island who dreamed that he became court jester to King Cole, Mr. Wynn is, of course, his old self—a strange, grotesque comedian with a diverting vein of inane, dim-witted patter. He is not as funny in this fabrication as he has been in many another show; but he is amusing enough. He will not strike you into hysterical fits of laughter, but you will find him the unique comedian of yore. In writing his part he forgot, I believe, that clowns need comic situations as well as patter and crazy clothes.

"Simple Simon" contains another personality of note—Harriet Hoctor, the best of American ballet dancers. She has won fame since she appeared here as an incidental member of the Duncan Sisters' company in "Topsy and Eva." She is an established muse of the dance, and she conveys that rare thrill of grace, beauty and rhythm which only happens when an Adeline Genee or a Pavlowa comes along. Miss Hoctor affects a silver wig, and dances like a moonbeam on a lake. She is the modern note in "Simple Simon"; when you see her, you are catching up with the procession.

Wini Shaw earns applause, among the principals, with an effective specimen of up-to-date sob-song called "Ten Cents a Dance." Carter De Haven's little daughter Marjorie is neatly following in father's dance steps. The others are the others—but the chorus girls are worth observation. Joseph Urban has given "Simple Simon" a large gallery of vivid stage pictures.

Toyland, 1930, Beguiles Child, Parent Alike

Movies, Dolls, and "War Tanks" Are Displayed.

Once upon a time if a boy got a baseball and bat and a jack knife buried beneath a couple pounds of nuts and hard candy in the toe of his stocking, he thought Santa Claus had left him all there was to be desired for Christmas.

Or if a little girl discovered, sitting demurely under a Christmas tree festooned with cranberries and popcorn and tinfoil stars, a china doll with golden hair and blue eyes that opened and shut, her prayers of two months had been answered.

It is the lucky parent this Christmas season whose attention hasn't been called to the uses of a miniature steam engine, a clam shell steam shovel, or a 16 millimeter movie projector, or one of the new character dolls with the pouting face, an electric sweeper, iron, or electric stove with a timer on the oven just like mother's.

Despite the rush of early Christmas shopping, a good natured throng of parents and children, aunts and uncles and fond grandparents jostle one another in the toylands of loop stores. Christmas carolers and accordion players go about the stores cheering up the shoppers who can't make up their minds, phonographs wail the latest tunes, while the dancing dolls keep time, and barkers sing out the merits of the latest styles in toys.

"Right this way. Here's a toy fire the red blooded boy," shouts the salesman over the heads of a crowd of onlookers. The salesman demonstrates a war tank lumbering its way over a tiny replica of fields and trenches. "Put your dog in a wagon and hitch it to the tank and it will take it all the way around the block," he continues. "The fighting tank will pull 50 pounds on wheels."

"Over this way for the moving picture machines," cries another salesman as the crowd becomes thicker at some adjoining counter. "A moving picture machine right in your own home. See the same pictures you see in the loop."

Dads as well as sons were seen collected about the displays of steam engines, exact models that puffed and buzzed just like large engines when plugged in on an electric light socket. They operated windmills, fountains, jig-saws, churns, punch presses, polishing wheels and buffers, and no end of similar machines. Occasionally they whistled. These toys are very popular this year. To the steam engines which came into vogue last year have been added this year miniatures of actual machines to be operated by the power.

More popular than ever are the clam shell steam shovels, their booms rising and dropping and shovels opening and closing, automatic lumber trucks that load and unload, and overhead traveling cranes such as are used in a foundry.

Other toys which, if the interest displayed Saturday is an indication, are favorites with boys, are chemistry sets and magic sets. There is an electrical questionnaire game, a new bowling game to play on the table, and a horse racing game that also may be played indoors.

As popular as ever are pop guns, flash guns and machine guns for the more soldierly inclined. And little lead soldiers are favorites just as much now as they were in Eugene Field's day.

And what to buy for a little girl? you may ask. If you buy a doll you can't go wrong, though of course the feminine contingent that Toyland serves is just as progressive as boys when it comes to liking things electrical—stoves, sweepers, irons, even washing machines.

The dolls shown in the stores will melt the heart of the mothers and aunts and uncles and the fond grandparents.

Most of the dolls are unbreakable, with stuffed bodies and bisque heads. There are small French dolls with slim legs and great hairbows, baby dolls, Italian dolls in costume, dolls with curly heads. And at one store was seen a red-faced baby doll with a wrinkled face that could not have been more than a day old.

Greek Beauty Arrives to Aid in Dance for Charity

"Miss Europe," Miss Aliki Diplarakou, arrived in Chicago yesterday. She is the winner of a beauty contest in Paris. Her appearance here is for charity and she is to be present at the St. Andrew's Woman's club of St. Andrew's Greek Orthodox church annual ball at the Aragon ballroom tonight.

OUR SECRET AMBITION—

Think Your Own Thoughts, Girls, but Look Feminine

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Inside we may resemble not a whit the dear old fashioned girl father liker to tell about. But externally, we're taking on many of her girlish wiles. Witness the ways heads are breaking out in jewels and fancy combs, to say nothing of the resemblance that may be seen around the low down skirt hem. Lift the skirt hem but an inch and catch a glimpse of something they're not calling slips now but petticoats.

Poetry of the near future is going to revive couplets about feet beneath the pettiskirt stealing in and out like white mice, or black or brown or what have you in shoe leather.

The further forward we girls seem to get the more backward we are inclined to lean. One of these days we're going to catch up in the middle and what a girl that is going to be on the magazine cover! The perfect creature of all ages! Ship sinking Helen, wasp flirting Cleo, and the 80 year old flapper Ninon, to the contrary notwithstanding!

In the meantime don't you fool yourself that you can't go so darned feminine that you look as if you'd swoon at sight of a hip flask. You have to look that way though your arm muscles harbor a punch that'd do in an amateur bout. You must look as if you could stir up romance in the desolated sex's soul. What more fitting then, that you should pin on a rhinestone bandeau caught with ruby clips? Or, hair not yet permitting bandeaux, just a jeweled clip over the pink shell ear? Anything jeweled to remove the last trace of a former boyish buoyancy and haircut!

Ringlets and flounces and whatnots for the hair—who says we're not trying to look like "That Old Sweet heart of Mine." Not I, my sisters, nor you, if you've been doing any night clubbing lately.

An improved version of the quaint old dear, we'd say! Just a bit clearer the scalp outline, more than a bit finer the silhouette, a bit more exquisite the shoeing, and that's our contribution to pulchritude over the girl of the eighties, say.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Efficiency Exhibit.

I work in one of the branch houses of a large electrical concern. Recently the "big shots" from the New York office were paying us a visit and we were all on our best behavior. However, during the afternoon I found it necessary to lower the window shade and, horrible to relate, said window shade came down on my head and draped itself about my shoulders in a most unbecoming manner. To make matters worse, the shade had a large wooden roller which broke into four or five pieces when it hit the floor and the noise was enough to waken the dead. Every one looked to see what had caused the commotion, including our New York visitors.

To add to my embarrassment, the manager of our office, with his ever present sense of humor, dryly remarked that children usually did perform when there was company. Every one enjoyed it hugely—that is, every one else. M. J.

Phoebe Logan, J. B Terbell Jr. Are Engaged

BY THALIA

THE engagement of Miss Phoebe Logan, daughter of Stuart Logan and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan, to Joseph T. Terbell Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Terbell, prominent New Yorkers, was announced on Saturday night at a dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Logan at their apartment at 2344 Lincoln Park West.

Miss Logan attended Miss Hall's school at Pittsfield and Miss Risser's in Rome, and was introduced to society last year. Mr. Terbell, who came west this fall to learn the business of his father [Mr. Terbell senior is retiring president and chairman of the board of the American Brake Shoe and Foundry company], was educated at Hotchkiss [prep] and the Sheffield scientific school at Yale. He was a St. Anthony hall man, and was graduated with the class of 1928. He has been a popular beau in the younger social set since his advent here.

Miss Logan and Others Plan January Weddings.

Other January brides besides Miss Logan, whose wedding is planned to take place during the last week of that month, include Miss Corinne Brewer, daughter of the E. Harris Brewers, and Miss Helen Shimmin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Shimmin of 1230 North State street. Miss Brewer is to be married to Herbert McLaughlin, the George D. McLaughlins' son, on Jan. 17, and the date set for Miss Shimmin's marriage to John Gray Seller, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Seller of Louisville, Ky., is Jan. 5.

Miss Brewer's and Mr. McLaughlin's wedding is to take place at the Brewer residence at 1311 Ritchie place with only the families present, but there will be a reception afterwards at the Casino. To that a larger group will be bid.

The wedding of Miss Shimmin and Mr. Seller will be at 4:30 o'clock at St. Chrysostom's church, and the reception following will be at the Opera club. Mrs. Frank Sims [Betty McKair] will be the matron of honor, and Mr. Seller's brother, Louis Seller, who came to live in Chicago recently with his Louisville bride, will be the best man. Miss Shimmin returned a few days ago from Louisville, after a session of apartment hunting with her prospective husband.

The exact date of Miss Logan and Mr. Terbell's marriage has not yet been set, because Mr. Terbell's father has been alarmingly ill. It will be a large wedding, however, like that of Miss Logan's cousin, Mrs. Herbert Lloyd [the former Josephine Munroe] two years ago, and will take place at St. Chrysostom's, also. Mrs. Lloyd will come from Florida to be the matron of honor, and there will be a large retinue of attendants.

Miss Elsie McCormick Back from Her Travels.

Miss Elsie McCormick, that energetic lady who has been "tramping up and down the continent" for two years, is back in her native city for a brief holiday visit. Since the winter of 1929 Miss McCormick has been wandering over Europe's most fascinating highways and byways, searching out corners unknown to the average tourist.

During the last two summers, she and her brother, Robert Hall McCormick, cruised along the Dalmatian coast and into Greece in a "trabaccolo," an Italian sailing boat which Mr. McCormick has had converted into a comfortable yacht. Her brother-in-law and sister, the Walter Ayers, had the boat for a month last summer. Miss McCormick was in Paris during the fall months before her return to this country.

She is staying now with Mr. and Mrs. Ayer and is not opening her lovely apartment at 220 East Walton place before she plans to leave again during the winter Christmas. She will be in New York for several weeks after New Year's with her sisters, Miss Mildred McCormick and Mrs. Nelson Williams, before sailing in February for Europe. And that will be good-by to Miss McCormick for at least another year. She probably will make a longer stay in Chicago next winter, because her niece, Miss Helen McCormick, younger daughter of the Robert Hall McCormicks, will be making her debut then.

Wandering Minstrel Wins Honor Job with Accordion.

Neil C. Ward was working in his dentistry at the back of the Ward apartment at 219 Lake Shore drive the other day when he heard the inspiriting strains of an accordion floating up from the alley below. Never impervious to musical appeal, he bethought himself of the dinner party he and Mrs. Ward are to give this week and forthwith dispatched Mary Ann Ward's "Mamselle" to engage the wandering minstrel for the forthcoming affair.

The committee in charge of the sale of Vocation Society for Shut-ins at the Jewish galleries, to take place on Tuesday has devised a clever scheme for drawing out Scotch sightseers. An admission of $1.50 is to be charged, and that sum may be applied on the purchase of any of the articles in the sale.

Mr. Milan H. Hulburt, president of the Chevalier Française, has invited the members and officers of that organization to tea at the Woman's athletic club on Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock to discuss plans for the year. The Chorale's aim is to make high music better known in Chicago.

Details of Opera Meeting of Other Social Events.

Forthcoming events, being noted on the calendars, include the next Friends of Music meeting at the Drake ballroom on Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, with tea and a musical program by Mme. Singers and an Albanian native soprano that Mrs. Robert B. Gregory is to give tomorrow at the Hotel La Salle to make a report of her visit last spring to the Kavaja schools.

Of the latter affair Barclay Acheson of the Near East foundation, who has in Chicago drawings rooms a day or so ago on near east problems, is to tell about the recent amalgamation of schools.

Have you heard—that the Owen Barry Jenneys were traveling, mostly in England, and will be back some time in January? That the Edison Dicks (Ann Warner) had returned from their honeymoon? That the British consul general and Mrs. Godfrey Haggard were on a trip to Bermuda? That Countess Ferry de Fontnouvelle, wife of the French consul general, was in France?

Leftovers from the Assembly on Friday night at the Congress hotel gold ballroom—Mrs. Walter Paepcke's gown—so well-fitted that she looked like a statue in gold and ivory moire—had a high neck and a row of tiny turquoise buttons all down the back.

Mrs. Hermon Dunlap Smith wore an Alice blue crêpe dress that matched her eyes, and the daintiest of shoulder boutonnieres of moss roses (one of the Parisian fashion innovations).

Mrs. S. and Mrs. M. wore the identical model of black velvet gown, but they both looked equally stunning.

Emeline Bush, the William H. Bushes' daughter, has a house guest. Miss Elza von Steinzehr, a debutante of the season in Cincinnati, arrived on Friday afternoon for a week's stay with Miss Bush. The girls were classmates at Farmington.

Mrs. E. Vincent Gale has come into town from Highland Park and will be at the Ambassador East hotel for the winter.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt and her daughter, Gloria, are arriving on the Majestic.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Stone will give a dinner dance on Dec. 27 at Sherry's for Miss Justine Allen, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Winthrop Allen.

Miss Maria M. Knapp of Eastislip is at the Sulgrave for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Walton Livingston Oakley gave a luncheon for Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Atwill, the other guests including Mr. and Mrs. Willard S. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Donald W. Brown, Mrs. E. Busch Greenough, and Ralph Macbane.

HER BETROTHAL ANNOUNCED

Note the solitaire on Miss Phoebe Logan's engagement finger. She was photographed at the dinner that her father, Stuart Logan, and Mrs. Logan gave on Saturday night for a group of 30 young people to announce her engagement to Joseph B. Terbell Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Terbell of New York.

Mother of Five Offers Opinions on Matrimony

BY DORIS BLAKE.

An acquaintance, a self-supporting woman, refers to an old friend of hers, now the mother of three and married to a man of modest salary, as "the poor thing." The mother of three married to the modest incomed one speaks of her friend as "the poor thing." Each woman, in fact, is plugging away at her own job and each is getting considerable pleasure out of her experience. So there's no sense in pitying people for not having what you have or envying them for having what you haven't.

Apropos comes a letter from one who has been at marriage for twenty-five years with no other jewelry to exhibit than her wedding ring, unless you count five grown youngsters as pearls without price, which this particular woman is inclined to do. She resents the common attitude of women less "child burdened," as they call it, and better financially placed. Most of all, she dislikes the look or word of pity from a former girlhood friend who never married.

"How can she know, any more than I can know of her, how much happiness I have had and still have in the career I chose?" the sage inquires. "Her life looks bleak to me. Yet maybe her experience meeting interesting people, doing interesting things, fills her life just as roundly as my man and brood fills mine."

However, that wasn't the real theme of the correspondent's letter. Between practising her manifold maternal, wife, and household duties, she has had time to study women who aren't getting much out of marriage. And she thinks one of the reasons why is that they're too begrudging with their words of praise to the man of the house.

Husbands do not get half enough credit for their share in making things go. It is notorious, she agrees, that any number of good wives do not get their due in praise or in ordinary appreciation—but husbands just as often suffer for want of a cheering word. An American wife habit, the writer claims, of expecting always a little more and a little more from the man keeps her from praising him for what he already does for fear he will quit on the job. That my friend thinks one of the weakest links in current matrimonial practice.

We're just passing her tip on for a minute or two's reflection.

Summer Romance.

"Dear Miss Blake: I'm 18. My loved one is 20. I spent the summer with her and have offered to take her to a show, but she never gives me a date. Please advise.

"HEARTBROKEN LARRY."

Just another romance. I shouldn't take it to heart. You're still young and can find others.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Offers Tuxedo.

"I have a tuxedo, a small size 35, which some boy might like to have. I know there are many young men in High school and college who'd like to have one, but cannot afford to buy it.

"MRS. R."

The young man who has need of a dinner suit now and then and finds that it's one of the luxuries he just can't afford, would do well to write for this one. Please do not telephone.

Girl's Coat Needed.

"Do you think one of your readers has a coat to fit a 14 year old girl? We need one so badly and cannot afford to buy it. H. B."

Young girls outgrow their things so quickly they usually leave in their wake garments too small for them but in good condition for another person. If you have such a coat I hope you'll give it to this girl.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

This smart model of a dark blue wool crêpe is made with a flaring peplum attached to the bodice. The skirt hugs the figure through the hips, with a definitely flaring hemline. A narrow belt of the dress material fastens with a small, decorative buckle, and the rever collar and chic cuffs, both with scalloped edges, are made of an egg shell silk crêpe. Black transparent velvet combined with ochre lace is a charming scheme for dressy occasions.

The pattern, 2855, comes in sizes 14 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material with 1 yard of 35 inch contrasting and 2¾ yards of binding.

Let the Christmas Preparations Start Far Ahead of Time

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A Christmas toy and plaything list will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"For three weeks before Christmas the children hovered over the presents they were going to give to the family."

Do you remember this quotation from a mother's letter that was printed last year in this department?

In our family, too, Christmas began weeks before the actual day. We enjoyed it a hundred times before it came—savored it in the preparations we made.

Do you do it in your family? It makes Christmas so much more fun if you do. There is:

The shopping.

The making of the presents in secret.

The wrapping of the presents—a big job.

The printing of names on them.

The making of Christmas cards.

The writing of messages on cards that are bought, and addressing them.

The wrapping of packages for mailing and trips to the postoffice.

These are some of the preparations for Christmas that can be started far ahead by the children if they have a mother with foresight.

Such doings will tide the children over many a rainy or sleety day in December. Such interesting occupations will keep many a boy or girl with a cold or a small convalescent contentedly in bed, with a table near by and lots of pillows tucked in around the back.

Christmast not only has a deeper meaning, but it gives children a lot more fun if the preparations for it are begun far ahead of time.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

There are or should be 300,000,000 shade trees on highways or abutting private property, for they are valuable and constitute real community assets, comments Dr. E. Porter Felt, editor of the Journal of Economic Entomology. He sees in trees and their plantings and replacements one of the best means by which federal, state, and municipal authorities can cooperate in relieving unemployment.

"It is more than probable that less than 1 per cent of these trees are given reasonably good care and that less than 1 per cent of the inhabitants of this country give but a little attention to their care," says the authority, in pointing out that the present is an excellent time to look for defects and to trim or do other work that may be necessary.

Dead branches are a menace to life, he says. Guy wires often are needed to offset the danger of a weak fork which otherwise will lead to the ruination of a valuable tree when a wind or ice storm breaks down portions of it. The vitality of many trees has been lowered by the drought conditions of the last two years and is evident in weakened branches and dying limbs.

Judicious pruning is one of the things he recommends. The winter's demand on a tree can be proportionately lessened through conserving the moisture supply for the tree if excess if trimmed off. Winter drying is said to be the real explanation of the general term, "winter injury."

"More shapely trees and the opening up of delightful vistas can result from present work of beautification. It is quite possible that some public spirited persons would gladly contribute to such work for their respective localities. This would mean aid to the unemployed and also benefit for the community.

"There are some things to be avoided. Cutting off limbs is not necessarily trimming. It may be butchery. The exposed wood of cut surfaces should be protected from the weather by a wound dressing. Working in the tops of large trees should not be undertaken by the inexperienced."

Recently we have had several requests for a method of glazing fruit cakes. A glaze on fruit cake adds much to its attractiveness and it is one food on which I can approve a glaze. Long slow cooking which is necessary to develop rich flavor in this particular kind of cake usually gives a dull appearing crust. To add a rich luxurious finish to the crust, we have tried out a number of glazing mixtures in my kitchen. Some cooks recommend one part molasses and four parts water for dark fruit, and one part egg white and four parts water for light fruit cake. In addition to these we have tried one part corn sirup and two parts water, egg white and water in equal parts, egg white and corn sirup in equal parts and honey and egg white in equal parts.

All of these mixtures were applied before the cakes were put into the oven and we tried applying them about 20 minutes before removing the cakes from the oven. All of these methods have been tried on 6 fruit cakes that were baked in the oven at the same time so that there was no variation except in the glaze itself. We got the best glaze from honey and egg white used in equal parts. The next best glaze is corn sirup and egg whites used in equal parts.

What we did was to add the white of 1 egg, which is about 2 tablespoons, to 2 tablespoons honey or corn sirup. The mixture was not beaten but simply stirred until the two were well blended. Then this was applied over the smoothed surface of the cake batter with a pastry brush. A small brush, such as one used to apply mucilage will serve the purpose equally well. A second application of the glazing material to the surface of the cake about 20 minutes before removing from the oven results in a high glaze.

In using a glaze the cook needs to remember that glazed cakes do not absorb fruit juices or wine flavored solutions as readily as do unglazed cakes. The juices, however, may be poured over the bottom and sides.

This Ensemble Settles Evening Wrap Problem

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—A great battle of coats is being fought in Paris fashions for the supremacy of chic as applied to the evening wrap. But, like the lion and the unicorn, after having fought all around the town, they decide that honors are easy and settle down peaceably together to divide their sartorial plum cake between them.

All lengths of evening wraps are smart, from the sumptuous floor length mantle to the tiny velvet jacket—it's just a question of your height and your wardrobe. The long coats take a deal of wearing and the short ones are not, as a rule, becoming to the tall women.

Martial et Armand arbitrate between short and long coats partisans by giving this evening ensemble two coats. The knee length wrap, shown on our central figure, is of Venetian red velvet. It has a huge Medici collar of mink—one of the smartest evening furs at the moment. The ecclesiastical sleeves can be worn two ways—with the hand thrust through the opening under the mink edged flounce, as our lady has her right hand, or coming out of the natural cuff with the flounce trailing, as you can see by her left hand.

This coat is lined with lovely gold lamé, printed in Venetian red flowers, to match the simple lamé frock that has a mink hem and jeweled shoulder straps. Then there's a shorter coat of the lamé made with a draped hip effect and a ruffle peplum that has a smaller mink collar. It appears at the left of our drawing. These two coats may be worn together or interchangeably. The two mink collars form a rich and flowerlike frame for the face.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Green Bay's string of victories over the Chicago Bears, which had stretched well nigh three years, was snapped decisively yesterday afternoon at Wrigley field when the 1929 champions of professional football and leaders in the race this season, went down in defeat, 21 to 0.

Twenty-two thousand, a cheering mob which completely filled the west stands and overflowed to less advantageous sites, saw the Bears end the Packers' supremacy. It was the third game the champions have lost this fall. The Cardinals had won after 11 consecutive Packer victories. New York duplicated the feat, but the Bears yesterday not only broke through the redoubtable Packer defenses for three touchdowns, but kept inviolate their own goal.

Packers Come Back.

The score belies the hard fought struggle. The Bears first crossed the Packer goal with less than two minutes remaining of the first half. And this seven point margin was threatened repeatedly in the third period when the Packers came back with the fury of attack which once had swept all enemy gridirons.

But the Packers tossed away their opportunity just as it seemed they must crush the wavering Bear forwards. Lewellen fumbled on the threshold of a tying touchdown, and the ball, eluding O'Donnell's clutching arms, rolled free on the Bears' one yard line, where Red Grange recovered for Chicago.

Ends Green Bay Marches.

This was the peak of the Packers' strength, for although they returned to battle the remainder of the third quarter in the Bears' territory, the champions lacked the power to connect their short gains into a touchdown march.

The Bears fought on defense throughout the third quarter. They did not accomplish a first down; indeed, they seldom were in possession of the ball except to kick after a successful defense of the goal line.

Then, as the Packer attack weakened, the Bears revived. Red Grange intercepted Lewellen's pass on the Green Bay 29 yard line. On the first play, Brumbaugh passed to Luke Johnsos for a touchdown. It was the same play which had earned Chicago's opening score and it was executed with precision which permitted no improvement.

Nesbitt Runs 41 Yards.

A third time the Bears scored. This was done by Dick Nesbitt, who sliced through the center of the yellow shirted Packers, to dodge impeding tacklers in a leaping, halting run of 41 yards.

The twenty-first point was a master piece of deception. Twice previously Johnsos had place kicked the points after touchdowns. Once again he prepared to kick. Brumbaugh squatted on the muddy turf with the familiar routine preparatory to holding the ball. Back sped the ball from George Trafton. But Johnsos leaped forward to block and Brumbaugh, stepping back a pace, lobbed the ball to Red Grange for the point with no defender within yards of him.

In this manner did the Bears manufacture victory. And that victory be-

Wildcats Open with Bradley Five Tonight

Northwestern university's basketball team will open its 1930-'31 campaign at Patten gymnasium tonight against Bradley Tech of Peoria, champion of the Little Nineteen conference. The game is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock.

Coach Dutch Lonborg has picked an opening lineup of four letter men and one sophomore. Of this number only Capt. Bert Riel, forward, and Bob Lockhart, guard, were regulars last season. Bob McCarnes, the other forward, won his letter a year ago but did not play regularly. Frank Marshall, also a letter man, was not in school last season. He was a member of the 1927 and 1928 teams.

Rieff Wins Center Job.

Joe Rieff, the lone first year man to win a job on the first string quintet, is not unknown to Chicago basketball fans. He won all-city honors on the Crane Tech team of two years ago which captured the city public high school title. He has shown promise in early workouts and is regarded as a suitable successor to Rut Walter, the Wildcats' pivot man for the last three years.

In addition to the players chosen to start in tonight's game, Coach Lonborg has a lengthy list of candidates who will get a chance to show what they can do under fire.

Two other lettermen are likely to break into the lineup. They are Bob Hails, forward, and Dal Marvil, guard, both members of the football squad.

Last Year's Non-Lettermen.

Among the non-letter winners from last year's team are several promising players. They are Johnny Whelan, Joe Schwartz and Connie Lippert, forwards, and Bus Smith, guard. Sophomore candidates in addition to Rieff include Lee Foster, center; Chet Perry and Elmer Johnson, forwards, and Marvin Moonshower, guard.

Lineup:

NORTHWESTERN.		BRADLEY.
Riel	R. F.	Mace
McCarnes	L. F.	Steiner
Rieff	C.	Redd
Lockhart	R. G.	Meyer
Marshall	L. G.	Gallis

Madison, Wis., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Edgar T. Appleby of New York tonight retained his national amateur 18.2 balkline billiards championship by defeating Ray Fessenden, Madison, challenger and former titleholder, 900 to 491. Appleby led, 600 to 249, at the end of the second block yesterday.

The match went 100 innings. Appleby had a grand average of 9.0 and the challenger 4 86-99. The champion took the final block, 300 to 187 tonight. Appleby cued a high run of 81 for the match and Fessenden made a high count of 42.

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 7.—[Special.]—Ernie Nevers, towering full backed the Chicago Cardinals of the National Professional league to a 6 to 0 victory over the Memphis Tigers today. There were 7,000 people, a record crowd, at Hodges field, to see the home town boys take their third defeat of the season.

Nevers played the entire game and was the guiding spirit of the drive that sent Bunny Belden spinning across the line for the lone touchdown of the game in the second quarter.

Cards Near Second Score.

Nevers was the big gun in another Cardinal march that ended four yards from the goal line, and he was one of the principal factors in stopping the Memphis offense.

Nevers had the support of a sturdy line and a trio of fine running backs in Belden, Howard Maple, former Oregon star, and Bill Boyd, of Westminster.

The Tigers, using an aerial attack, gained occasionally in their own territory, but never were within the Chicago 30 yard line.

It was the second clash of the Cards and Tigers and the second victory of the pro league team, although its margin wasn't as convincing as the 20 to 7 defeat plastered on the Memphis outfit in Chicago a few weeks ago.

Tigers Complete Ten Passes.

The Tigers kept up a steady passing attack with hopes of scoring a touchdown. They completed ten throws, but the receivers never were able to break loose from the Cardinals' secondary defense.

AUTEUIL, France, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Leschamp Levois, a 4 year old by Lafarina out of Verroterie, owned by Gustave Beauvois, won the Maubourget stakes steeplechase handicap today. Poisson d'Avril was second and Bigorneau was third. The race, over the two and a quarter mile course, was worth $4,000. Ten horses started, but two fell and one refused. The winner, ridden by Riolfo, finished two lengths ahead of Poisson d'Avril, and paid 3 to 1 in the pari-mutuel betting.

Noisy Welcome Here Awaits Notre Dame Grid Players

Notre Dame's football team, conqueror of the best from the Atlantic seaboard to the Pacific coast, will roll into Chicago Wednesday morning from its triumph over Southern California to receive a welcome befitting a national championship team.

A welcome to rival those which New York gave to Gertrude Ederle when she returned from her conquest of the English channel and to Bobby Jones when he brought home the British open and amateur golf championships last spring was brewing last night under the direction of Frank Fitzsimmons, president of the Notre Dame Club of Chicago. The Notre Dame club was given authority by the Rev Charles L. O'Donnell, president of the University of Notre Dame, to extend the first official greeting to the Irish Ramblers.

Plans Noisy Greeting.

Although the team will spend only an hour here, Fitzsimmons has planned to make the greeting the biggest and noisiest that Chicago has ever seen. The Notre Dame Club of Chicago has 1,500 members and at least 1,490 of them are expected to be at the La Salle street station at 9:30 a. m. when the Golden State Limited of the Rock Island line arrives with its cargo of champions, coaches and managers. How many more Notre Dame supporters will be waiting in the station will depend only upon the ability of the crowd to jam the maximum number of persons into the smallest possible area of floor space.

The Notre Dame club has invited the public to take part in the celebration.

Fitzsimmons will extend the greetings and congratulations of the club to Coach Rockne and his squad as they alight from the train and then, if conditions permit, the party will be taken in automobiles for a brief ride through the loop. The parade probably will be headed by a police escort and a band circling the loop and returning to the La Salle street station, where the team will board a train for South Bend.

Welcome at South Bend.

The ceremonies in Chicago will be brief, as Father O'Donnell has requested that nothing shall be done to delay the team's departure at 10:35 a. m. Arrangements already have been made for a celebration at South Bend in honor of the Irish squad's return from its nineteenth straight victory, which necessitates the players' arrival at the university on schedule.

The Irish will be greeted by alumni and supporters at El Paso tonight and Kansas City tomorrow night on their way east from Los Angeles.

RAMBLERS ENTRAIN

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 7.—Burdened down with plaudits and entertainment, the Notre Dame squad entrained in three special cars tonight and will arrive in Chicago Wednesday morning, en route for South Bend and a presentation of gold footballs.

Not a man of the squad nursed an injury of any consequence as a holdover from yesterday's 27 to 0 victory over Southern California.

As the squad gathered at the station for its getaway the boys found themselves hemmed in by a milling throng of 800 enthusiasts. Frank Carideo, Bert Metzger, Paul O'Connor, Johnny O'Brien, and Moon Mullins found themselves jostled and almost mobbed by admirers.

Pens, notebooks, snapshots of the game, pictures, programs from yesterday's battle—everything was shoved at them with requests for autographs. The boys tried to comply with all requests, even to the elimination of last good-bys with local relatives.

Rockne, Mrs. Rockne, and young son, Jackie, occupied a compartment and were left pretty much to themselves. Few knew that "Rock" took the train, for it was assumed that he would stop over at least for tonight's football banquet.

"I'll be back in about two weeks to direct my all-star team in your charity game here Dec. 27," was Rockne's final word.

After a morning at church the men

SOX MANAGER HOPES TO LAND FIRST BASEMAN

Goes East Planning to Put Over a Deal.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

By the end of the current week Donie Bush, who manages the White Sox, expects to have a better idea of how he will proceed in the task of putting together his best possible combination next spring at the San Antonio camp.

Just at present Bush has nothing from which he can anticipate big things, at least, not so far as a first division berth is concerned. But within a week he probably will come into possession of a man who will help solve the south side's biggest problem. That's the infield.

Bush's preference is a first baseman, but thus far he has been offered only Lew Fonseca of the Cleveland Indians, and Phil Todt of the Boston Red Sox. These two clubs have made these big hearted offers because they want to remove Bill Kamm from the Comiskey pay roll.

Kamm Excluded from Plans.

Kamm, even if no deal can be made for his services, isn't going to play much of a part in Bush's plans next spring. Bush, before heading into New York for the big meetings starting tomorrow, confided to friends that Bill Cissell and not Kamm would be placed at third base when training starts. The acquisition of another third sacker, of course, would alter this scheme. Kamm's unpopularity with the Pale Hose management can be traced to the suspicion that he did not put forth his best efforts last season.

Cissell played third base late in the recent championship campaign and did well enough to earn another trial there. Previously he had been employed at second base with unhappy results. Prior to that he had been a shortstop of erratic tendencies. That was the position he played in the Coast league until somebody talked Comiskey into paying approximately $75,000 in cash for his services. Cissell is a hustler with a quantity of natural ability, but never has been able to settle down into a steady gait.

Appling Likely Shortstop.

Another part of Bush's present scheme, subject to change as long as a trade is possible, is to give Cissell's old shortstop job to Luke Appling, the collegian purchased last summer from the Atlanta club. Because of his limited experience in organized baseball Appling is considered to be about one year away from full development. Bush realizes this, but is going to use the youngster, if possible, on the argument that he is the best prospect among the shortstop candidates.

If Bush decides he wants a second baseman to take Kerr's place, the Boston Red Sox stand ready to give Bill Regan, whose hitting last season exceeded that of Cissell, Kerr and Kamm. However, Bush will hold out if it is at all possible to get a first baseman, which is the weakest of all the infield posts.

Another thing the White Sox officials must attend to in New York is the completion of the plans for the proposed spring tour with the Giants. Games between the two teams already have been booked for the larger cities in Texas and also for Shreveport. The tour will close with a Saturday and Sunday series at the Polo grounds in New York.

BIG LEAGUE OFFICIALS MEET

New York, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Major league club owners and managers poured into New York today to begin their annual attempt to sell a baseball player and get a baseball team in return. Gathered here for the winter meetings of the National and American leagues, they stood around the lobby of the Hotel Commodore and engaged in endless conversation designed to discover a second baseman who can

Wins with Birdies

Diegel Beats Al Espinosa in Golf Final

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente professional, won the first annual San Francisco open match play golf championship today by defeating Al Espinosa of Chicago, 6 and 4.

A string of birdies overwhelmed the Chicago professional. Diegel was two up at the end of the first 18 holes and at the turn of the second 18 held a lead of six.

After the first hole was halved, Diegel took the second with a par four. He held this lead until the seventh, when Espinosa scored a birdie three to even the match. Espinosa won the thirteenth with a par three and took the lead for the only time during the match.

Shoots Several Birdies.

Diegel came back on the fourteenth with a par four to Espinosa's five to even the tally. Diegel took things in hand on the seventeenth which he won with a birdie four and went two up by winning the eighteenth with a birdie three.

He won the first hole of the afternoon round with a par five, the fifth with a birdie three, the seventh with another birdie three and the eighth with a par three to go six up. Espinosa won the twelfth with a birdie, but after the thirteenth was halved, Diegel took the fourteenth with a five to Espinosa's six and won the match.

A gallery of about 2,500 followed the contestants.

Prize money totaling $7,500 was distributed among the 28 professionals who entered the championship flight. Diegel's victory enriched him by $1,600, while Espinosa received $1,065.

George Von Elm, Detroit, and Joe Ezar, Chicago, who were eliminated in the semi-finals, received $532 each.

Abe Espinosa Profits.

The four eliminated in the quarter finals received $320 each. They are Abe Espinosa, Chicago; Willie Groggin, San Francisco; Gene Sarazen, Flushing, N. Y., and Fred Morrison, Alhambra, Cal.

Players who received $163.33 each—Frank Walsh, Kenosha, Wis.; Jimmy Thompson, Colorado Springs, Colo.; Winfred Cox, Brooklyn; Willard Hutchison, Chicago; Benny Coltrin, Oakland, Cal.; Ralph Guldahl, Dallas, Tex.

Those who received $107.35 each—Tommy Armour, Detroit; Harold Sampson, Burlingame, Cal.; Willie Hunter, Los Angeles; Mortie Dutra, Long Beach, Cal.; Louis Nevi, Ely, Nev.; Harry Cooper, Chicago; John Black, San Francisco; Mark Fry, Oakland, Cal.; Chet Beer, Bakersfield, Cal.; Angel de La Torre, Long Island; Horton Smith, New York; John Perrelli, San Francisco; Ed Gayler, Chicago; Craig Wood, Bloomfield, N. BY EDWARD BURNS.

Frankie Ingram, ably abetted by Vic Des Jardins, last night took personal charge of the Blackhawks' scoring program. Frankie banged in three goals, just enough to beat the Detroit Falcons before a crowd of 12,000 at the Chicago Stadium. The final score was Chicago, 3; Detroit, 2.

Des Jardins' part in the success which kept the Blackhawks undefeated on their own ice consisted of two unusual assists. The Hawks' rookie twice pitched the puck from near the blue line and the Hawks' box and each time Ingram succeeded in catching the rubber on the fly to bat a home run, once in the first period for the first marker and the next time in the third period, when the Detroit sextet was making a whirlwind drive to take the game out of the fire.

Penalty Averts Score.

Detroit made both of its scores in the final period, and in another final period instance Couture had to take a major penalty to ward off a counter. Then again Chuck Gardiner, with the game only one minute from the end, found himself at the bottom of a heap and the center of a million jabbing sticks. He got up and went to the first aid station for treatment, but a tie had been averted and everybody on the Chicago team was happy.

Gardiner was twice a casualty, for earlier in the third period his face got in the way of Goodfellow's stick. Somers also was a casualty and had to leave the rink with an injured knee.

Big Night for Ingram.

It is indeed rare when one player makes three goals for his team's total score, and, of course, gave Ingram immeasurable satisfaction, especially since the three counters formed exactly half the total that he made all last year. But then that's just the way the current Hawks are acting toward 1929 precedents.

Johnny Gottselig, Chicago's scoring ace, successfully underwent an operation on his throat yesterday and had convalesced to the point where he was able to listen in on his mates' attainments. Earl Miller also was off the ice, which necessitated the shifting of Capt. Dutkowski from defense to one of the forward jobs.

The two scores made by the Hawks in the first period were a couple of dandies, though the first involved the element of luck.

Both of these first two markers were the products of Frankie Ingram, the first on an assist from Des Jardines and the other a solo.

Ingram Scores on Pass.

In 8:25 Des Jardines got the puck near the blue line and just outside the Hawk dugout on the north side of the rink. The Hawk freshman tossed it toward the cage, about eight feet off the ice, just like the old time hockey fellows used to do it. When the thing was about to descend in front of the cage, Ingram took a baseball swing which caught the rubber just right. And in it went, much to the distress of the nonplussed Mr. Dolson, Falcon goalie.

There followed a lot of nice skating and shooting by both teams, but no scores until the siren twister was honing to work his contraption—10 seconds before the close of the period. Ingram got the puck while skating at full speed and swept in a perfect arc from the right of the cage until he reached a point two feet in front of Dolson's padded shins. Then the big swish and the Hawks were leading, 2 to 0.

Queen of Angels defeated De Soto, 26 to 22, in the north division of the Catholic Order of Foresters Basketball league at St. Michael's gym yesterday. INGRAM STARS IN BLACKHAWKS' 3 TO 2 VICTORY

He Scores Every Goal Against Detroit.

Second Period Rough.

The second period produced no scoring but the customers didn't mind, for they saw some of the roughest fighting of the local season. When Somers was sent to the box for displaying too much zeal, the crowd accepted his banishment without a great deal of protest, but when Arbour got the bounce a second later for reckless swishing of his stick there was a raucous demonstration and a paper shower from the galleries.

In the period Gardiner was called upon to make four fewer stops than he had in the first period and Dolson's score was easier by the margin of three stops.

With Couture alone on the forward line as a result of Arbour and Somers still being in the penalty box as a result of their second period, the Hawks sought to stall at the outset of the third period, but Goodfellow got the puck and took a long shot which zoomed into the net 45 seconds after the start of the session.

Goodfellow Sent Out.

A minute later Goodfellow made another scoring attempt, but this resulted in a jam at the cage, during which Goodfellow inadvertently hit Gardiner in the face with his stick. Goodfellow automatically drew a two minute penalty because of the accident.

When the third period was 12 minutes old Des Jardines and Ingram put on an almost exact duplicate of their pitch and swing act which netted the first score of the game.

In 18:30 the desperate drive of the Falcons netted Detroit's second goal, a splendid bit of work on the part of Goodfellow and Sorrell, the latter making the score.

Thirty seconds later there was a terrific stack up in front of the Hawks cage. Five players were sprawled on the ice and the others were frantically jabbing sticks in an attempt to free the puck. When the whistle blew Gardiner had to go to the box for first aid treatment.

Stribling Is in Best Form for Griffith Bout

Some time after dinner Friday night the opponent for Max Schmeling in the first defense of his title will be selected at the Stadium, where Young Stribling meets Tuffy Griffith.

To Chicagoans the fight is of additional interest because of the aid it promises to Gov. Emmerson's commission for the relief of Illinois' unemployed. This is the first major sporting event staged in the interest of this cause.

Stribling's future rests on Friday's bout. After engaging in 293 fights over a period of ten and a half years and finally achieving ranking contendership, he will risk it all against another contender who has yet to establish for himself the priority on a claim to Schmeling's title.

Eager to Meet Any Contender.

Stribling is risking his seniority in the bid for a title match against a man of Griffith's status because he is leaving nothing undone in his drive for the championship bout. He seeks matches with every heavyweight whom he believes can hold a claim of any description on Schmeling's crown. Griffith, being the nearest ranking contender to Stribling, the Georgian has taken him first.

Griffith views this as his greatest opportunity. If fortune favors him he can swing to the top of the heap in a single stroke Friday. Victory over Stribling would eliminate the southerner, temporarily at least, and make Griffith the logical opponent for Schmeling.

Jack Sharkey always is to be reckoned with, but Jack has fouled out so often.

Griffith will rely solely on his speed and what knowledge he can glean from a week's study under Jack Johnson, the greatest defensive boxer ever to hold the world's championship. Stribling, of course, has his boxing skill and the dynamite of his two fists to thwart Griffith's attack.

Stribling in Condition.

Stribling is in superb shape. Griffith, who has been less active than Stribling in the last six months, is slowly rounding into the best condition of his career. He plans to go through daily drills up to the day of the fight.

The eight round semi-windup between Jack Gagnon, Boston longshoreman and conqueror of Griffith, and Larry Johnson, rated one of the hardest hitting light heavyweights in the country, is increasing interest in the show. Indications point to more than a $100,000 gate and 19,000 attendance.

Other fights on the card bring to Chicago for the first time Herbert Stribling, young brother of the southern heavyweight, and Willie Oster of Boston. Stribling will meet Irish Kennedy in a six round preliminary and Oster is matched with Mickey McFarland. Frank Cawley will meet Natie Brown in another eight rounder.

EIGHT BIG TEN GRIDDERS NAMED FOR COAST TRIP

Eight Big Ten football players have accepted invitations to play on the all star East team which Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern and Andy Kerr of Colgate will take to San Francisco to play a similar aggregation of west coast stars in a Christmas charity game.

Coach Hanley, who selects the players from the Big Ten, last night announced that the following men will join the team when it assembles at Dyche stadium on Dec. 15:

Frank Baker, end, and Wade Woodworth, guard, of Northwestern; Sam Selby, guard, of Ohio State; Milt Gantenbein, end, and Milo Lubratovich, tackle, of Wisconsin; George Van Bibber, tackle, of Purdue; Win Brockmeyer, half back, of Minnesota, and Ely, end, of Iowa.

Three more players are yet to be selected from among the Big Ten schools. Eleven players also will be picked from the east, making 22 in all who will make the trip.

CHICAGO BOWLER ROLLS 300 GAME IN TOURNAMENT

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 7.—(AP)—J. Ward of the Robert M. Sweitzer five of Chicago rolled a 300 game in the doubles event of the twelfth annual tournament of the Central States Bowlers' association here today. His three game score was 654, and with the score of his partner, Strachen, boosted their total to 1,228 to land them in sixth place.

The first major assault by visiting bowlers resulted in several good scores, but Ward's perfect effort topped all performances. It was the third time in the history of the tournament that a perfect game had been rolled. George Jackson of Fort Wayne, Ind., turned the trick at Dayton, in 1921, and J. Crimmins of Detroit duplicated it at Toledo in 1929. The tournament leaders are:

FIVE MAN EVENT—Wooster-Lambert, St. Louis, 3,009; Dreiman Electric, Terre Haute, 2,981; Ellis Barber Shop, Indianapolis, 2,927; Slack Furniture, East St. Louis, 2,890; Richman Clothes, Toledo, 2,835; Charlotte Florals, St. Louis, 2,830.

DOUBLES—E. Rub and A. Schnessler, Joliet, 1,263; G. Holmes and J. Vyzral, Chicago, 1,242; R. Holmes and R. Nelson, St. Louis, 1,240; F. Reiter and H. Muecks, Toledo, 1,239; J. Jansen and L. Lota, Terre Haute, 1,235; G. Stratchen and J. Ward, Chicago, 1,228.

SINGLES—C. Power, Indianapolis, 685; L. Carmen, Indianapolis, 648; H. Kruse, Terre Haute, 645; E. Sloan, Muncie, 644; H. Muecks, Toledo, 634; F. Pauley, Joliet, 634.

longed to the team. True, Bronko Nagurski played with a power which could not be stopped without gain, and which frequently carried him yards with a host of tacklers only halting his progress by their massed weight. Red Grange, perhaps, did not gain on the offense as in previous games, but the famous redhead checkmated the Packer forward passes as if he divined his opponents' thoughts.

You've already read of Nesbitt's touchdown run, but Dick also stood deep in his own end zone to kick 50 yards down field after Lewellen's fumble had ended the Packers' march. And Brumbaugh can't be overlooked. He threw the passes on which Johnsos scored, and moreover selected those plays at the proper moment.

Bears' Line Delivers.

And what these men did could not have been done without the cooperation of a hard charging, blocking line whose few shortcoming were forgotten in the brilliance of the whole. Even so, it was Green Bay's strength in that third quarter, rather than Chicago's weakness, which opened up a path for the Packer ball carriers.

Neither team threatened in the first period. The play, as far as ground gained indicated, favored the Bears. Early in the second quarter Wuert Englemann, Packer half back, and Joe Lintzenich of the Bears crashed together when Englemann was racing after a forward pass. Both were knocked unconscious and were carried from the field. Neither, however, was seriously hurt, and they were revived in the dressing rooms.

Grange Intercepts Pass.

Shortly afterwards, Red Grange intercepted a long Packer pass which he brought back to his own 35 yard line. The Bears were off for their first touchdown. Grange passed to Johnsos in midfield. Nesbitt, the third selection for right half following Lintzenich's injury and Bill Senn's retirement with a fractured rib, ran to the Packers' 27 yard line. Three plays gained six yards. On fourth down, Brumbaugh faked a pass to a plunging back, then passed wide to Johnsos. Luke caught the ball in full stride over his head and eluded his guard to score.

The Packer drive in the third period netted five first downs but no scores. Then in the fourth quarter Grange again intercepted a pass. The Bears were on Green Bay's 29 yard line. On the first play Brumbaugh passed to Johnsos. Johnny Blood, the Packer half back, failed to cover, and Johnsos jogged on to the goal line.

Nesbitt Scores Touchdown.

With only a few minutes to play, Bronko Nagurski came up with another of the flood of Packer aerials. The Bears made first down on Green Bay's 42 yard line, and after Nagurski had plunged for a yard, Nesbitt whirled into the line, found an opening and was gone for his touchdown flight.

The Bears made ten first downs, none in the third period. Eight were from scrimmage, one on a penalty and one on a pass. The Packers ran up sevan first downs, none of these in the first half. The Bears completed four of their nine forward passes. One was intercepted. Green Bay tried 19 passes. Four were completed, while six were intercepted.

GIANTS BEAT DODGERS, 13-0.

New York, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Reversing a previous decision, the New York Giants defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers, 13 to 0 before a crowd of 22,000 at Ebbets field today and retained their hold on second place in the National football league. Benny Friedman and Chris Cagle, Giant stars, played only a few minutes in the second period, but their combined efforts brought a New York touchdown.

SPARTANS, 42; RED JACKETS, 0.

Portsmouth, Ohio, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The Portsmouth Spartans routed the Minneapolis Red Jackets, 42 to 0, in a National Professional league football game here today.

Sox Manager Hopes to Land First Baseman

hit, an outfielder who can field, or a pitcher who can put the ball where he wants it.

Some of the boys, such as Dan Howley of the Cincinnati Reds, Rogers Hornsby of the Chicago Cubs, and Donie Bush of the Chicago White Sox, were one up on the others. They just spent a week attending the minor league convention at Montreal, where the lobby standing record was seriously threatened a score of times. With this week of preparation behind them they felt that they were in better shape both to talk and to stand than those who passed up the Montreal meetings.

They're All Bargain Hunters.

There were few signs of any definite trading attempts today. Hornsby seemed to sound the keynote when he said the Cubs were prepared to stand pat on their present lineup, but that they, like any one else, would be interested should good talent be offered for a reasonable consideration whether in cash or players. Hornsby, is not worrying about one position on his infield. He intends to play second base himself.

Swelling the crowd were a number of minor league club owners and managers who spent a fruitless week in Montreal trying to dispose of some of their star playing taint.

No official business will be transacted by either major league until Tuesday when the National league meets. On Wednesday the American leaguers go into their annual conclave and the two leagues meet in joint session Thursday.

Discuss Draft Today.

Tomorrow will not be a total loss, however, for major league representatives and a committee from the minors are to go into an informal huddle on the draft dispute at 1 o'clock. The majors want the five non-draft organizations—International, Pacific Coast, American association, Western and Three Eye leagues—to accept the universal draft. That is, they want to be able to select, or draft at a fixed price any player from these circuits just as they do from other minor leagues.

As far as the major league meetings themselves are concerned, apparently the most troublesome question will be the lively ball. It is known that some club owners are prepared to demand that some action be taken on this much discussed problem.

Brickies Beat Jugo-Slavs, 5-3, in Alexander Cup Play

The Bricklayers eliminated the Jugo-Slavs soccer team, 5 to 3, yesterday in the Alexander cup playoff series at De Paul field. Davidson put the Brickies in the lead early in the first half when he counted on a short run. The defense of both teams weakened in the second half and Cuthbert, Coutts, McLean, and Ogilvie scored for the Brickies in succession.

Becker Shows Outdoor Sport Is Big Business

BY BOB BECKER.

Any investment that returns about $1,000,000,000 a year to those interested in it can safely be called a pretty good project to keep going. Such is the case with the great American business and sport known as "Outdoors, Unincorporated" [hunting, fishing, fur production, camping, and general recreation related to wild life, forests and conservation].

In checking over this business one authority has figured that it makes an annual return which puts it in the class of big business, one the American people can well afford to conserve. It is estimated that the farmers and all agriculturists cut in on this return to the sum of approximately $350,000,000, because bird life does that much work for agricultural crops through their constant war against insect pests.

Meat, Pelts in Big Money.

The meat of wild game and the pelts from wild animals is estimated annually at a value of $125,000,000 to $150,000,000. This figure is approached by putting a fair price on the poundage of ducks, pheasants, geese, quail, wild deer, elk, etc., shot each year and eaten in American homes. The duck and geese crop "harvested" each fall here in Illinois can be said to run into hundreds of thousands of dollars. Muskrat, mink, skunk, and weasel pelts mean real money to thousands of trappers.

The hunters spend more than $9,000,000 each year just for licenses which permit them to go afield and take wild game. By the time they have bought shells, hunting clothing, duck decoys, and all the thousand and one gadgets which the outdoorsmen buy these days, the hunting army has left $160,000,000 in the cash register, which is a tidy sum for one year. Count in the gasoline used to reach the hunting fields and the figure will run much higher.

License Fees Huge.

Going back to that $9,000,000 for licenses, we have a good example of what a progressive state has to handle in the way of license fees if we just look at Michigan. Over there the fund available for game protection amounts to $1,300,000 a year. Fifty-two per cent comes from hunters' license fees.

Totaling something like $15,000,000 to fish production and figuring $250,000,000 to $275,000,000 as a share of the general tourist expenditures which result from the drawing power of wild life in America's open spaces, and you arrive at more startling figures.

The annual budget spent by fishermen is another staggering sum. America's wild life resources can command attention if for no other reason than the investment they return, to say nothing of the recreational value to millions of people.

NOISY WELCOME AWAITS RETURN OF NOTRE DAME

Undefeated Grid Squad to Arrive Wednesday.

dispersed for dinner with friends, and the afternoon was spent by Coach Rockne and most of the squad as guests at the E. L. Doheny ranch in Beverly Hills. The party broke training for a week.

New York Game on Again.

Most of the squad will spend Christmas in training again, however, for Rockne now regards the New York charity game as on again, and gave his word to local promoters to be back in Los Angeles before Christmas with Joe Savoldi and others to play a charity all-star game here. Some of those who play no more football will be out for basketball.

Pacific coast football writers almost ran out of superlatives in their encomiums for yesterday's game. There were all kinds of references to the Irish as national champions in spite of occasional demurring words inserted by sectional representatives who have an eye on the Jan. 1 clash at Pasadena between the unbeaten coast conference champions of Washington State and the Southern conference champs of Alabama.

Out of the half dazed impressions of superbly directed football power, which ran over a hundred or so columns of newspaper space published locally, today emerged more detailed anaylses of some of the elements of Notre Dame's greatness.

STABILIZATION OF WHEAT IS MORE DECIDED

To Keep at Present Level, Belief.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Stabilization of wheat values was more pronounced last week. Government agencies were active in buying May wheat against sales of December, giving special attention to new May at around ¼c premium over old style. There is practically no difference between old and new style deliveries except that yellow hard winters have been eliminated from contract grades.

It is understood that the intention of farm board officials is to sustain wheat values at around the present level, and that in case of the trade's becoming extremely bearish and starting a heavy general selling movement with the view of depressing prices the government will take hold and check declines. There are no real fixed values for supporting the market, all depending on general conditions.

Wheat prices in the United States are at a level that places them practically on a domestic basis, being higher than in Liverpool and Winnipeg. Under such conditions export business is out of the question. At the same time, however, the milling demand was the best in months, Chicago cash handlers selling 400,000 bu to mills during the week.

Spreading operations between Chicago and Winnipeg were the smallest in many weeks, but toward the last selling of Kansas City May and buying Chicago at 7⅛c premium for the latter became a feature.

Argentina Prospects Poorer.

Harvesting is on in Argentina and Australia and estimates in the former are being reduced, while in Australia they are holding up to record volume. The Russian situation is better, with lighter sales and chartering and with 15,000,000 bu of unsold wheat held by Russia in different European markets, so that the impression prevails that Russia is to be less of a factor for a time.

The export situation is in the hands of Canada, Australia, and Argentina, who will have to look to European buyers, who are understood to be bearish, and for the time being they are not disposed to bid up for wheat, as it is unnecessary. In the United States there is a feeling that wheat prices may work somewhat higher due to government support.

World's Wheat Stocks Drop.

A striking feature in the world's wheat situation is seen in an analysis of total world's visible supply, which on Nov. 1 showed a decrease from the previous month and for the first time since August, 1929, fell below the corresponding period in the preceding year. This reduction was likewise reflected in the total North American available supply, which fell below the figure of the previous year for the first time since November, 1926.

While the grain trade generally look for a material increase in the world's visible supply around Jan. 1, due to the inclusion of the new Australian crop, which is estimated at over 200,000,000 bu, the largest on record, it is felt that this will be the last increase of consequence the balance of the season, and that from then on there will be a steady reduction. Under normal conditions the visible supply in North America does not start to decrease until around Jan. 1.

Record Speculation Figures.

Although the volume of speculative trading has declined of late, sales in leading American markets last month were 1,094,052,000 bu as compared with 1,864,650,000 bu for the same time in 1929. The trade has dwelt a great deal on depressed business conditions and government control of the grain

W. Coast Lumber Men See Little Ahead in Near Future

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Lumber barons of the Pacific states see the business road ahead through spectacles of varied hues. All agree the immediate future is nothing to wax enthusiastic about, but are decidedly more cheerful about later developments.

Facts and figures arrayed by lumber associations of Idaho, Washington, Oregon, and California reveal the industry has retreated along the lines of output, sales and employment during this year, compared with 1929.

Lumber mills from San Francisco to the Canadian border normally pay 65 per cent of the area's total industrial annual wage, contributing around $400,000,000 to the channels of commerce. Thus employment policies have particular significance.

Idaho has about 10,000 men on lumber pay rolls, compared with a normal of about 20,000. Federal reserve figures show Oregon employment at 79.9 per cent of the 1924 level, compared with 118.3 a year ago. Similarly, employment is off 30 to 50 per cent throughout lumber producing areas.

Distribute Jobs.

Numerous producers are trying to distribute available employment among as many workmen as possible. Most major Idaho companies operate two shipping crews, logging having virtually been suspended, working alternate weeks. This plan, besides keeping down acute unemployment, aids in keeping crews intact for ultimate resumption of normal operations.

Output of the mills this year ranges 12 to 30 per cent below 1929, best available estimates indicate. Idaho's production is down 20 per cent to 60 per cent of capacity; Oregon's about 42 per cent below capacity, while Washington's output declined from around 65 per cent of capacity in the spring to around 45 per cent late in midsummer, holding roughly at that level until late in November, when the down trend resumed.

Production Figures.

Idaho production for 11 months of 1930 was about 1,000,000,000 feet; Oregon, around 2,300,000,000; Washington, 4,100,000,000, and California, 1,200,000,000. California's redwood output has been maintained within 12 per cent of last year's figure. Other California woods were off around 30 per cent from 1929. In the northern states production has been kept somewhat closer to sales, but generally there has been an accumulation of stocks.

Prices have been on the decline since May, 1929, but showed signs of preparing for a comeback during the fall. The drop ranged from around 25 to 40 per cent of the top 1929 prices. Lack of research facilities has held the industry back in developing new products as a means of relieving overproduction.

The immediate outlook remains clouded by seasonal influences and the business lethargy. A particular drawback is slow residential construction. A brighter long range view is held in some circles where executives say there is need for better housing in many places where the demand is lacking.

TAX REFUNDS COST U. S. GOVT. $241,526,816

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Tax refunds cost the government $241,526,816 the last fiscal year.

This was announced today by David Burnett, International Revenue commissioner. He said in his annual report that rejected claims for tax overassessments totaled $164,093,902.

Of the overassessments granted, $124,019,820 represented amounts not collected. A total of $35,819,633 was credited against taxes due in other years while $81,687,363 was refunded or paid in cash.

Interest aggregating $36,515,874 was paid on the amounts refunded or credited. During the year, Burnett said, 44,166 claims against the government were adjusted. Of the number 31,317 were allowed in full or in part while 12,849 were rejected.

The commissioner said income taxes collected for the year amounted to $2,410,259,230, an increase of $78,984,801 over the 1929 year despite the one per cent decrease in the income tax rate on normal and corporation income.

Miscellaneous internal revenue aggregated $629,886,502, an increase of $22,106,556. Of the miscellaneous collections tobacco taxes reached a new high level, totaling $450,339,060, an increase of $15,894,517.

Stage Run on China Branch of National City Bank

CANTON, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Many hundreds of Chinese today waited to withdraw their funds from the National City Bank of New York branch here as the run against that institution continued. Reports were that more than 3,000,000 dollars Mexican [about $1,200,000] has been paid out by the bank since a run started yesterday. The bank indicated its willingness to pay all depositors.

Reports 30% Decrease in Leather Footwear Value

Washington, D. C., Dec. 6.—(AP)—A decrease of 30 per cent in the value of leather footwear during the first ten months of 1930 is reported by the department of commerce. Imports were 5,143,043 pairs, valued at $10,668,728, as compared with 6,689,161, worth $15,344,644 in the same period of 1929.

WORLD SUGAR CONFERENCE BREAKS DOWN

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 7.—The preliminary world sugar conference broke down completely this afternoon and Cuban-American delegates made immediate arrangements to leave for Brussels. Hardly two hours had elapsed, however, before representatives of the Visp—Dutch sugar trust—sent an urgent letter to Chadbourne asking that negotiations be re-opened upon a new basis of agreement entirely in conformity with the principle which the Cuban-American delegation has considered so essential.

Conferences are therefore to be held tomorrow morning at which details of the new proposition will be considered.

After ten days of negotiation the conference collapsed upon the Cuban American conviction that no solution would be worthless unless it continued sufficiently long to insure a permanent solution of the present world crisis. Repeated conversations had finally brought the Dutch to a point where they were willing to restrict next year's crop to 2,300,000 tons—a restriction amounting roughly to fifteen per cent.

The anxiety of the Dutch, however, regarding far eastern markets prompted their insistence upon a proviso that in order to be able to care for a natural increase which they expect in these, their chief markets, they must be permitted to export in the four years succeeding 1931, an additional $100,000 each year.

WALGREEN NOV. SALES ARE 4 PCT. UNDER YEAR AGO

Walgreen company sales for November were $4,080,096, against $4,250,968 in November last year, a 4 per cent decrease. For eleven months sales total $46,920,048, against $41,656,246 during the same 1929 period, an increase of 12.6 per cent.

Gross sales of twenty-two leading chain store systems for November aggregated $152,129,217, a decrease of 14.3 per cent from figures for the like month a year ago, a compilation by George H. Burr & Co. shows. For the first eleven months this year sales for the same systems totaled $1,611,388,828, a decrease of 4.3 per cent for the corresponding period of 1929. Part of the decline presumably was due to lower retail prices.

The following chains report November sales:

	1930.	1929.

Treasury Refinancing at Year End Is Below 2% Rate

The United States government's year-end refinancing operation will be carried out at interest rates below 2 per cent, according to an announcement by Secretary Mellon last night. The treasury will offer today about $400,000,000 of new securities, consisting of $150,000,000 treasury certificates bearing 1¾ per cent and maturing in six months and $250,000,000 treasury certificates bearing 1⅞ per cent and maturing in one year. Within the next ten days the treasury will pay off $480,000,000 of maturing treasury certificates and $102,000,000 of treasury bills, while interest payments on the public debt will require $90,000,000.

LAUNCH NEW STOCK FINANCING FOR STUTZ MOTOR CAR COMPANY

New York, Dec. 7.—A new issue of 81,974 shares of no par value of the Stutz Motor Car company is being offered by a group headed by L. L. Harp & Co. at the market, of which certain of the stockholders have agreed to purchase 58,619 shares, the bankers for the company announce. The purpose of the present financing is to provide additional working capital and for other corporate needs of the company. It was also stated that the company has reduced its former current indebtedness by approximately $2,500,000 and has been freed of contract obligations in excess of $3,800,000.

Recently the common stock outstanding was reduced from 296,741 shares to 29,674, each stockholder receiving one new share for each ten previously held and a warrant to purchase one additional for each new share held at $27.50. On completion of present financing plan, the capitalization of the company will consist of $482,000 7½ per cent bonds due in 1937 and 111,649 shares of common stock out of an authorized issue of 400,000 shares.

A total of 100,025 additional shares of common stock have been reserved for bond conversion and for options to bankers and to present stockholders.

Scheduled Municipal Bond Issues Total $24,789,351

New municipal bond issues scheduled for award this week aggregate $24,789,351, representing financing of 54 communities, the Bond Buyer reports. The total compares with offerings last week of $22,840,003 in this class. Among the larger issues are $10,000,000 state of South Carolina highway bonds to be awarded today, $4,134,000 Baltimore, Md., 4 per cent building, paving, and airport bonds, to be placed Friday, and an issue of $1,300,000 Massachusetts 3½ and 4 per cent sewage and water supply bonds to be placed today.

Sees Less Chance Now of Over-Priced Investments

BY SCRUTATOR.

The problem of what an investor should do with his money is less difficult today than it was something more than a year ago. There is less chance that what he wants to buy is overpriced.

Yet that problem is by no means simple. Letters received by the Investors' Guide and others giving advice show that there is rather a general idea that as soon as a considerable sum of money is saved it is something like a natural right to receive permanently about 6 per cent with safety of principal.

In fact, the riskless rental value of money is considerably less. The soundest obligations we know about are those of the United States government, and astute owners of large funds and the management of great corporations are willing to buy them on less than a 4 per cent basis.

Rate Lacks Attractiveness.

To most investors such a rate is not attractive. They prefer to take greater risks and obtain greater rewards. Practically all investment advice is directed toward reducing the risk on investments in these higher return securities. Risk is comparatively small on municipal and state bonds, secured by the taxing powers of whole communities, but there have in the past been repudiations by states and defaults by cities and counties, as in present day Florida.

When the investor moves over into another field and buys the issues of firms engaged in competitive business his possibilities of taking too great risks are increased. He gets more return when he judges rightly, and loses more of his principal when he is wrong.

One of the things little understood about investment is the importance of the time element. How far ahead to look is a problem in itself. To purchase with the intention of selling within a week or a month at a profit is not investment. It is speculation. On the other hand, it is as foolish to tie up funds so they can't be untied as to try to guess the markets by the day.

Investment Shifting.

Along about fifteen years ago any well balanced investment list would have included railroad, sugar company, woolen company, and shipping corporation stocks. Some of the best, in that day, would have been bad today. The class A and class AA securities of ten or twenty years ago are not in general those deserving the same rating today. It is unlikely that the wisest financial men of the day could have taken a million dollars in 1900 and invested it, at more than a 5 per cent return, and had the principal remain at a million if no shifts were made in the investments.

A look ahead for two, three, or perhaps five years is justified. Changes in living standards and the progress of invention are too rapid to go much further than that. Depreciation of principal cannot be even approximately guarded against for even a few years. Consequently marketability of the issue owned deserves a great deal of attention. The ability to get out when good judgment points that way is almost as necessary as the ability to get in. Perhaps it could be said that an investment program should have enough rigidity to resist weekly and monthly market fluctuations, and enough flexibility to shift before major movements.

STOCK SLUMP IS CAUSE OF SUN INVESTING PLAN

New York, Dec. 7.—(AP)—In common with other investment trusts, Sun Investing company has announced plans to change its capital structure because of the depreciation in the current market value of its stock. The company has offered to acquire not exceeding 25,000 shares of its preferred stock at $38 in cash and one share of common for each preferred share.

The board also has recommended that common stockholders approve reduction of the amount of capital recommended by the common stock from $25, the price at which such shares were issued, to $10 per share, and the allocation of the balance of $15 to capital surplus.

PREDICTIONS ON 1931 TRADE ARE NOW IN ORDER

Apt to Be Cautious This Year End.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 7.—With barely three weeks of the old year left, the time is near at hand when predictions of the new year's financial trend are traditionally in order.

It has been proved by experience that the budget of "year-end prophecies" is apt to be cautious, if not unwilling, at times of financial depression. No one is likely over his own name to assure the public that depression will continue, even if he believes so. But cheerful prophecy during recent months has gone so badly amiss as to make its authors almost equally unpopular. This will lend annual interest to the outgivings both of major and minor prophets at the approaching year-end.

There are some troublesome preconceptions to be surmounted. Last Tuesday's Stock Exchange's report on outstanding brokers' borrowings, with $395,800,000 reduction for November, emphasizes the character of a movement which, in its vicissitudes of the three last years, has been one of the most remarkable economic phenomena of our time. The full record of these monthly statements shows that the total borrowings rose from $2,767,000,000 in May of 1926, the smallest of that year, to $8,549,000,000 in September of 1929, and has subsequently fallen to $2,162,000,000.

Loans at Low Point.

As it now stands, the account is smaller than in any month since the Exchange, which had collected these data from 1919 to 1922, inclusive, and had suspended the inquiry from then until February, 1926, resumed the task. Probably, if all the intervening period had been covered, it would be found that "brokers' loans" are at present the smallest since the spring of 1925. That is the testimony of the similar report by the federal reserve.

It will be observed that the increase of at least $6,000,000,000 in such credits in the four year period between 1925 and last autumn, with an equivalent decrease in the thirteen subsequent months, exactly accompanied the upward and downward swing of the great stock speculation. This parallelism

BUY
Chicago "Loop" Bank Stocks
OUT OF INCOME

Chicago "Loop" bank stocks have long been favored by experienced investors, because—

1. Banking is one of the oldest and most essential of all business enterprises.
2. Strong, aggressive banks gather their earnings from diversified forms of financial activity; consequently bank earnings are remarkably stable.
3. Bank stocks are common stocks, all of one grade, with no "preferred" to take first choice of earnings.
4. Banks are supervised by state and national banking departments, must publish sworn statements of their condition four times a year, and are directed by men of unquestioned standing.

There are other reasons—many of them—why bank stocks are a superior type of investment. Now, under our plan, you may purchase these stocks out of income with an initial deposit as low as 5% to 15% of the present price, the balance to be paid in equal monthly installments over a period of nineteen months.

Write or telephone for further information, or—better still—call in at our offices and let us explain this plan to you in detail.

exchanges affecting trading. It will surprise them to know that Secretary Hyde in his annual report just issued says the volume of grain trading in futures for the year ended June 30, aggregated 19,606,790,000 bu, the largest in any of the nine years for which the Grain Futures administration has records. Wheat futures were 78.4 per cent of all the trading done in grain futures in the United States as compared with the nine year average of 64.9 per cent. Total for the previous year was 12,195,034,000 bu. The previous record of trading was in 1924-'25 which aggregated 18,875,965,000 bu. The smallest volume in any year since the grain administration took hold was 7,316,910,000 bu in 1923-'24.

December wheat closed Saturday at 77¼@77c for old style, and 77¾c for new. March finished at 78⅝@78¼c for old, with May 81@81¼c for old and 81¼c for new, while July was under pressure owing to the farm board giving it no support, and closed at 73¼@73⅝c. As compared with a week ago wheat was 1@2¼c higher on old crop months, May leading the advance, while July was 1⅞c lower than a week ago. Prices for the week follow:

Corn Bulls Unload.

Larger receipts of corn from the country upset plans of leading holders of futures and carried them down sharply from a premium over wheat to a discount, with net losses of ⅛@2¼c. December leading the break, Corn has not had the support of outsiders to any extent and has been sold freely on all bulges. At the close the market was considered more of a two sided affair. There has been an advance of 10c and a recession of 5c of late, and the market was regarded as rather oversold at the close.

Deliveries on December contracts were small. December closed at 73c, March 76⅝@76¼c, May 78⅜c, July 79⅝@79¾c. Prices for the week follow:

	December.	March.	May.
Monday	75½-76⅛	78 - 78⅜	79⅝- 80⅛
Tuesday	76⅛- 78	79¼- 80⅝	80⅝- 82¼
Wednes.	76⅝- 78¾	79¾- 81	81⅜- 83
Thursdy	73⅝- 77⅜	77⅞- 80⅝	80⅝- 83¼
Friday	74⅜- 76⅝	77⅞- 79⅝	80⅝- 82¼
Sat.	73 - 74⅜	76¼- 78	78⅝- 80

1929	77⅞-1.04¾	80⅝-1.07⅝	81¼-1.09⅜

Speculators and consumers are buying oats freely, advancing prices early, but were unable to maintain the gains owing to the break in corn. The close was at a gain of ⅝c on December, and losses extended to ⅘c on the deferred futures, July leading. Deliveries of over 1,600,000 bu passed into strong hands, and 1,000,000 bu are to be moved out to eastern industries. The country movement is light. Refined Steel Products Sues to Recover Stock

New York, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The Refined Steel Products company has begun suit to recover 2,000 shares of its preferred stock, valued at $100 a share, and 25,000 shares of its common stock, of no par value, from Benjamin F. Hardesty of Pittsburgh. The company charges that in November, 1929, when the stock transfer was made, Hardesty represented himself as the holder of patents on certain processes for refining steel. When the company attempted to operate under the patents, it said, it discovered applications for patent rights had been rejected on the ground Hardesty was not the inventor of the processes.

WORLD BANK TO HOLD ANOTHER MEETING TODAY

U. S.-British Gold Negotiations Are Hinted.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BASEL, Switzerland, Dec. 7.—The meeting tomorrow of the board of directors of the world superbank, which is still officially known by the modest title of International Bank for Reparations Settlements, is expected to mark another step in the domination of European finance. THE TRIBUNE gathers from first hand information tonight.

Two of the bank's pet projects, neither of which have anything to do with the original design of handling German reparations payments, figure on the agenda of the meeting. They are, first, the stabilization of the pesata, which was decided upon at last month's meeting, and the enlargement of the scope of the bank's functions to enable it to become a European clearing house.

It is stated here that the problem of the gold reserve, which is the knottiest financial question in Europe, will not be officially discussed tomorrow, but will be taken up at the January meeting.

GOLD NEGOTIATIONS.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Dec. 7.—A hint of important monetary negotiations with the United States which is presumed here to be an echo of secret conversations aboard the liner Bremen last week-end between George L. Harrison and Norman Montague, governor of the Federal Reserve bank of New York and governor of the Bank of England, respectively, was dropped tonight by William Graham, president of the Board of Trade in the MacDonald government.

Describing the difficulties of the present situation, in the course of a political speech at Middlesborough, Graham said: "I fervently hope that American and British financial authorities will be able to arrive at an agreement in the employment of gold reserves which will provide of a sound basis a great credit structure and so minister to a common recovery, that necessarily depends on the central banks. But the British government is alive to the necessities of the situation." Graham made this statement at the conclusion of a review of "enterprises" which he said the government was "actively pursuing in order that everything may be done to get rid of the present defeatist spirit in industry and commerce."

Draw Inference.

The inference was accordingly drawn in some quarters here that these negotiations are actually in progress.

It caught London financial circles completely by surprise. One banking authority expressed the opinion that Graham, during a succession of weekend speeches, had run short of political matters and "was talking through his hat." America, which holds half the world's gold stocks, amounting to $4,600,000,000, this authority said, is certainly not going to lose control of it. Britain's gold reserves at present amount to only $750,000,000. But whereas America holds the bulk of the world's supply of gold, Britain possesses the machinery whereby it can easily be pumped back into world circulation.

LAUNCH FIXED TRUST HOLDING CHAIN STOCKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 7.—A semi-fixed investment trust, Chain Store Shareowners, Inc., holding stocks of chain store and merchandising companies exclusively, the first of its kind, is announced by Merrill, Lynch & Co., investment bankers, who have specialized in chain store issues.

The portfolio includes thirty-five companies, which for 1929 reported total assets of $1,667,562,933 and gross sales of $4,084,692,380. These companies had at that date 41,455 stores in operation.

The stocks held are those of the following concerns:

American Stores.
Childs Co.
Diamond Shoe.
Dominion Stores.
Drug, Inc.
First National Stores.
Fox, W. Grand-Silver.
J. T. Grant.
Great A. & P.
S. Kresge.
H. Kress.
Kroger Grocery.
Geo. Ketchum.
Lerner Stores.
Mayflow Grocerettes.
McMarr Stores.
Melville Shoe.
Montgomery Ward.
National Tea.
Neisner Bros.
J. J. Newberry.
Oppenheim, Collins.
J. C. Penney.
Peoples Drug.
Daniel Reeves.
Safeway Stores.
Sears-Roebuck.
F. G. Shattuck.
A. G. Spalding.
John R. Thompson.
Waldorf System.
Walgreen Co.
West Auto Supply.
F. W. Woolworth.

A feature in which this trust will differ from most fixed trusts is that the stock will have full voting privileges, including election of directors. The directors will have full privilege to sell all or any part of any block of stock held, and the proceeds are to be distributed to stockholders along with regular disbursements.

Reinvestment, except between periods of distribution, when funds held may be invested in call loans, United States government obligations or other investments legal to New York savings banks or trustees, is forbidden.
